Damage to property

Center hit by vandals and power failure Tuesday eve

One local 17-year-old youth was arrested Tuesday night on charges of breaking and malicious behavior after several store windows on Thompson street were damaged, allegedly by stone-throwing youths, according to Lt. Andrew Crawford.

The area around Thompson street is a

New group is formed for environment

The Winchester Environmental League is a brand new organization in town. Members voted the League into being by adopting a constitution at a meeting held last Thursday in the Board of Health room at the Town Hall.

The purpose of WEL is the bring together representatives of groups in town concerned with any aspect of the community. It is hoped there can be productive exchange of ideas and information. On occasion this may lead to cooperative action.

Represented were Friends of the Fells, the Garden Clubs, Winchester Trails, Community School Assoc., the Conservation Commission, Boy and Girl Scouts, Winchester Environmental Protection Association, Winchester Historical Commission, and others.

Temporary officers elected were Lenore Fraizer, chairman; Charles Carlson, vice chairman and treasurer; Eva Arnott recording secretary; and Phyllis Stearns corresponding secretary and publicity. The next meeting will be held early in the fall. Any other interested organization or individual is invited to contact any of the officers.

frequent site for local youths to park and congregate.

Auxiliary police were called in to assist the regular force, but police do not know how many of the youths congregating in the Thompson street area were directly involved in the breakings.

According to police, there was a power failure in the center caused by a transformer which was knocked over by a car. There may be a connection between the late night total darkness and the stone throwings, although police are reluctant to say definitely at this time if the incidents were related.

The power failure resulted in most of the burglar alarms at police headquarters going off in the surge of power just before the failure. Many false alarms were also pulled from the street during this time.

As of Wednesday morning the Boston Edison crews were still at work restoring power to the center.

Other isolated false alarms and another broken window at the Dairy Barn on Main street kept police working through the night.

First summer band concert is this Wed.

The first of the recreation department's Bicentennial Summer concerts will be held the evening of July 7 behind the library at 7:30.

The concert will feature a few special numbers in keeping with the spirit of the week of July 4th.

Moderator Kenney elected to office in Mass. Bar Assoc.

Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. was elected president-elect of the Massachusetts Bar Association at the recent annual meeting after the first contested election in the association's history.

Picked as one of 15 attorneys on the association's board of delegates was Joseph T. Travalline, also of Winchester.

Kenney, a 1958 graduate of Boston College Law School, will become president September 1, 1977. Paul R. Sugarman of Lexington, who has served as president-elect for the past year, will automatically become the 45th president of the 10,150 member bar association September 1.

Kenney has been an active member of the MBA for many years, having served as vice-president for three years; editor of the Massachusetts Law Quarterly for three years; and chairman of the unauthorized practices of law committee. He is also chairman of the judicial nominating commission.

A former director of the American Red Cross in Winchester, Kenney is a partner in the Boston law firm of Martin, Magnuson, McCarthy and Kenney. He and his wife Claire have four children — Marianne, Raymond, Stephen and John.

Travalline is a partner in the firm of Conn, Austin, Conn and Travalline in Burlington. He is a former Middlesex County Assistant District Attorney and a former member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives (1963-68), serving six years on the judiciary committee. He is presently chairman of the MBA committee on legislation.

Housebreaks decline

New police coop system removes burglars from circulation, cuts breaks

It is not your imagination — the number of housebreaks in this town has decreased over the last few weeks.

The reason, according to Acting Chief William Haggerty, Winchester's involvement in weekly regional meetings of detectives, FBI agents, and alcohol, tobacco, and firearms specialists.

Meeting under the auspices of the Northeastern Massachusetts Regional Law Enforcement Council, detectives from Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham, Medford, Framingham, Boston, and other towns in the area, get together in a room at the Stoneham police station.

They sift information, distribute photographs and fingerprints, talk over the problems in their respective towns, and invariably give one another enough information to base arrests on.

For example, Sgt. Roland Roy, one of the three Winchester men to attend, said that one week he went into the meeting with a description of two housebreakers but couldn't find a suspect. "I described the guys and the M.O. and one of the Lexington detectives said he had just made an arrest two days before of a couple of guys matching that description," Sgt. Roy explained.

"He gave me a copy of the fingerprints of the Lexington breaks and we matched them with what we had," he goes on. "We were able to make two arrests based on the help Lexington had given us."

Accompanying Sgt. Roy are Lt. William Haggerty

Although the project started several months ago under Chief Maguire, Woburn chief of police, it is now organized and productive enough to be doing its job of helping the local departments involved.

"I can't say for sure that these meetings are the only reason for the decline in the number of housebreaks," Lt. Haggerty cautions, "but I'm pretty sure they're a major contributing factor."

The Northeastern Massachusetts Regional Law Enforcement Council has been given a room in the Woburn District Courthouse in which to store the information used by the departments. Here any of the towns involved can find out what other towns may have of importance for them. "Almost every week we get an arrest or help another town get an arrest," Sgt. Roy says. He cautions the town not to become complacent, however. "You've still got to keep your grass mowed, the paper stopped, the milkman stopped, and someone to pick up your mail," he says, "but we've made a dent in the number of housebreaks."

Officials push to save lottery cash

The presidents of five municipal associations last week strongly urged the Legislature to keep all lottery funds for local aid to cities and towns.

In a letter to each state representative, the associations urged the state "not to attempt to solve its fiscal problems at the expense of local governments by removing existing sources of local aid."

Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, president of the Massachusetts Mayors' Association, expressed gratitude to the Senate for their overwhelming vote last week in favor of retaining the lottery funds in the local aid account.

"We urge the House-Senate Conference Committee to support the Senate version of the budget," said Mann. "The lottery was originally set up to help lower property taxes, and these funds are badly needed by local governments."

Richard T. Leary, president of the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns, noted that when the House diverted the lottery revenues two weeks ago, it was done in the midst of considerable confusion during a late-night marathon session.

"We feel certain that members of the House now realize the impact this action will have on their local communities," said Leary.

"Since the House vote," he noted, "it has become clear that this year's cherry sheet included an estimated $20 million from the lottery numbers game. If the legislature diverts these funds to the state, every community would lose almost half of the projected lottery receipts they were counting on."

"In fact," emphasized Mayor Mann, "cities and towns stand to lose more than the $20 million, since the numbers game has been even more successful than the cherry sheet estimated. Moreover, it is expected that receipts from the numbers game will continue to grow next year while other lottery games will drop off considerably."

"We have alerted our members to this urgent matter and many have already contacted their representatives," said Leary.

Joining in the statement were Richard T. Moore, president of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association; Edward G. McCann, president of the Massachusetts Municipal Management Association; and Robert W. Kelly, president of the Association of Town Finance Committees.

After 25 years...

WHS Class of '51: 'Bonds of trust remain'

The Winchester High School Class of 1951 recently celebrated their 25th reunion at the Holiday Inn in Burlington, Mass.

Sixty-two classmates and forty-eight guests were welcomed by class President Robert Mirak. Bernard (Sonny) Crowley acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and led the reminiscing as he "returned" items allegedly "found in high school lockers, after the class graduated," to their owners.

Prizes were awarded to John Richmond and Jimmy Smith for having traveled the greatest distance (California); to Betty McHugh Pinette, for having the most children (eight); to Joan McFarlane Boyle, for having the youngest child; and Barbara Laird Fales and Pat Harold Duncan were rewarded for being such "well-kept" grandmothers.

Centerpieces of red and white carnations, provided by Dotty Parker Patten; and music of the fifties, played by Rick Ives and his combo; created an atmosphere typical of the "old time" senior prom.

The theme of the reunion was appropriately reflected as Phyllis (O'Neil) Williams sang "Why Don't We Do This More Often?"

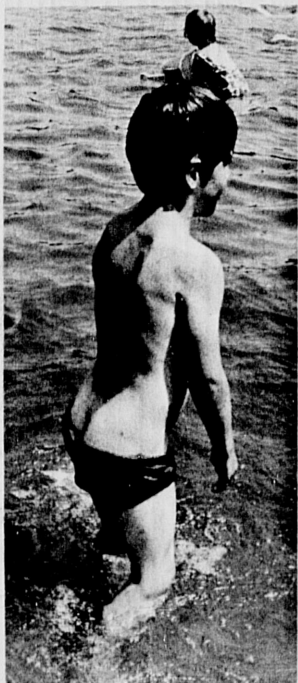

The success of the evening can be summed up in this quote by Rick Ives in a letter to the committee, "What struck me most was not so much the changes that the years have made in all of us, but that the bonds of friendship, trust, and regard that we formed in our youth are still there today as rich and firm as when they were made. It was for me, and I suspect for many, a very meaningful and moving occasion."

The reunion committee members were: John Ciarcia, Beete Kneeland Crowley, Bernard Crowley, Audrey Elliott Hammond, Joe Lynch, Ginger Frongillo Maggio, Marilyn Johnson Mandeville, Bob "O'Be" O'Brien, Elliot Walters, and Phyllis O'Neil Williams.

UCAL band is coming to town, host homes sought

The University of California at Berkeley Band is coming to Winchester on Thursday, July 15. This 107-man band is on a nationwide American Revolution Bicentennial Tour. The Jaycees are responsible for finding housing for this group for the night of July 15.

Host families are responsible for meeting their bandmen at the high school about 4:30 Thursday, providing dinner, transportation to and from the high school for the 8:00 p.m. performance, lodging for the night, breakfast, and transportation to the high school Friday morning to meet the buses.

Anyone who feels able to open his home to one or two members of this group for one night is asked to contact Art Daniels, 88 Highland Ave.

Area residents will have the chance to help Winchester's Senior Citizens when the Winchester Jaycees sponsor the University of California Marching Band's performance, "Spirit of America."

Since the proceeds from the performance will be donated to the senior citizen building fund, this will be a good opportunity to demonstrate the community's support for its seniors and the heritage they represent.

Being the only college band to be recognized by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, the Cal Band will provide the best of Musical America, ranging from folk tunes and nostalgic 'oldies' to musical comedy and current smash hits.

Tickets for the performance will be available at the COA office or at Henderson's Star Stationary

Selectmen table request for more gasoline storage

Selectmen tabled a request from the Shell station at 585 Main st. to increase the amount of gasoline permitted to be stored there underground. The station, represented by Boston Attorney William Fitzgerald, sought to store 30,000 gallons rather than the current 15,000.

After explaining at some length the benefits to the town and to Shell if the welded steel tanks now in use are replaced with fiberglass, Fitzgerald said that this would be only the first step in a long-range plan to convert the station to self-service.

In spite of Fitzgerald's claims that greater underground storage would lead to fewer visits by the oil company for filling the tanks, and that noise and traffic flow would improve, the board felt that the granting of a license for greater underground storage was too closely tied in with plans for a self-service station.

A hearing before the board of appeal is scheduled for July 13. Charles Ford, field engineer from Shell, said that the company would "not necessarily" put in the new tanks if the plans for renovation are denied.

The board tabled its decision on the tanks until it receives notice from the board of appeal as to whether a variance will be allowed in the zoning laws to permit a self-service gas station to operate in that location.

Selectman Harry Chelaflo, who owns the property at 585 Main st., refrained from discussion and voting on the matter. Shell has a 15-year lease with Chelaflo, four years of which have passed.

Fire Chief Robert McElhinney was also opposed to increased underground storage of gasoline because of potential fire danger in case of a leak. Attorney Fitzgerald, a former fire commissioner, claimed that underground storage does not present a fire hazard.

In other action Monday night, selectmen held a public hearing on W. L. Klahs's request for permission to operate the Texaco station at the corner of Pond and Cambridge sts. from 6 a.m. to midnight.

Although several abutters appeared to speak both for and against the petition, the petitioner himself did not attend the hearing. The board voted to table any action on this request until it could ascertain the reason for Mr. Klahs's not appearing.

The Texaco station now operates until midnight, but in view of recent action by selectmen, any gas station wishing to operate beyond the normal hours of 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

must petition the board for that permission. Two new members were appointed to the Council on Aging to fill vacancies due to the resignations of Msgr. Lyons and Margery Flaherty.

The board appointed Barbara Wheedon, 4 Overlook dr., and Arthur Fonseca, 5 Alden lane to serve on what Chairman John Sullivan called "this most aggressive group."

The Winchester Seniors Association brought a model of the proposed senior center to the selectmen's meeting, seeking additional support and bringing the board up to date on the progress of the center.

Dr. Richard Norberg, speaking for the group, said that initial architectural work has been completed and plans drawn up. The town engineer, John Garcia, will review those plans and work with architect Phil Locascio to discuss materials, heating, ventilation, and other expenses.

The building will ultimately be turned over to the town to be operated and maintained primarily as a senior center.

The selectmen want to be certain of the cost involved.

Sullivan told the seniors that "anything this board can do to cooperate with you, we will bend over backwards to do."

Police blotter

In the last week police have been kept busy with calls ranging from youths swimming in the reservoir to a man who died as a result of a fall from a roof.

Acting Chief William Haggerty warns that anyone found trespassing, swimming, or fishing at the town's reservoir in the Fells will be subject to prosecution to the full extent of the law.

This means a person could be subject to fines and a police record. Lt. Haggerty says, "While we don't want to see anyone have a police or court record for swimming, we are responsible for maintaining the town's drinking water. The area is well posted and we will prosecute to the full extent of the law anyone caught up there." Three local youths were apprehended for swimming in the reservoir on June 24.

In police activity during the past week, the ambulance was called to 6 Curtis st. where a Woburn man shingling a roof apparently lost his footing, falling ten feet to the ground. He was dead on arrival at Winchester Hospital. Officer Moran apprehended two Somerville boys who had stolen bikes on Sylvester st. He spotted a bike in the back of a car in which the youths were riding.

Two boys were caught siphoning gasoline from a car on Canterbury rd. and a breaking and entering was reported at 5 Penn rd. A man fixing a flat tire in the parking lot of the Parkview apartments was hit on the head with a tire iron and taken to Winchester Hospital.

Two attempted breaks were reported during the week. One at Pine Grove park was unsuccessful, the suspect being caught and arrested in protective custody. No entrance had been gained.

In another attempted B&E, two boys got away from police after trying to enter Cappy's Appliance on Main st.

Two Winchester girls were arrested on June 24 on charges of stealing a motor vehicle from Wedgemere station parking lot. They were picked up in the vehicle in Stoneham.

Concert, fireworks scheduled Sunday at the Esplanade

Two-hundred thousand people are expected to hear Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Symphony Esplanade Orchestra perform Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture accompanied by cannons, churchbells and fireworks at the Hatch Sehill, Storrow Drive, Boston, on Sunday.

Fiedler will lead the crowd in a patriotic sing-a-long, and the show will conclude with an 1,198 shell aerial fireworks display.

The concert starts at 8:30 p.m. and the fireworks at 10 p.m. Three large sound towers are being installed to carry the music over a half-mile down Storrow Drive so the crowd won't have to jam in close to the Shell.

The MDC has provided 30 portable restrooms and Union Carbide Corp. has donated 50,400 plastic trash bags which will be handed out with the programs. There will be over 100 amateur radio operators stationed throughout the crowd to assist concert-goers.

The Advent Guild of Bellringers from Church of the Advent on nearby Brimmer St. will provide a cacophony of bells for the 1812 Overture finale. Five 105-millimeter howitzers of Battery C, 101st Field Artillery, Massachusetts National Guard, from Lynn, will supply the cannon fire.

Use of public transportation is urged. The MBTA will have extra cars on the lines running to the Charles St. and Arlington St. stations which are within walking distance of the Esplanade.

Lawrence Tobiasson of Winchester is a member of the volunteer staff for Boston's Fourth of July Inc. which is producing and funding the celebration.

Seventh District campaign

250 brave intense heat to hear Congressional aspirants

More than 250 Seventh Congressional District residents and 11 candidates seeking their support braved the hottest June 24 weather on the record to attend the Congressional Candidates Night sponsored by Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX) at Malden High last Thursdays evening.

Following brief opening speeches by each of the candidates, nearly an hour and a half was devoted to careful questioning of the contenders by the audience. "The quality and number of questions asked from the floor proved that residents of the Seventh District were eager to see the candidates side-by-side and size up their respective qualifications and issue positions," according to Ruth Terzaghi, of Winchester, the CPPAX Executive Board member who chaired the event. "We're just sorry that there wasn't more time so that all the good questions could be asked."

In addition to hearing the verbal presentations and questions, every person in the audience received a copy of the responses from the questionnaire CPPAX sent to all the Congressional candidates. The eight-page brochure summarizes candidates backgrounds campaign priorities and answers to more than 40 specific legislative questions ranging from reinstatement of the death penalty to tax reform, gun control and military spending. Additional copies of the questionnaire responses may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to CPPAX, 11 South St., Boston, MA 02111.

Candidates who participated in the June 24 session included Harry Chickles of Wakefield, Bartholomew Conte of Lynnfield, State Representative William Hogan of Everett, former Secretary of Elder Affairs Jack Leff of Malden, Robert Leo of Everett, Governors Councillor Vincent Lo Presti of Somerville, former Malden Common Councillor H. George Marchant, Malden State Rep. Edward Markey, Everett Mayor George McCarthy, State Senator Stephen McGrail of Malden, and Revere Mayor William Rein-stein.

CPPAX members in the Seventh Congressional District will meet on Wednesday, June 30 to consider making an endorsement of one of the candidates. A CPPAX endorsement requires a two-thirds vote of members in the district and indicates a major commitment to aid the endorsed candidate. In past years CPPAX has played a major role in the victories of Congressmen Micheal Harrington, Robert Drinan, Gerry Studds, Joe Moakley, and Paul Tsongas.

The following candidates failed to return completed questionnaires: Robert Donovan, William Hogan, Robert Leo, and Vincent LoPresti, and late entrants in the race, Anthony Barbaro, Joseph Crocken, H. George Marchant, and William Twombly.

Billy Stevens, Melissa Shaw, Nina Khaund. Other children who participated were: Mark Shaw, Shana McKonkey, Jennifer Ulwick, Signe Ulwick, Jason McKonkey, Michelle Stolor, Sara Jones, Beth Jones and Mary Corcoran.

A "Treasure Hunt" was the exciting activity on Thursday. Kathy Scully and Beth O'Reilly were down at Ginn, along with instructor Pam, at 8:15 a.m. to hide the treasures in time for the hunt to begin at 9:00 a.m.

Wellesley Club 'Green Day' set

The Winchester Wellesley Club spring picnic was held recently in the garden of Nancy Hudson, who will share her horticultural knowledge when she coordinated the club's "Green Day" benefit. On Thursday, October 14, the club will offer to Winchester citizens an informational program featuring two gardening experts, a light lunch of green salads, wine and dessert and a selected sample of plant cuttings and hand thrown pots for nuturing and displaying a green thumb of your own.

Local landscape designer Alexander Heimlich, whose work can be enjoyed in the Winchester Common and town cemetery, will speak on ornamental trees and shrubs, illustrating his comments with slides. After this morning talk, a green luncheon buffet will be served and those attending will be able to browse among the pottery made by members of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Ceramic Guild and cuttings from Wellesley Club gardens. Pencil and paper will be handy for the afternoon talk to be given by Evelyn Cronin. Her topic, "windosill gardening", is designed as a how-to guide for winter windows. Tickets for "Green Day" will be available from Wellesley Club members in September.

After planning "Green Day", Wellesley Club members enjoyed dessert prepared by Jane McClelland and expressed thanks to outgoing President, Betty Pezaris, and her executive board. ## Record crowds turn out for opening of playgrounds

All four towns playgrounds were thronged by large crowds last week as the hot weather and various activities brought out record numbers.

At Westside Field, instructors Tony Guarente and Leslie Costello began the week by organizing their "A & B" baseball teams. Two practice games were played with Ginn Field. Westside still has a need for any 12-16 year olds to play on the "A" team. On Thursday, Police Officer Dan McGee came to Westside to explain the utilization of the cruiser to the children.

Coming events at Westside include: July 8 - Golfing trip; July 14 - Safety instruction from the Winchester Police Department. Westside also had a large turnout for bowling on Tuesday at 11:30; this program will continue throughout the summer.

At Leonard Field, instructors Maggie Mauger and Jim Chase greeted over 100 children each day. One "A" team and two "B" teams are all organized and awaiting the beginning of the Recreation Baseball League which starts Monday.

Throughout the week, activities at Leonard have included: inter-squad baseball games, kickball, red light, monopoly, and arts and crafts instruction in making collages. Leonard's first week was highlighted by a trip downtown. The group was met at the fire station by Mike Saraco, who not only guided the group, but provided a detailed description of the various equipment used in firefighting. Next, the group went to the town police station where Officer McGee guided the group throughout the facilities. The trip was topped off with a visit to Brigham's. Thanks to all who helped make this a delightful outing for the kids.

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

Town meeting 'phonies'

Some "public-spirited" citizens have good attendance records at town meeting but they never attended town meeting. That is certainly a contradictory, ambiguous statement if ever there was one.

But if you know what we are talking about, you will probably agree right away. And if you don't we'll tell you that the persons to whom we refer, and about whom there is a strong letter to the editor in today's Star, are the citizens who sign in at the town meeting sessions and beat a hasty retreat from the scene.

Why they bother to show up at all is a mystery, and why they run for town meeting membership, probably knowing full well they have no intention of serving honorably, is beyond understanding.

What is going on here, anyway?

Are these people trying to kid their fellow town meeting members who show up on time at meetings, who deliberate, study and vote conscientiously?

No way.

Are they trying to kid their wives, their children, perhaps? Or their neighbors? Worse, themselves? Silly, isn't it? Or more accurately, sad, very sad indeed.

While these signers-in who affix their signatures to the attendance cards and then leave, are actually unknown to your editor, their deception is well known to observant town meeting members, which means most of them, who are honest and above reproach.

One town meeting member is so fed up with it that he has seen fit to write about it in a letter to the editor and we agree with him. In fact, we brought this question up a couple of weeks ago in our editorial columns, and wondered why something isn't being done about it.

Letter writer Vincent G. Carroll says, "These 'town meeting members' arrived only to show their faces, sign their cards and leave. This procedure is downright dishonest and is certainly degrading this form of town government. If they cannot attend full meetings, they should be kicked out." We would add: Or asked to resign.

Mr. Carroll feels that the new rules committee should come up with some other method "so as to easily identify these phonies."

We agree. We said before and say again: Members should sign in, but their cards should not be accepted until the end of the session. The card should be issued at the opening up to a certain deadline, then accepted only at the sound of the final gavel. This may shake out the so-called phonies, or at least indicate to them that their behavior is totally undesirable.

Not only are they acting dishonestly, but by pretending to be at meetings when they aren't and thereby creating this situation, they are actually casting a pall over the entire membership's attendees with perfect attendance. That is, how do you separate the so-called phonies from the sincere, dedicated members. You don't. Hence, charitably, you have to assume that although you can't single them out and report their little deception (we're not in a police state, after all), they will get the idea and either mend their ways or get out of it entirely.

What is their purpose? They are kidding no one but themselves. And anyone who is kidding himself is in tough shape. — J.R.S.

Bombs bursting in air...

Well, except for the bombs bursting in air on the Fourth, it's just about all over. Our flag has survived. It is still there, despite the onslaught of cheap commercialism by quick-buck artists using it to sell their bicentennial wares, and for the rest-of-the-summer 'celebration.'

Now, looking forward to the nation's tricentennial, we can be reasonably pleased that we will not be around to suffer it again. None of us. (Odd thought, isn't it?)

Now we can look forward to the Olympics in Montreal this summer — not the hype leading up to it, but to the actual events of competition, which are the last vestiges of purity in sports. No salary squabbles, no contract signing whining, no holdouts. Competing is the thing, where the truth of it lies.

And until then, if you are looking for a shot of purity (which we could all use about now), the Arthur Fiedler-concert on the Esplanade will provide a pleasant antidote to the recent bad press (busing, etc.,) Boston has had and the bicentennial hoke over the Fourth of July weekend, which the weatherman promises will be perfect. — J.R.S.

Kick 'em out

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As I looked over the attendance record of the town meeting members in last week's Star, I was thoroughly disgusted with the credit of perfect attendance records given to some Town Meeting members who never attend. To allow such misinformation to be printed is wrong. These "town meeting members" arrive only to show their faces, sign their cards and leave. This procedure is down-right dishonest and is certainly degrading this form of town government. If they cannot attend full meetings, they should be kicked out.

The new rules committee should come up with some other method so as to easily identify these phonies. At the last town meeting I talked with two separate groups and during the discussions, the names of the same absentees came up again and again. These same individuals think they are kidding the townspeople. Such town meeting members are as phony as three dollar bills.

If this pattern continues in the fall town meetings, after serving 40 years as a town meeting member with perfect attendance, I shall give serious thought to resigning, because I refuse to associate with such dishonesty. If it were not for the possibility of a libel suit, I would publicize the names of these "signed in" absentees.

Vincent G. Carroll
207 Highland Ave.

(Ed's note: — The Star uses the attendance figures as provided by the office of Town Clerk Elsie Nelson, who compiles the statistics on the basis of signed cards. Under this system neither she nor The Star can determine or report the "degree" of attendance. How to solve it? See today's editorial)

Shocked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was quite surprised and frankly very shocked by the remarks of Stephen Parkhurst in last week's paper regarding the school committee's actions. His remarks seemed so unfair and to accuse them of ignoring the rights of citizens and students to address the committee were completely false. On the night of June 8, the Ambrose auditorium was filled with (mostly) students and the meeting was conducted very orderly and properly with each and every person given the chance to speak.

The student chairman, Brian Tarbox, of the Advisory committee, spoke at great lengths and was recognized to speak several times throughout the meeting. Changing the high school day back to seven periods is certainly not "reducing the freedom of choice, expression and thought" as Mr. Parkhurst suggested. I, for one, would like to see more supervision and control at the high school level. When a student is only spending two thirds of his school hours in a classroom then I feel that he has been short changed educationally. It has been suggested by our principal, who is much closer to the problem than anyone else, that seven periods would be more beneficial to the students. Common sense tells us that an additional four and a half weeks of instructional time per subject is more educationally and financially practical.

What I find more infuriating than Mr. Parkhurst's opinion on the 7 vs. 8 period day is the crucifying way he is describing our school committee. I have yet to see Mr. Parkhurst at a SC meeting since he left office in March. How can he report through the newsmedia on the procedures and the agenda when he is only receiving this information second hand?

In case Mr. Parkhurst hasn't noticed, this is a conservative town and the last two town elections have proven that.

Diane Plunkett

Surprised

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was first surprised and then shocked to see that Senator McGrail claims to have moved an amendment on the Senate floor that was actually moved by another senator, Senator David Locke of Wellesley.

The amendment was a move to return revenues from the new numbers game to the cities and towns where they belong. I followed this issue very closely, because I fought hard for just such an amendment by the minority leader in the House.

We initially won our amendment there, only to see it reversed when the Democratic leadership turned around 36 votes during our all night session.

I am glad that the Senate version as amended supported our position that lottery revenues should be helping ease property taxes rather than going into the state's general fund. I am further glad that Senator McGrail voted on the same side of the issue as I did.

However it is one thing to vote for an amendment and another thing to offer that amendment. The Senate Journal and the senator's press release do not agree on this point.

On top of all this, the senate president has been reported as saying that the lottery money in question will end up in the general fund anyway by the time the budget process is completed. I hope that when this move is made that Senator McGrail will stand with us and make his motions then.

Appreciation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At this time I would like to thank personally the 50 great people who aided in a recent telephone campaign which is one phase of our widespread fund-raising effort for a multi-purpose senior center in Winchester. I would also like to thank the seniors in the community who have shown real interest and concern for the project and have given willingly and graciously.

The phone calls were a follow-up to a letter mailed to citizens in the 62-and-over age group asking for their support and reactions to a new senior center. In making the calls, the phoners discovered numerous older adults with talents in many fields who offered to share them in various ways with others at the center, as well as with the community at large. We learned of the problems of transportation to doctors, hospitals, clinics, churches and Senior Association activities. Also, through these person-to-person contacts, we discovered how much illness, loneliness and even poverty haunt many of our older citizens. I am sure that Winchester residents, in general, have not been aware of many of these situations.

Well deserved credit is due the following volunteers who aided in the telephone fund-raising campaign:

Phyllis Danahy Polly Driscoll, Mary Lou Eugley, Margaret Finegan, Sue Meade, Margaret Ashenden, Dorothy Burrows, Doris Butters, June Conrad, Doris Deluca, Janet Mosman, Claudia Mulford, Lbyd and Ruth Stevens, Cathy Costello, Jean Donahue, Caroline Franchi, Claire Kenney, Alice Porell, Mary Jo Reece, Mary Welch, Fran Weiffenbach, Mary Beal, Clarence Borggarrd, Frances Calabro, Rode Griffoni, Mary Henderson, Janet Lavey, Edna Marino, Diane Plunkett, Elaine Cahill, Lorraine Cullivan, Maureen Fallon, Anne Harris, Sue Porter, Josephine Ricciardelli, Nancy Woods, Nawrie Campbell, Nancy Hagge, Pat Mahoney, Elaine MacPhail, Barbara Potter, Maureen Riley, Mary Ellen Sexeny, Margot Semonian.

The personnel of the present Center, located in a small, inadequate area of the Lincoln School (the old high school) at 161 Mystic Valley Parkway, are in a position to help in the solution of some of these problems. There are programs in place and operating which can meet many of the needs which have become so apparent. With a new multipurpose center, much more can be accomplished in a unified manner. And with continued enthusiastic efforts and responses, we will succeed.

Town watch...

A 'happening' on Esplanade

By The Observer

Winchesterites may find an unharried and unharried Fourth of July weekend event much to their liking if they hie to the Esplanade's Hatch Shell on the banks of the Charles River Sunday evening.

There at 8:30 p.m. Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Symphony's Esplanade Orchestra will perform Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture accompanied by cannonading, peeling churchbells and the thunder and beauty of a pyrotechnics display high over the water.

The entire event, staged by Boston's Fourth of July Inc., under the direction of Executive Producer David G. Mugar of Belmont, should provide a welcome contrast to the poor image Boston has nourished in the past year with racial problems, busing and other troubles. Mr. Fiedler, who will also lead the crowd in a Patriotic Sing-along, will be interviewed for national television which, with local TV will broadcast elements of the "happening."

Producer Mugar and MDC police expect a record crowd of 200,000 persons. But don't be afraid to attend on that account, for the planning for the event has been so thorough that nothing has been left undone in order to insure that the public will be the principal beneficiary with as much convenience as possible. For instance, if you can't get close enough to the Hatch Shell, you'll still hear that magnificent music, for a sophisticated stereophonic sound system has been installed and will be heard more than a half mile away in all directions.

Happy birthday, Boston and America, and congratulations to Boston's Fourth of July Inc.

The puzzle is entitled "Yankee Doodle Puzzle" and is roughly designed around the form of the Liberty Bell (crack and all). Most of the 597 crossword clues have to do with American history and culture, making up an ingenious matrix of American life.

Captain Michael M. Connolly of the Winchester Fire Department has spent six long years working for something no one else on the department has — an associates degree in fire science technology.

Capt. Connolly received his degree this month from the Massachusetts Bay Community College, according to Fire Chief Robert W. McElhinney.

Selectmen congratulated Joseph Vitka and the Local Growth Policy Committee for their work on putting together a draft of recommendations to be passed on to the state office of planning.

Although at least one member of the board is outspokenly against state intervention in affairs of the town, the entire board thanked the committee for its work.

Vitka is seeking the establishment of a committee to carry on the work of planning for the town's future after the Local Growth Policy Committee finishes its work sometime this summer.

The committee has worked virtually unassisted. Of the couple hundred questionnaires sent out, only 60 have been returned. The public hearings have been attended by only a handful of residents.

In the listing of town meeting attendance in last week's Star, the name and record of Richard Wilsack from district 1 were inadvertently omitted.

In his case, there should be no X's marked. Wilsack had perfect attendance for the entire session.

In the mood...

Lazy daze of summer

By Karen Whittlesey-First

Summer comes to Winchester on the last day of school. It doesn't matter what the weather is like on that day or what it was before or since. On the last day of school, summer hits this town hard.

The streets are pretty well deserted now. Those lucky enough to have summer homes have long since gone off for weeks or months of mosquito bites, leathered skin, "sand between the toes" as A.A. Milne delightfully reminds every little girl and boy. There will be fireworks all over the place and maybe cookouts and a real clambake at the beach.

But Winchester is empty. You can smell it early in the morning when the sun settles over everything and shows no intention of leaving for the day.

You can park anywhere. There are plenty of spaces. The lines are shortened in banks and grocery stores.

So what do you do if you're not in some little two-bedroom shack two feet from the next little two-bedroom shack two feet from...?

You sit out on the porch and do nothing. If you feel adventurous you might mosey downtown and check on the ducks — nothing too strenuous of course. Maybe you water the tomatoes or watch your neighbor water the tomatoes. The gin and tonic business is up. So's the charcoal and hibachi sales.

You can swim, of course, and Winchester's lucky to have several swimming holes, ranging from the ones you wait a couple of years to get invited to, to the ones down the street where there's always a spot of sand and good lifeguards.

For the culturally minded there's the cloister garden series at the Church of the Epiphany. That's a great way to finish a hot, do-nothing day. You sit outside on folding chairs placed around the pool of the cloister garden.

The sun starts to set and the sky changes colors as you listen to whatever music is being offered. Last time it was a brass quintet from Boston. So you sit there, maybe in a long summery dress or a cool snazzy jacket, and you think you're in an outdoor living room. There are standing floor lamps for the musicians to read by, and I've been told, a regular rug has been known to cover the walk when a pianist comes to the garden.

The clematis and petunias leave their scent all around and the patio torches soften the air.

There's another concert tonight: Summer has come to Winchester.

Bleicken (left), chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. and Edwin Matz, (right), the company's president and chief operations officer. The contest was sponsored by the John Hancock in cooperation with the New England Camera Club Council. The winning entries are on display in the lobby of the John Hancock Berkeley Building at 200 Berkeley St., Boston.

Plamen Gorchev of 4 Robinson Park was presented a $1000 US Savings Bond for first place in the professional division and William B. Budd of 34 Wedgemere ave., received a $25 bond for honorable mention in the employee division of the John Hancock Tower Color Photography Contest.

Pictures which best highlighted the architectural and esthetic qualities of the John Hancock Tower in Boston were selected by a panel of judges from nearly 2000 entries in three divisions.

Gorchev visited the building several times observing how the natural lighting affected it before he actually began shooting. An architectural and advertising photographer for Gorchev and Gorchev of Woburn, he has been taking pictures for 12 years.

Budd's prize winning photograph showed the building in a twilight setting, creating a soft mood with the late afternoon sun reflected off a narrow surface of glass. Budd is second vice president in the stock department at John Hancock.

Awards were presented to the winners at a luncheon in their honor hosted by Gerhard D. Bleicken, John Hancock chairman of the board and chief executive officer and Edwin Matz, the company's president and chief operations officer.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To all concerned with our schools:

In his editorial, Mr. Parkhurst has said it all so well. As a teacher and parent, I must publicly take a stand on the eight period day and other issues. In the language of our children I ask you to "cool" it. (I would never have used that expression 25 years ago and I would certainly have never even thought of committing it to print). If we want to understand our children we must hear what they are saying. We all have the same goals but we are dealing with individuals, not machines.

As parents and teachers we were trained in a fairly traditional way (most parents and some teachers). If we were all so crazy about that system why do we expend our precious time and energy into enrichment programs, radio stations, audio-visual training, special report cards, intramurals, the eight period day and other programs too numerous to mention?

You had better believe I want the highest scores possible for all our children. I never had a "free" period when I taught before. Now that I am "free" (sometimes) to choose, in my professional judgement, which one of our children needs something the most, I have absolutely no "free" time. As a professional, I appreciate this "freedom". I work best when I have options. Our children work best when given options. Studies prove this. The majority of our children prove this daily.

None of us has all the answers. Some of us have some of the answers. None of us has none of the answers. Do we have to throw out the baby with the bath water? Do we have to impose our traditional methods on the majority of our children that we have trained to be thoughtful individuals?

Could we all pause and behave in a rational way? Change is good but we should stop and think awhile — — — a long while before we undo the good that has been done. There must be other solutions.

Long & short of it

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to call attention to an abuse of the grounds of the elderly housing project on Palmer street which could at times become dangerous and in fact already is.

It concerns the rear sidewalk of the housing establishment, running from Palmer street to Palmer street in a crescent shape, which is much used by people here who have no cars and are often carrying bundles, which applies to most of them.

A few dumb kids seem to think that this walk is a short cut to the tennis courts or beach, but who are kidding themselves, as the actual distance is some 50 to 75 yards longer than going straight through on Palmer street.

Last night, to the usual ten speed bikes commonly speeding through this area there was added a little mini-car, which ran through twice. Imagine what this might do to one of the people who are handicapped and unable to dodge these cowboys!

My wife is shortly coming back from the hospital after a stroke and would actually be at the mercy of these jerks who think they are funny.

I would suggest a sign of some kind that would warn people of this type from driving over this sidewalk. It is NOT shorter.

Motivation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As letters and editorial have made clear in recent weeks, the change from an eight to a seven period high school day will destroy much of the flexibility of scheduling classes and other activities that has made the high school such an exciting place for those students willing to take advantage of their opportunities.

The argument in favor of the change seems to be that the unmotivated student would gain by being made to sit in a classroom, any classroom, a few more minutes a day; he would not make use of any options that are not required of him anyway. This argument goes on to say that the top students will always do all right, we should help the others. Besides, these others will look better if the number of opportunities for everyone is decreased.

Unfortunately, this shows a complete lack of understanding of the nature of learning. All students learn more in an atmosphere where enjoyment of learning can flourish. What the unmotivated student needs is the exposure to people who are interested and excited by their studies. Only then is there the hope that he also may wish to learn. The seven period day will limit the education of the top students and in so doing will make it less likely that the unmotivated student gain the motivation he needs.

Grateful

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank many people for the cooperation and assistance they have given me over the past 29 years I have served as superintendent of the Winchester Park Department.

I especially want to express my appreciation to all the town departments and the Town Hall clerical staffs, and in particular the town engineer and his staff for their help on many special projects we have undertaken.

Also the Mahoney Brothers and Edgar C. Thompson, landscape supervisor, of the Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery for their very generous donations of shrubs and trees which have added to the beautification of the town, especially the plantings of the War Memorial, the Center Rotary, and various parks and playgrounds. Many other organizations and clubs in town have also donated generously to the beautification of the town.

To the various members of the Board of Park Commissioners under whom I have served, many thanks for their advice and assistance over the years.

And most important of all, I would like to say thank you to each and every one of the Park Department employees who have made my years as superintendent so gratifying and rewarding.

Sincere thanks again to all who have helped me in countless ways to beautify the Town of Winchester!

Dr. Lieberman pens college career guide

A new book for the career guidance of high school and college students, "What Can I Be?", has been authored by Dr. Leo Lieberman of 17 North Gateway.

The work, published this spring by Dr. Martin M. Bruce, Publisher, Inc. of New Rochelle, has been announced by Dr. Bruce as "the definitive new book on choice of careers and college majors."

Counselors in colleges have been purchasing the book to help students who have chosen a career to become aware of the college subjects required to prepare for the career, the levels of ability needed in dealing with data, people and things, and how much education is essential, such as bachelor's, master's, or doctor's degree.

The book has been ordered by counselors in high schools to aid students, who know what subjects they like, to find a number of occupations to which the subjects lead.

Some high schools, as part of their career education program, have secured the reference book for use by classroom teachers to introduce students to the career implications of their subject. The listing of professional societies that provide for each occupation free or inexpensive career literature permits the students to write for it. Then they can use the obtained information in the classroom to broaden the career horizons of their classmates.

"What Can I Be?" aids the student and the counselor in answering the sometimes difficult question of what the student is best suited for by virtue of interests, abilities and aspirations.

Quick access is provided to meaningful careers led to by subjects, such as accounting, biology, mathematics, English, journalism, speech, philosophy, education, history, government, psychology or sociology. For each of the 525 occupations covered, one line shows the required academic major, and the kinds of abilities and degree of education needed.

The career information, which was gathered by Dr. Lieberman over a period of four years, is organized into easily readable blocks, enabling the student or his counselor to compare readily the requirements of one career with those of another.

The book shows how to combine courses in college to provide the most effective foundation for future employment.

Two hundred and forty-four professional associations and governmental agencies have been verified by the author as providing authoritative career information.

The author, a diplomate of the American Board of Professional Psychology, believes that guidance materials should be so organized as to permit the student to guide himself as much as possible. He feels that a student who has matched his inner strivings with an attainable goal is a motivated student. His experience has demonstrated that people with a defined career direction can overcome handicaps of many types.

One of the counselors in the Harvard University Commission on Extension Courses, Edgar Grossman, wrote to Dr. Lieberman: "As a college counselor I have found 'What Can I Be?' to be a most helpful to the student and to me. It is prepared in a very succinct way, making it free from the usual laborious task of wading through pages and pages of discussion about each career and the requirements to enter the career."

The Placement Director of Providence College, R.E. Thibault, has written: "Dr. Lieberman has accomplished what has long been needed. I would like to forward a copy to each of our department heads, so that they may better serve their students."

Dr. Lieberman recently retired from Suffolk University after serving as director of psychological services for 25 years.

On June 9 and 10 he conducted a workshop for college students on careers in management for the American Management Association. This marks the 20th year he has been offering courses in creative management for the A.M.A. in New York City and in Chicago.

Hospital Care Unit turned over to new owner

The signing of papers at 12 noon on Monday, June 28, signalled the official sale of Winchester Hospital's Continuing Care Unit at 223 Swanton st. to the new owner, Mr. Gershon Salter, who also owns and operates the Woburn Nursing Home.

The Continuing Care Unit was purchased by the hospital in 1967 as a logical extension of the acute hospital for those patients who still required skilled nursing care, but who did not need the surroundings and facilities of the acute hospital. In the eight and one half years of the unit's operation, over 3300 patients have received nursing care at the unit, with approximately 100 patients in residence there now.

Earlier this year the hospital's directors voted to divest the hospital of the unit if it could find a buyer who would be willing to continue the standard of care which the hospital rendered as owner of the property.

Commenting on the sale, Reese E. James, president of the hospital said, "We are very pleased that Mr. Salter is the new owner of what will now be the Winchester Convalescent and Nursing Home. His experience and reputation will be an adjunct to the hospital's program of patient care."

The significant improvements made during the hospital's ownership will insure a comfortable and attractive setting for those patients requiring long-term care. In addition, many of the former employees are going to remain with the new owner out of a sense of loyalty to the patients they cared for during the operation of the unit by the hospital.

We look forward to a close and continuing relationship with Mr. Salter and the Winchester Convalescent and Nursing Home since the hospital will continue to look to the facility as a most desirable place to transfer patients."

Adult swim lessons

The Winchester Recreation Department will be sponsoring an adult swim class every Monday, from 6:30 to 8 pm at Leonard Pool.

The course will cater to the needs of the participants, but will definitely include stroke instruction and recreation swimming.

If there is a large enough response, a second night will be added. For further information call the Recreation Department at 729-4514.

Sober thoughts

Dear Sober Thoughts:

Is it true that a moderate drinker will live longer than someone who doesn't drink at all? If so, why?

Just Curious

Dear Curious:

Your question is not so easy to answer as might be supposed. The best source of information on length of life is insurance company records. But these records do not definitely point out who is a "moderate drinker." Scientists who have carefully reviewed all the studies on this question are of the opinion that truly "moderate" drinkers are not different in length of life from abstainers.

Sober Thoughts

Dear Sober Thoughts:

How bad does one drink affect your mind?

Light Drinker

Dear Light Drinker:

It depends upon the amount of alcohol consumed in relation to the person's weight and the amount of food in the stomach. Let me explain how alcohol gets to the brain and how it is affected.

When a person drinks an alcoholic beverage, the alcohol passes into the blood stream, mainly through the walls of the small intestine. The circulating blood brings the alcohol to the brain as well as to all the organs and tissues. Because the alcohol is diluted hundreds of times by the blood, one drink will not damage the tissues of the heart, kidney, liver or brain. But this small proportion of alcohol is enough to interfere with the work of the highest brain center - and only that part. The result is that the person's judgement is impaired. He or she may, for example, behave improperly. Suppose the person drinks more - enough to raise the alcohol strength in the blood higher. Then comes the next stage of impairment: poor muscle control; slurred speech; hands not working well together; legs wobbling. The person may stagger or fall, perhaps be unable to rise. It depends on just what strength of alcohol has reached the brain.

The important thing to remember is that judgement goes first, and a person may not exhibit visible signs of drunkenness, but still not have the judgement to drive a car safely.

Local woman commissioned to paint for church

Mrs. Lorraine E. Stewart, 40 Eaton st., has been commissioned to do two paintings by the Carmelite Monastery, West Roxbury. They will be hung in the Eucharistic Congress in Washington this August.

"When I received these transparencies, they resembled a negative of a film. The problem was how and where to hang them since they were 40" by 50". I settled on taping them to a window where the full light would hit them. I used transparent oils.

"The outcome was that of a stained-glass window with vibrant reds, purples, and blues. The scene was the crucifixion of Christ with Our Lady of Fatima standing at the foot of the cross. It was striking indeed."

These pictures will be framed and hung through the Congressional meeting, with homage to Our Lady of Fatima.

SPIRITS OF '76

by DAN BUSA

The proper way to open a bottle of wine for service at the table is as follows: Using a sharp knife, score the cap seal which is the foil wrapper that fits over the top of the bottle. The cut should be made just below the top - actually, just above the first ridge on the neck of the bottle. Peel off top of the cap seal, down to the place it has been scored. Now, insert the point of the corkscrew in the center of the cork. Turn the screw down until it almost pierces the bottom of the cork. Gently ease the cork out. A loud pop does not indicate deftness. ## Hist. Society plans summer field trips

The Winchester Historical Society announces an informal and sporadic series of field trips to places of significant architectural and historical interest during the summer months.

Under the leadership of Allen Hill, architect-preservationist and Chairman of the Winchester Historical Commission, these trips will visit sites in the Boston area and as far afield as Portsmouth, N.H.

The first trip will be to the oldest surviving high-style mansion in the Boston area, the Isaac Royall House in Medford. There will be other weekend-afternoon trips within the local area, and in late August, an all-day visit to explore the remarkable historic assets of Portsmouth, N.H.

All members and friends of the Winchester Historical Society are invited to participate in these field trips. Since they will be informally scheduled, the society asks interested persons to contact Sarah Gold at 21 Jefferson rd. for further information.

This series of field trips is one of several activities which the Winchester Historical Society will be sponsoring during the coming months. Watch for further details in The Star.

Emeralds take first after girls' baseball playoff round

The Winchester Girls Baseball League wound up its season last week. The twelve teams battled for eight positions on the playoff slate.

In the younger league, ages seven to ten, the positions went first place: Pearls (9-1-0); second, Emeralds (7-3-0); third, Rubies (5-4-1); fourth, Jewels (4-5-1); fifth, Crystals and Gems, both with a record of 4-6-0.

The older league, ages 11-13, placed first, Diamonds (9-1-0); second tied, Ambers and Zircons (6-4-0); third, Jades (5-5-0); fourth, Rhinestones (3-7-0); and the fifth place position went to the Opals (1-9-0).

In the young league, the first place team, the Pearls, was pitted against the fourth place team, the Jewels. Much to Pearls coach Leanne Fitzgerald's surprise, Nancy Legvold's underdog Jewels came from behind to beat them 8-6. This advanced the Jewels to the finals against the winner of the Emerald-Rubies game.

The Emeralds came from behind to win a close game 2-1 against the Rubies.

The final playoff game in the young league was a real thriller. In this final contest, the Emeralds were in second place, coached by Marion Long. They played against the fourth place Jewels. In the top of the first inning, pitcher Julie Conley belted a three-run homer, scoring Lauren Lavey and Janet Furey to open the game with a blast.

The Emeralds rallied back with two runs by Lauren Hartnett and Terry Elio. Each team held the other with the bases loaded in the second inning. In the third inning the Jewels did not score, but Kristen McNamara hit a two-run homer driving in Terry Elio again.

The fourth inning brought no score for the Jewels, but relief pitcher Nancy Haley of the Emeralds struck out the last batter with the bases loaded and the tying run on third. Relief pitcher for the Jewels, Laurie Barbuti, threw good pitches but Laura Accardo proved too much for her by driving in Lauren Hartnett and Jackie Foley. That made the score 6-3.

The top of the fifth brought one run by the Jewels and with two outs a line drive to left field had the Emeralds worried when second baseman Kristen McNamara picked it up and literally chased a baserunner to within three yards of home plate. She was tagged out, thus ending the game.

It was a well-played game and both teams should be proud.

The post playoff standings were first place Emeralds and second place to the Jewels.

As for the older playoff, they were not as exciting. The first place Diamonds, coached by Maryellen Wise, handily defeated Debbie Nash's Jades by a score of 17-3. At the same time, the Zircons, coached by Stephanie Martin, beat Sue deBerediti's Ambers by default. In the finals, however, the Diamonds showed their true power by beating the Zircons soundly, 16-4.

It was a great year with lessons learned by both coaches and players alike.

Gymnastics classes set for youngsters

The girls gymnastic program sponsored by the Winchester recreation department will hold instruction for girls under sixth grade from 7 until 8 Tuesday nights at the high school gym. Girls sixth grade and over will meet from 8 until 9.

200 youngsters in playground bowling

The recreation bowling program began last week and drew over 200 youngsters from town playgrounds.

The program will continue throughout the summer, with Westside and Ginn fields going on Tuesday 11:30 to 2:30 and McDonald and Leonard fields attending on Thursday from 11:30 to 2:30.

For a low cost, a youngster will be able to have unlimited bowling for two hours, a hot dog or ice cream, a soft drink, and transportation to and from the Burlington Bowl-away Lanes. All buses and bowling are supervised by town playground instructors.

Larocco to head Middlesex League

by John F. Parrell

Vincent E. Larocco, principal of Winchester High School has been elected president of the ten team Middlesex League. He will serve in that capacity for the next two years. He has been secretary-treasurer of the league for the past two years.

Since its inception, the ten team Middlesex League has had a reputation for quality and integrity in interscholastic athletics. However, its members must continually review its policy with respect to contemporary schools and communities.

The principals and athletic directors of the league members meet during each sports season to discuss any problems which have occurred. They have used PL 622 as it pertains to sports to foster equal growth within the league and have discussed its various ramifications. They have also considered other laws in regard to sports in order to be able to take proper steps to influence the trends in the direction upon which the group agrees.

The league group also lets its feelings be known to the state organizations on rules or laws that affect Middlesex League play. The league stresses the participation of the greatest possible number of competitors. It has also taken strong and positive stands on tournament play which encroaches on its own schedules.

Any protests of rules within the Middlesex League are also considered. Besides the meetings involving the principals there are frequent gatherings of the athletic directors. If there are any insoluble problems these are then brought into the meeting of the larger group.

there is now a standard rule with respect to bands and bad weather. The miserable conditions which were prevalent last Thanksgiving morning produced many situations. In the future the final decision rests in the hands of the athletic directors after consulting with the band directors.

There is constant concern about crowd control and good sportsmanship. A series of league regulations have been developed regarding inside activities.

All noisemakers have been banned and there is strict regulation of posters and their content; proper times for pep bands to play; and many other things which contribute to good sportsmanship.

In short, the new regulations are meant to encourage competition and winning; but the more important endeavor and aim is to teach and assist boys and girls and to aid in their development.

This is the type of organization that Larocco is to head, and based on his methods of handling affairs at the local high school, the Middlesex League has two years of solid progress ahead.

Wind up season of hiking, exploring

The annual meeting of Winchester Trails was held at the home of Mrs. Virginia Carr June 10. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Betty Vanderbilt; vice president, Virginia Carr; secretary, Marjorie Oehm; treasurer, Virginia Carr; membership, June Leavitt; scheduling, Marjorie Moore; in-school training, Mary Jane Grasty; guide training, Fran VerPlanck; adult education and walks, Phyllis Stearns; slide and art work, Sally Wund; publicity, Nancy Wilde; conservation and environment liaison-Carla Lele.

Marjorie Moore, outgoing president, spoke of the highlights of this year's activities. Many walks were enjoyed by public groups as well as senior citizens and the New Comers Club to various areas of the Fells, Town Forest, Niki Site and Smith Pond.

This year saw the largest number of school children, a total of 1010, enjoying walks in the fall and spring. All these children were given slide talks in the classroom prior to their walks to familiarize them with what they were to see and look for during their walk.

Guide training sessions were held early in the spring and led by Betty Vanderbilt. Many of these prospective guides went on the school walks as observers. Follow-up training sessions will be held again in early fall preceding the school walk program in October. Any interested persons may contact Marjorie Moore.

For those of you interested in taking a self guided tour, pamphlets on Long Pond and Smith Pond are available at the Star Stationers Store.

Giants over Cubs 9-4, win town Senior League crown

In a game matching American and National Senior League winners with identical 15-3 records, the American League Giants emerged 9-4 victors over the National League Cubs.

Both team played excellent baseball, but the game was dominated by the overwhelming pitching of the giant's Lenny Bellino, who struck out 18 Cub batters, while issuing only 2 walks. Cub's pitchers Costello and Aylward pitched well enough to win most games, but in this one could not match the smoking Bellino.

Local man in Maine recital

David B. Demsey, a Winchester High School graduate and now a student at the University of Maine at Orono, recently presented a recital in partial fulfillment for his degree in the field of music education. The program of music especially written for the saxophone, was presented in the recital hall of the department of music's Lord Hall at Orono.

Included in the varied program were the Sonata for Saxophone and Piano by Paul Creston; Romance No. III by Robert Schumann (arranged for soprano saxophone); Six Exchanges for Saxophone by Lothar Klein; and finally the Concerto for Saxophone by Pierre Max Dubois. His accompanist for the evening recital was Miss Michele Bremner, also a student at the Orono campus and a resident of Bangor, Maine.

Retrained in naval course

Anthony J. Falzano of 22 Cross st. was one of 32 former naval shipyard employees to graduate from a 24-week retraining program at Wentworth Institute.

The men studied 30 hours weekly for the 24 weeks in the building maintenance course at Wentworth. The purpose of the program, funded by Defense Employee Retraining Program, is to provide new careers through educational retraining.

When you give away assets worth over a certain amount, you will owe a gift tax. The gift tax rules are fairly liberal. Each taxpayer can give away $30,000 in his lifetime, absolutely free of gift tax. This is known as the "lifetime exemption." Each taxpayer can give away $3,000 per year per person without owing any gift tax. If you have three children, you can give each of them $3,000 a year indefinitely, without owing any gift tax. This is known as the "annual exclusion," and is in addition to the lifetime exemption.

LoPresti Listens

When the people of his district asked for more open and honest government, Vincent LoPresti fought for legislation which opened all meetings of his city's government, then went on to reform the city's contract-bidding system, closing the doors on corruption.

Displaying a businessman's ability to stretch a dollar, Vincent LoPresti designed a program to use revenue-sharing funds to reduce real estate taxes, demanded $1.7 million in back taxes from the Boston and Maine railroad, and created the Office of Federal Funds Coordinator which brought over $6 million to his area. Without him, we might have been ignored.

Vincent LoPresti also knows that government is people. We need a representative in Washington who will take the time to listen — then make the time to help. Vincent LoPresti will be that kind of Congressman.

North Suburban YMCA offers summer swim programs for kids

Advanced Lifesaving

The Y is also offering an eight-week course in Red Cross Advanced Senior Lifesaving to start this week.

This course imparts swimming and lifesaving skills needed to save one's own life or that of another person. Students must be at least 15 years of age and have a knowledge of the crawl stroke, breast stroke and side stroke.

Backyard program

The North Suburban Y will send instructors to pools in strategic locations to accommodate youngsters who cannot make use of various swimming facilities in the surrounding communities.

This program is for boys and girls between the ages of 6-14 and also for tots from 2-5 years old. There will be a maximum of ten and a minimum of eight children per class. All instructors are certified by the National YMCA Aquatic Standard. They are well qualified to help each child gain confidence and ability in the water.

There will be four two-week sessions each with eight separate lessons. Four lessons will be given per week through Thursday with Friday as a makeup day. Each lesson is 45 minutes long.

For further information, contact Cathy McManamon at the North Suburban Y.

Youth swimming

There are now six levels in the YMCA National Progressive Swimming Program. The students work on personal safety, lifesaving, endurance, and swimming strokes.

The level of achievement for non-swimmers is Polliwog. The Minnow level is for beginner swimmers working on crawlstroke, and Fish is the intermediate level working on the breast stroke. Flying Fish works on butterfly, and the Shark (Swimmer) level works on perfection of all competitive strokes as well as lifesaving. The Porpoise works on advanced watersmanship.

After each level is completed, the students are given a National YMCA Award Card. Each class is 45 minutes long, and there will be a 12-1 student-instructor ratio.

Classes start this week, and information can be obtained at the North Suburban Y.

Water safety

Make your summer a little safer by attending an eight-hour aquatic safety program course at the North Suburban YMCA. Since no swimming skills are required, the whole family can participate.

The course will include instruction in the basic needs of aquatic safety at home, at the beach, and other recreational sites. This course is also a prerequisite for anyone wanting to take YMCA Senior lifesaving in the fall.

For further information, call the Y Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m., or stop by the Y at 137 Lexington st., Woburn.

Pre-school swimmers

Does your child know how to swim? Is your child water safe? These are very important thoughts for you to consider, since most children, even pre-schoolers, are exposed to water during the summer. All children should be WATER SAFE.

The North Suburban YMCA offers a variety of pre-school swimming lessons. The Water Baby course is for children nine months to toilet trained. The children learn to like the water and build the muscle strength needed for swimming. One parent must accompany the child in the water.

Mom & Tot is offered for three year olds up to first graders. Children learn to like the water, elementary water skills, and play under the supervision of an experienced instructor. One parent must accompany the child in the water.

The Small Fry program is designed for the pre-schooler three years of age to first grade who is a beginner or who cannot swim 35 feet with a flotation device.

In the Tiny Tot program the instructor works on more advanced aquatic skills than in the Small Fry program. The child should be able to swim 35 feet with a flotation device but without the assistance of an instructor. The child must be able to roll over to a back float. This course is designed for four years of age to first grade.

Advanced Tiny Tot is offered for children who are working on the crawl stroke, back stroke, diving and lifesaving. This program is for children who are four years to first grade and have completed the Tiny Tot level to the point where they are swimming and floating comfortably in the deep end of the pool without a flotation aid.

Classes start this week. For information call or drop by the North Suburban YMCA, 137 Lexington st., Woburn.

Town team joins Twilight Soccer for third season

Winchester has entered the Suburban Twilight Soccer League for the third year.

The team has been successful in past years, finishing third in its first year and first in its second year. And this year things are looking up, as the team has two wins already, having defeated Wakefield 2-1 and Woburn 3-0.

The team has been organized by Bob Salvucci, who is player-coach. There is no age limit in this league, making the competition very high. The Winchester team consists mostly of college players and those recently graduated.

They play Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6:15 and their home field is the Ambrose School field on High Street (The spectators' view is excellent).

Special Bloodmobile visit set July 14

Because of the shortage of blood in Massachusetts hospitals, the Winchester Chapter of Red Cross has scheduled a Bloodmobile visit at the Chapter House, 39 Church st. Wednesday, July 14, from 2 to 7.

This Bloodmobile visit is open to anyone eligible to donate. But William P. O'Connor, chapter blood chairman, emphasizes that it is time-saving to make an appointment.

"Walk-ins will be welcome," says O'Connor. "But you save time and confusion in handling the donors at a three-bed unit if you make an advance appointment by calling the Chapter House, 729-2300."

Hearthstone Foods for the biggest Fourth

By Elizabeth
Star Correspondent

The country's biggest Fourth of July in 200 years will be celebrated with flourishes of fireworks, frolics and foods all over the country.

Yankee traditionalists will serve steamed salmon, green peas and parsleyed new potatoes. Midwestern picnics will feature chicken, fresh corn, macaroni salad and strawberry shortcake. California and the Far West draws upon a fabulous array of fruits and vegetables and their Pacific seafoods.

I looked for a sampling of picnic recipes from Winchester cooks. EnKa member Mary Ann Crockett has prepared this traditional macaroni salad.

Macaroni Salad

Combine 1 pound cooked elbow macaroni with 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 cup vinegar, two teaspoons prepared mustard, one chopped onion, one chopped green pepper, three sticks chopped celery, one grated carrot, four chopped hard-boiled eggs, two cups mayonnaise, one can condensed milk.

Pattymac Hewitt contributed this barbecue sauce to a local cookbook.

Pattymac's Barbecue Sauce

2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons worcestershire
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/2 cup white cider vinegar

1/2 cup catsup
1/4 cup butter

Blend ingredients and bring to a boil. Then add one teaspoon each salt and curry powder 1/4 teaspoon black pepper and one teaspoon paprika. Use for spareribs, chicken, etc.

Marty Rondeau prepares this easy red bean relish for special occasions.

Red Bean Relish

2 cups red kidney beans (canned)
1 medium onion, ground
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon white horseradish
1 clove garlic, crushed
1/2 cup sweet relish

Dash or to taste of each:
dry mustard, worcestershire, salt, pepper
Rinse beans well. Drain for an hour and chill. Mix remaining ingredients. Add to drained beans and mix well.

Myra Fournier's carrot salad is a nice side-dish addition to a backyard picnic.

Myra's Carrot Salad

5 thin carrots, scraped
1 apple, peeled and cored
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
2 tablespoons sour cream
1/4 cup chopped walnuts

raisins
Grind carrots and apple separately in blender. Blend all ingredients and chill several hours before serving.

Orioles top Indians 6-5 in playoffs

In senior league playoff action, the National League Orioles defeated the American League Indians 6-5 at Manchester Field.

J.C. Forbes limited the Indians to four hits — two in the first and two in the seventh. John Rigney of the Indians only allowed the Orioles two hits after relieving in the first, but the Orioles took advantage of walks and errors and made their two hits count.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the first on a walk, a triple by Steve Wolfe, and a double by John Rigney. The Orioles came back to tie it in the bottom half of the inning with the help of five walks and a wild pitch.

In the third the Orioles took a 4-2 lead on two walks, two wild pitches and a single by Steve Smith. The Indians pulled to within one in the sixth when they scored via an error, two wild pitches and a fielder's choice.

But in the bottom of the sixth the Orioles went up 6-3. Brad Johnson walked and J.C. Forbes singled to left. Johnson scored when the ball went by the left fielder and minutes later Forbes scored on a wild pitch.

The Indians came back in the final inning but fell one run short. With one out Mario Alfano homered to left. Steve Wolfe doubled to center and later scored on a fielder's choice and an infield error. But Forbes got the last man to pop to short to end the game.

Rigney had nine strikeouts, Forbes had seven.

EPA delays $25,000 fine, cites progress on station

Although construction of the town's transfer station to replace the municipal incinerator has been delayed several weeks beyond the deadline set by the Environmental Protection Agency, the town is not in danger of receiving a $25,000 a day fine so long as it maintains its "adequate progress," according to attorney Leslie Carruthers of the enforcement division of the EPA.

"The town remains in violation of the EPA's order to complete construction of the transfer station by July 1," Ms. Carruthers said, "but Winchester has shown adequate progress in its schedule to allow the EPA to do nothing at this time."

Should there be a change in the progress of construction and phasing out of the incinerator, originally planned for July 15, then the EPA would have the authority to bring court action against the town.

Town Manager Thomas J. Groux responded to the latest EPA decision by saying that it "seems reasonable."

Selectmen had previously voted not to sign a consent agreement with the EPA, which would have given the town an extension on completion of construction work and at the same time would have denied the town the right to any possible claims against the EPA if that agency brought court action against the town.

As it stands now, August 1 is the target date for completion of the rubbish transfer station, with August 15 the date for closing the municipal incinerator for good.

Local officials blast state for numbers cash diversion

At a press conference called immediately after the announcement of legislative conference committee agreement on a new state budget that takes Numbers Game revenues away from cities and towns and puts them into the state budget, local officials described the move as "a body blow to local government," and asked the governor to return the budget to the legislature.

Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, president of the Massachusetts Mayors' Association (MMA) represented elected officials from cities and towns across the state in criticizing the move which, he said, will "set the scene for several of our older municipalities to go the route of New York."

"It is no longer a question of whether, but of when and how many," Mayor Mann stated. The mayor noted that the diversion of revenues will have an effect "not only this year but into the foreseeable future, inevitably resulting in increased local property taxes."

The municipal officials pointed out that the $20 million being diverted into the state coffers this year will be "totally inadequate" to balance a state budget of close to $4 billion, "but its loss will be severely felt at the local government level." In addition, the mayors, selectmen and city and town managers said, much of the pressure on local budgets is the result of state-mandated programs which cities and towns have no option but to fund.

"The action of the legislature will result in raising property tax rates in a state that already has the highest property tax rates in the nation," Mayor Mann stated, noting that this will further discourage economic investment in the state.

The municipal officials called on the governor to return the budget to the legislature "so that the majority wishes of legislators not to divert the Numbers Game monies can be voted on without being thwarted by last minute maneuvers."

Among the local officials present were President Richard Moore of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association, President Richard Leary of the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns, President William Kennedy of the Massachusetts Municipal Management Association and Alfred Emerson, Jr., member of the Board of Directors of the Association of Town Finance Committees and Deputy Mayor Edward Sullivan of Boston.

41 opt out-of-district under open enrollment

For the first year of open enrollment, 41 parents have chosen to send their elementary school children to out-of-district schools.

A report was submitted to the school committee June 15 by Superintendent William MacDonald, who said there were "few surprises" in the response to the program.

All the applications have been accommodated, and according to the report, the transfers will require only slight changes in staffing, and even those changes "will involve aides, and no teacher transfers will be necessary."

Ambrose School drew the most applicants with 18. Wyman lost the most with 15 students transferring out.

Noting that this is the program's first go around, the report asks the school board to "recognize that the first year in a new program is unpredictable and there may be a few parents who will have second thoughts."

The report refers to the possibility of school closings, stating that the progress of open enrollment "may be further complicated by the uncertainty of the future of all nine elementary schools."

Applications for the transfers included a waiver of transportation rights, but the position of the state on the matter is unclear. Despite this uncertainty, the board voted 4-1 to implement the plan.

The transfers break down as follows:

Ambrose: out—1; in—18.
Lincoln: out—7; in—1.
Muraco: out—4; in—0.
Mystic: out—1; in—5.
Noonan: out—2; in—3.
Parkhurst: out—11; in—1.
Vinson-Owen: out—0; in—11.
Washington: out—0; in—0.
Wyman: out—15; in—2.

Saraco installed Lions president

The Winchester Lions Club held their 22nd installation of officers June 28th at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge in Woburn. In attendance were guests and friends of the membership.

Installed as the 22nd president was Board of Health Director of Winchester, Michael D. Saraco. He has been an active member of the club for 20 years, during which time he has participated in the club's many activities which he plans to continue while instituting some new programs. Installing officer was Past District Governor Bill Bloom of Wakefield.

Also installed that evening were:
Seated at the head table were: Installing officer Bill Bloom; outgoing President Michael Luise; Incoming President Michael Saraco; Secretary Frederick MacDonald; and Treasurer Nicholas Tierno.

Outgoing President Michael Luise thanked the members for a very successful season of projects and activities and is looking forward to seeing them at all the summer activities and cookouts. Meetings are scheduled to be held at Randall's Restaurant.

Called 'precipitate' action

Parents, students heard, ask school board to defer scheduling of WHS periods

Reacting to public pressure and to extensive arguments favoring the eight period day offered by students at their last meeting, the Winchester School Committee agreed to hold a special meeting on the question in order to hear the public out.

Student representatives Brian Tarbox and Dale Bearden attempted a systematic refutation of the major school board arguments behind the recent switch to a seven period day. They were backed up by former School Committee Member Richard Pharo, who pleaded with the committee to merely "consider the possibility of discussing a deferral."

Conveyor set for shutdown at the dump

Beginning Monday the exterior conveyor system at the municipal incinerator will be shut down to allow relocation for the new transfer station. The belt will remain shut until the transfer station is completed. All rubbish must be dumped into the pit.

According to Vic Karalan of the permanent building committee, a certain amount of inconvenience will be inevitable and residents are urged to time their trips to the dump to avoid busy times like Saturdays.

The school committee decided at its meeting June 30 to hear out the public on the issue of a seven versus an eight period day at the high school.

However the hearing was scheduled too late for notification in The Star; and the meeting was held last night, too late for us to cover it for this week's issue.

Though it was not on the written agenda for last week's meeting, the seven versus the eight period day issue was foremost in the minds of the crowd that showed up for the last regular school committee meeting until August.

Dr. Pharo rose right at the start to ask Chairlady Mary Pronski if he could address the board on the subject of delaying implementation of the seven period day at the high school.

Mrs. Pronski ruled the former school board chairman out of order and silenced others, who were raising their voices to be recognized, by several firm raps of her gavel.

Tarbox, the regular student representative to the school committee, quoted a 1973 school committee statement of philosophy which said that the "key concepts" of education at the high school are "freedom and responsibility." Tarbox indicated that the seven period day would greatly restrict academic freedom and individual responsibility at the high school.

Bearden, a 1976 graduate of the high school, presented the committee with a step-by-step breakdown of how students use their free time at the high school. He claimed that the figures used by Mrs. Pronski in her initial argument against the eight period day were "misleading, even though they were accurate."

Those figures estimate that with the present staff of 73 and an eight period schedule, there will be 59 sections outside the regular classroom each day (with an average of 25 students per section). The majority of the committee had questioned to what constructive purpose were students putting all that free time.

Relying on current figures and "conservative" estimates, Bearden ran through the various uses of free time at the high school and concluded that all but five sections of the 59 were definitely being put to good use.

He estimated that the general student work-study program, scheduled to begin this coming September with close to 70 students participating, would amount to twelve sections worth of student time.

School Committeeman Jack Noble pointed out that since some teacher supervision is involved in the afternoon work sessions, they may not all fit into the category of "free time."

Bearden went on to list other uses of free

Canoe trip, picnic set for Mystic Conference

On Saturday, July 17, a canoe trip will take place on the Mystic combined with a picnic and discussion of how runoff from streets, lawns and other surfaces contributes to pollution of the water in the Mystic basin.

The event is sponsored by the Mystic River Watershed Association and the Metropolitan Area Planning Council. It is part of the MAPC Water Quality Project which has a two year grant from the Environmental Protection Agency to prepare plans for cleaning up the water in the Mystic basin and other basins in the Boston metropolitan area.

Dr. Jerome Carr of Carr Associates will be the featured speaker. He will discuss the problem of urban runoff and how it affects our water. Then he will present a range of possible solutions to the problem. Dr. Carr has extensive background in managing water resources. He will be joined by Mr. Nolan Jones, chairman of the Winchester Conservation Commission, who will talk about the problem of runoff from road salting.

Agency officials will also participate in the workshop. Mr. Alfred Ferullo, director of the MDC Division of Environmental Quality, will present the division's perspective on the problem and will be available to answer questions. Members of the MAPC water quality staff and agency officials from EPA will participate in the discussion. The State Division of Water Pollution Control will probably also be represented.

Members of boards of selectmen and aldermen and city council members in the communities of the basin are being invited to participate.

"It is vital that we all work together if we are going to improve the water of our basin. This includes concerned citizens, businessmen, town and city officials, and agency workers. We hope to see all groups well represented," commented Ruth Caplan, the MRWA program coordinator.

The canoe trip will begin at 10 a.m. on the Upper Mystic Lake just north of Sandy Beach which can be reached by a parking road off Mystic Valley Parkway. The canoe route will follow the Mystic Lakes to the Mystic River and follow the river to the MDC Condon Music

Shell in Medford. At the shell there will be a "bring your own" picnic with a beverage provided. This will be followed by the workshop on urban runoff beginning around 1:30 p.m.

If people would like to participate but do not own or have access to a canoe, they should call Ruth Caplan at the Mystic River Watershed office (646-5305) or write to the office at 36 Crawford St., Arlington, 02174. She must know by July 13 at the latest if you need space or if you have extra space in your canoe.

The raindate is Sunday, July 18, same time. Information regarding postponement can be obtained by calling the MRWA office on Saturday morning, July 17.

From the looks of things, Bonnie Ripley's in such a hurry she might even leave her tongue behind: where's she headed to, racing across Ginn Field during Field Day last week?

This is where Bonnie ends up: a face full of flour from the lifesaver dip (a dry version of the ol' apple bob) and a handful of goodies.

time, and the concomitant number of sections of student time, including:

— Seventy students involved five times a week in the MaxEd program: six sections per day;

— Seventy students using a half-period five times a week for the guidance program: one section;

— Guidance groups: four sections;

— Advanced placement chemistry: one section;

— Seventy-five students using typing facilities each day: three sections;

— Twenty-five students per day using facilities in the art department: one section;

— At least 25 students involved with WHSR-FM every day: one section;

— One hundred students meeting three to four periods a week for independent chemistry: three sections;

— A potential of 146 students being tutored by teachers (estimated through an informal poll of teachers taken by Tarbox and Bearden): six sections;

— Seventy-three students tutoring 73 others in the National Honor Society tutoring program two or three times a week: three sections;

— Biology labs involving 25 students a day: one section;

— An estimated 300 students using the library every day (Bearden cut the library's own estimate of 600 in half): 12 sections.

These figures reduced the total number of sections of free student time per day to five, amounting to just over one percent of the total student population at the high school not involved in some form of formal activity or utilizing some part of the high school's facilities. Bearden noted that his total did not include time spent using the facilities of the music, home economics and industrial arts departments.

With the switch to the seven period schedule, Bearden estimated that 12 sections of the new work-study program would have to be dropped and that programs in chemistry and biology and the operation of the radio station would be adversely affected.

The numbers indicate that with a seven period day and the general student program at the high school, the school will in effect be overstaffed. Bearden therefore concluded that, "The issue the committee voted on before was a false one."

Dr. Pharo expressed his concern over the "problem of the precipitous manner" in which the shift to seven periods was made. He questioned whether the administration had considered other alternatives and asked the committee, "What is the real effect of the change on extra-curricular activities? Has there been any attempt to study it?"

Pharo added that the music director had indicated that there may be a 50 percent reduction in orchestra and band participation and an even greater cut in chorus and the jazz band.

He noted that a number of parents were considering taking their children out of the high school because of "the uncertainty of what will be available at the school next year."

Advocates of the eight period day have argued that some 15 students will not be able to make up necessary credits and graduate

MacDonald offers new plan to aid WHS traffic problems

After hearing arguments from Nelson street residents complaining about traffic problems behind the high school, Superintendent of Schools William MacDonald has come up with a new plan for parking at the school.

Residents from the high school area had been complaining for some time about reckless and high-speed driving on the streets behind the school at dismissal time.

MacDonald's plan, presented to the school board at their June 15 meeting, recommended the following:

That both exits onto Nelson street from the lot behind the gym be sealed off and that next year under the seven period schedule. Both the school committee and the high school administration deny this.

However Dr. Pharo said the seven period decision came on such short notice that few had time to rearrange their plans for the summer to include summer school, and he noted that the high school does not give credit for night courses.

Lastly, Pharo argued that programs to be implemented by students and the recently revived CONCERN group for dealing with discipline problems at the high school were designed around the eight period schedule.

The school board made no formal reply to Tarbox, Bearden and Dr. Pharo; however Board Member Robert Frank insisted that the issue demanded a greater public hearing and requested that a special meeting be held to discuss the issue with the public.

Committeewoman Constance Papas agreed with Frank, and the committee decided to meet again last night; because of personal scheduling problems the meeting could not be held tonight or Monday night.

parking in the lots next to the tennis courts be limited to staff;

That the lot closest to St. Mary's have one entrance blocked off entirely, with the other access closed after four o'clock;

That speed bumps be placed in the road leading from the back lots out to Skillings road;

And that the area in front of the school, running alongside Skillings road, be open for visitor parking.

MacDonald conceded that his plan would probably require the presence of police officers for traffic control at dismissal time.

A contingent of concerned parents and other residents from the high school area had shown up at an earlier school board meeting to register their complaints with the board.

"Forget the noise and the harassment," said one resident, "There's just no reason why the Nelson street residents should have to put up daily with this kind of physical danger."

The superintendent's original plan had been to reorganize the parking with a sticker system. The plan was to be enforced by towing at the owner's expense, however there was some question as to the legality of such a policy.

The school board deferred action on the June 15 plan until later in the summer while the superintendent investigates the costs of laying down the speed bumps and carving more visitor parking space out in front of the school.

$1692 decrease*Winchester's share of costs at Northeast down this year

Winchester's share of the cost for operating the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School decreased by $1692 this year, amounting to $112,212. This decrease comes in spite of a total budget increase of 4.9 per cent.

This year's assessment was revealed in a report to town meeting presented by Gerard P. Donahoe, Winchester's representative to the district school committee.

Winchester has 66 students attending the regular day program and seven students in the post secondary program. The town's total assessment is based on these 73 students.

There are 39 applicants for 25 seats for this coming September.

The evening program increased from 71 Winchester residents in 1974 to 89 this year (37 in the spring of 1975, 52 in the fall).

There are only 11 students in the late afternoon program at the school. According to Donahoe's report, "The late afternoon program, now in its third year, is not being utilized by Winchester. Winchester's quota is 17 this year, it was 19 in 1973 and 19 in 1974. We should have 55 students in this program instead of 11."

Students in the afternoon program receive academic instruction at Winchester High School and vocational training at Northeast. Donahoe says that the town is paying for the seats it does not fill, even though the seats are filled by applicants from other communities. Donahoe has made unsuccessful motions at district school committee meetings for a "fair share" plan and has discussed the problem with the selectmen and town counsel. His conclusion is that "the only answer is to file litigation."

He also suggests that the late afternoon program may be one of the answers to Chapter 766 in the near future.

The school serves Winchester in other ways as well. Northeast provides pool time for Winchester's swim teams at no cost to the town. In addition, it provides scheduling and back-up on their computer.

Other services include printing for the public schools and services to the Winchester Fire Department, Recreation Department, elderly, and many community organizations.

Of the school's placement record, Donahoe reports: "I am pleased to report that the demands for Northeast's graduates remain constant even though unemployment in Massachusetts has caused considerable hiring uncertainty. The reputation of Northeast, the quality of its instruction, and the competence of its graduates is reaching an ever-widening circle of friends."

Of those graduating with the class of 1975, 65.3 per cent are employed in trade; 8.1 per cent are employed outside of trade; 10.5 per cent are continuing their education; and 4.6 per cent have chosen military service.

Caples to run for county office

At a series of meetings throughout Middlesex County, former Commissioner of Public Safety and the State Police Richard Robert Caples of Weston, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner.

In opening his campaign, Caples stressed the "need for public awareness of the 'power structure' of county government, and the fact that if we are too burdened with this extra layer of government then it is our responsibility to make it work as efficiently as possible. It is vital that we take the necessary steps to modernize and vitalize county government. Their first step is to make the commissioners more responsive to the electorate, by regionalizing the county into geographical and social areas, and having one commissioner elected from that area." He discussed his support for 'home rule' for counties, and providing an opportunity for referendum questions on establishing a county legislative body, or the use of a full time administrative professional.

In citing his background and qualifications, Caples pointed out that his eight years in the Mass. House of Representatives and four years in the Mass. Senate, service in the governor's office as legislative secretary, four years as assistant attorney general, and his administrative service as commissioner of public safety and the State Police provides him with an in depth knowledge of all phases of government.

He pointed out as examples, his advocating and advancing the new State Police Academy at Framingham, which provides the most modern and up to date training for local police departments as well as providing continuing education for the State Police. Caples further cited the innovation of the State Police promotional system, which took politics out of advancement and substituted ability and professionalism. In conclusion, Caples stated "I am confident that with my legislative, executive, administrative and legal background that I will provide the citizens of Middlesex County with a dedicated tenure for reforming and modernizing county government."

The politicians vs. us

They've done it again.

The politicians have dipped into the pot and pulled out cash that should be going to the cities and towns.

It was almost predictable. In fact, when they were talking about legislation to allow the lottery in this state, the pols were full of the happy news of the day of financial deliverance for the hard-pressed municipalities — if only the people would acquiesce and go along with their stand and support them.

Well, the people did. And monies were forthcoming from the lottery. But it didn't do the job. It was supposed to have been applied to reduction of property taxes; more like spitting in the ocean. Well, all right, so much for that. At least the funds derived from the weekly lottery are still going to the cities and towns, as was the original intent.

But now, the politicians got to work early on this one, interrupting their quest for their pay raise (voted while their and our employees, the state workers, were on strike for more money), and their legislative conference committee agreed to take the Numbers Game (that's the daily one) and divert its revenues from the cities and towns and tuck them into the state budget to be orchestrated there by the state-elected politicians.

Immediately after the legislators announced this in Boston, local officials called a press conference and called it "a body blow to local government." They asked Governor Dukakis to return the budget to the legislature.

This move on Beacon Hill inspired Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, president of the Massachusetts Mayors' Association, to declare that it will "set the scene for several of our older municipalities to go the route of New York." As everyone knows, New York was in the clutches of bankruptcy, ready to go down the drain.

"It is no longer a question of whether, but of when and how many," he said.

Mayor Mann was speaking as a representative of elected officials of cities and towns, including Winchester, when he said that the diversion of funds will have an effect "not only this year but into the foreseeable future," and will inevitably result in increased local property taxes.

Mayor Mann was joined in his criticism by the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association, the League of Cities and Towns, the Municipal Management Association, and the Association of Town Finance Committees.

They say, and with justification, that the "$20 million being diverted into the state coffers this year will be totally inadequate to balance a state budget of close to $4 billion, but its loss will be severely felt at the local government level."

They charge that much of the pressure on local budgets is the result of state-mandated programs over which cities and towns have no control and which they furthermore have no options but to fund.

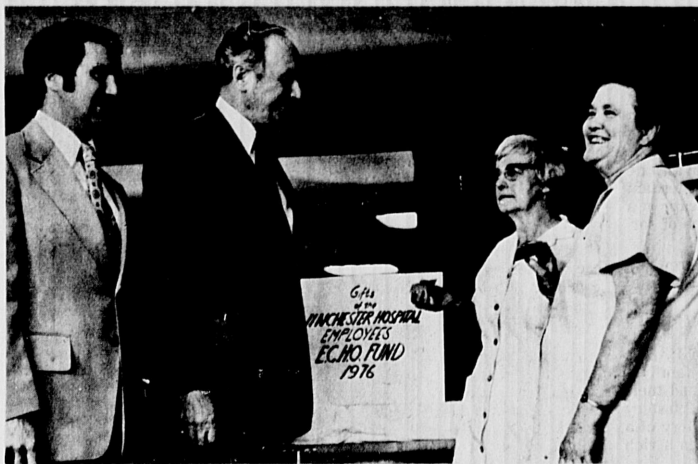

Massachusetts, of course, has the highest property tax rates in the country, and they will go even higher because of the latest action of the legislature, according to Mann, who feels that this will also discourage economic investment in this state. And we all know that we are having trouble on that score even without an assist from the legislature.

If Governor Dukakis really wants to do something for the people of this state, he should return the budget to the legislature "so that the majority wishes of legislators not to divert the Numbers Game monies can be voted on without being thwarted by last-minute maneuvers."

As for the weekly lottery itself, it has worked well for nearly every city and town in the state and has, for the most part, provided what was promised: Revenues funneled into the treasuries of the municipalities that support it. There were many dire predictions before The Game became a reality that it would hurt the poor people who would gamble away what little money they had, but those dark forebodings did not come to pass.

The weekly lottery's integrity has been impeccable from the first day. While we have no question about the same for the daily Numbers Game, which is after all, run by the same people, we find it highly regrettable that the state's lawmakers don't find it suitable to follow the same pattern of distribution of its funds. — J.R.S.

Reasoned discussion

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the Winchester School Committee:

Again last Wednesday there was an attempted discussion of the seven period day issue at the Sanborn House. Frustration was apparent to all.

The only agreement was that it would be correct to talk one more time. And this is good. Hopefully people will prepare themselves so that we can talk on a common basis.

The proponents of the seven period day speak forcefully of increased classroom time for each student. The opponents, including myself, see a major reduction in the available options and courses for a substantial number of students. Yet neither side has clearly presented its case in the terms of "the way it is" and "the way it will be."

In early 1975 the school committee published high school enrollment statistics for the 1974-75 year. There were 1283 enrolled in English, 959 in foreign language, 1096 in mathematics, 1294 in social studies, 937 in science, 195 in home economics, 353 in business, 338 in industrial arts, 228 in art, and 160 in music. The total enrollment was 1321.

There are question marks in 1975-76 and 1976-77 enrollment figures.

I believe a presentation of similar data would remove the conjecture and rumor now apparent in all of these discussions.

Certainly most reasonable people would accept a one per cent reduction in course enrollments for a ten per cent gain in classroom time. However, denying 400 students their options for specific courses and the inherent reduction in the utilization of the facilities of the high school seem to be unwarranted reductions in Winchester education.

Let this be a request for facts and reasoned discussion.

Awful cake

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We tried your recipe that was in your June 17 edition. You should have tried it first. It should not have been first place in the baking contest. We wasted much money on an awful cake! And lots of time! I feel that I can't trust The Winchester Star now.

James Wagner
2 Gardner pl.

(Ed.'s note: - It wasn't The Star's recipe in the first place. In the second place, all recipes are for testing. It's all a matter of taste.)

Hungry people

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

After watching (on channel 7) our great celebration on the Fourth of July with Walter Cronkite, I wonder why a great country like ours who can put on a great show like this, can condone the poverty in our great country.

Do you realize how many people go to bed hungry each night?

Don't say it's their own fault, let them get a job (where), you say. If so, it's a menial job with after-tax not enough money left to pay bills. This is discouraging for any head of the house, when you figure $20 per head to eat, or you're not eating right. For a family of four, $75 or $80 per week for food, with utilities going up each year, rents going up all over, how can our people be happy?

Sit in front of any supermarket and watch the people and see the scowls on the young folks' faces when they come out after paying their bills.

Hope things will be better next year for everyone, including our elderly.

Louise Chase

P.S. Some have a scowl on their faces when they go in when bread is 69 cents a large loaf, 50 cents for a quart of milk, 79 cents for five pounds of potatoes. All things needed for good health, wouldn't you say?

Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank many people for the cooperation and assistance they have given me over the past 29 years. I have served as superintendent of the Winchester Park Department.

I especially want to express my appreciation to all the town departments and the Town Hall clerical staffs, and in particular the town engineer and his staff for their help on many special projects we have undertaken.

Also the Mahoney Brothers and Edgar C. Thompson, landscape supervisor, of the Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery for their very generous donations of shrubs and trees which have added to the beautification of the town, especially the plantings of the War Memorial, the Center Rotary, and various parks and playgrounds. Many other organizations and clubs in town have also donated generously to the beautification of the town.

To the various members of the Board of Park Commissioners under whom I have served, many thanks for their advice and assistance over the years.

And most important of all, I would like to say thank you to each and every one of the Park Department employees who have made my years as superintendent so gratifying and rewarding.

Sincere thanks again to all who have helped me in countless ways to beautify the Town of Winchester!

Herbert S. "Babe" Mullen

World's champ

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am still getting what is known nowadays as "feed-back" from my recent letters on four-leaf (and other multiple) variables in the clover family.

I do not know who is listed in Mr. Guinness's "Book of World Records" as the Champion 4-leaf Clover Finder of the whole world, but I have a likely candidate for the honor who lives quietly right here in Winchester.

I once thought I was the only person ever to find a seven-leafed specimen, but since my first letter on this subject I have been obliged to assume a more modest posture in this regard. I now know of four, including myself, Ruth Thompson, Phoebe Tisdale, and a brand

Town watch...

Airing the school issue

By The Observer

The results of the Civil Service Police Chief's exam are finally out — several weeks later than expected, but Town Manager Thomas J. Groux does not expect to make an appointment for another two or three weeks.

"We have to wait until certification is complete," he said. "The men have a right to appeal the scores and we have to wait until the time for doing that has passed."

Meanwhile Lt. William Haggerty continues on as acting chief.

Winchester has a Herstool! Firefighters were trained in its use Tuesday, but everyone hopes we'll never need to see the "Jaws of Life" in action.

The Kiwanis Club has been working for months to raise money to buy this tool and they still don't have enough. Purchase of the tool was possible, however, with 30 days to make payment.

According to John J. Mercurio of the Kiwanis, "we are still $1000 short of the total needed. We hope we can call an end to the fund drive sometime in the middle of the month," he said, "but we still have to come up with that $1000."

We are optimistic that the town will rally round and make that last push for a tool which could save any one of our lives. Every penny and every dollar count.

* * *

Where was everybody when the VFW put on their annual July 4 field day at McDonald field?

There was ice cream for 1500 kids and maybe 200 showed up. The Observer even saw one boy say he couldn't possibly eat another ice cream — he'd had four already!

There were acts and a show for the kids, some much-needed shade under some trees for the parents, a fire engine ride and a couple of contests. Were you all recovering from the happenings at the Esplanade?

For awhile Tuesday afternoon it appeared that there was a special problem at Wedge Pond, when bathers were ordered out of the water by the lifeguards. However, it turned out that a Waltham biological control company wanted to inject 120 pounds of a granular substance into the water to bring the growth of algae under control. Its arrival at this time was a surprise to the health department, but not to the recreation people.

At any rate, swimmers would only have to remain out of the water for an hour at most, and the problem has been resolved. So happy bathing, everyone. It seems that the bio people were coming back with their chemical now as an IOU on last fall. They were supposed to put it into the pond then, but it was not needed. So they called the recreation office last week, they said, and informed them that they would be around to do the job Tuesday. Bathing, of course, will be happy to know they won't have to slither around in that green scum, or algae.

After all the uproar, the school committee has finally decided that the public ought to be heard on the issue of a seven versus an eight period schedule at the high school.

After a petition signed by hundreds of parents, after debates and long attempts at unraveling the facts of the case. Of course it's now July: Chairlady Mary Pronski is "unavailable" for the month and many of the administrators are about to take off for long-awaited vacations.

It seems unlikely there will be any change. The committee is not really an ill-tempered ogre, nor an ill-intentioned political body; but their refusal to hear people out and answer questions has done little for their image in the public eye.

They should make their policies and meeting procedures more readily available to the public (copies in the public library would help), so that when controversial issues arise, proper procedures for discussion and debate can be followed, giving all sides a chance for a fair hearing.

Letting an issue fry in mid-summer heat is no way to settle what is really a question of educational philosophy that eventually affects us all, in or out of the high school.

In the mood...

Some after-Fourth reflections

By Karen Whittlesey-First

Now that you've recovered from the hot dog, watermelon, beer, and potato salad orgy of the last few days, maybe it's appropriate to think about a few bicentennial (I know, I know) items of inner interest.

There were hundreds of thousands of people at the Esplanade, which some of us are joyfully aware of, and yet there were only a few instances of illegal activity. Illegal activity like beer drinking and weed smoking and using the grass as a public restroom facility. The MDC were clever in not trying to control these few, insignificant technicalities.

There was something else going on there, though. You may have been there. Or maybe you watched it on television.

There was a sense of love and patriotism that a year of bicentennial toothpaste and wastebaskets and plastic toilet seat covers couldn't mar. It's as though suddenly the country said, "Hey, we're all right. We've had our bad, even tragic moments, but we're okay after all."

All across the country there was this spirit of oneness with each other. There were strangers shaking hands and voices singing patriotic songs and they didn't laugh with embarrassment.

There's still a long, long way to go. The newspapers of the future, as envisioned by the Boston Globe and Herald last weekend, show us the way we may very well be. It's not all bad. It's not all good.

The Rev. John Bishop spoke eloquently at the 1776 service at the Church of the Epiphany Sunday about the double standard prevalent in our feelings about morality. We find immorality on a public level a disgrace, witness Watergate and the recent Congressional doings, but we condone it on a personal level.

Perhaps the most revealing statement Mr. Bishop made was in reference to our smug little town.

He said, in effect, as far as acceptance of racial and class differences, Winchester misses the mark by a long shot.

Think about it. Where can we, in our hearts and in our actions, do something to carry the feeling of the bicentennial further than just to the Esplanade? How can we make sure that the next one hundred years will turn out better than the past two hundred?

We will each need to look inside ourselves. We've seen, ever so briefly this past weekend, that we can be brothers and sisters.

Don't let the bicentennial spirit die in Winchester.

Baking champ candid chap

One blue ribbon winner in the Town Day Bake Contest doesn't fit any baking contest stereotype. First prize for best cookies in the youth division was awarded to Peter Mulvaney, 7, of 10 Stratford rd.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Mulvaney is a poised young man who will be turning eight on Aug. 27, a few days before he enters third grade at Wyman School.

He is also candid. When asked why he entered the contest he said "My mother forced me." He also admitted that he was thrilled when his favorite family cookie recipe was awarded the top prize.

Although his mother admitted to assembling the ingredients Peter read, measured, mixed, fashioned and baked the cookies without further help.

Peter wasn't the only young male entered among the 52 contestants. John Boyle, 13, of 64 Oxford st., placed third in the youth cake recipe category for his chocolate chip dessert cake.

Ten-year-old Drew Bainsfather was among the entries in the Youth division with his chocolate chip dream bars.

Peter's Viennese Crescents

1 cup unsalted butter
3/4 cup confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
pinch salt
2 one-third cups all-purpose flour
1 two-thirds cups finely ground pecans
1/4 cup sifted powdered sugar for dusting

Using electric mixer cream butter and sugar. Mix in vanilla and salt. Stir in flour by hand, then nuts. Chill several hours. Roll dough into tiny logs about two inches long. Arrange two inches apart on cookie sheet, bending the ends to form crescents. Bake at 350 degrees about 12 to 15 minutes. Sift powdered sugar lightly over cookies.

Chocolate chips star in the batter and topping of John Boyle's easy dessert cake.

Chocolate Chip Cake

2 cups Bisquick
two-thirds cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg

1/2 pkg. (3 oz.) chocolate chips
Mix Bisquick, sugar, milk and egg. Beat until well blended. Stir in chips. Turn into a greased 9-inch square pan. Top with prepared topping.

Chocolate Chip Topping
one-third cup Bisquick
one-third cup sugar
one-fourth cup firm butter

one-half pkg. (3oz.) chocolate chips.
Mix Bisquick and sugar. Cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in chips. Sprinkle over batter in pan. Bake cake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve warm or cold with or without whipped cream.

new member of our fraternity, Mr Edwin Berg, of 26 Dunster rd, who tops us all, and is my nominee for the World's Championship. He says that he has, twice in his lifetime, found nine-leafed clovers: The first one he froze into a block of ice, to preserve it, but he loaned it to a neighbor who forgot that ice melts and left it out of the freezer too long. The ice melted and left nothing but a green blurb where the clover leaf had been!

The second one he found was the one he showed me. I brought my camera up to his home because, to be honest about it, I had serious doubts about the whole thing; either he could not count straight, or he was seeing double! In either case, I wanted a photographic record of the phenomenon.

Well it turned out that Ed could count, all right.

He led me to a place in his back yard where, in the shade of an apple tree, the clover grew. The grass has been mowed a long time ago, but owing to the driest June on record had grown but little since, and was still short. The clovers in the grass, however, had grown a little on their own, and now stood above the short grass. One leaf cluster stood about five inches straight up, erect as a daisy and looking something like a green daisy on a stem as thick as the stem of a daisy, and with a leaf cluster as flat as that of a daisy. All the petioles grew out of the top of the stem, nine of them, with five below and four above, all touching, top and bottom, and it was evident that their original alignment had been quite symmetrical.

Unfortunately, some of the leaflets on one side had been clipped slightly by the passing lawn mower at one time, and some of the others had been nibbled by insects, but there could be no doubt about it whatsoever; it was a nine-leaver all right!

I took two pictures. The roll is a new one, and the pics will have to wait until it has all been exposed, but when that time comes I hope to have proof of what I saw.

Before I left Ed pointed to another plant not three feet away from the first, where I picked and brought home one six and two fours. I have them now, in a jar with water.

Incidentally, Ed says that he has found 4s, 5s, 6s, 7s, and 8s, but no 8s! Neither have I, nor anyone else I know of. Maybe the 8s may prove to be a "missing link" in this numerical chain! If anyone ever does find one, I would like to see it!

Volunteers thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On behalf of the residents and staff of the Fernald School, I would like to express our sincere thanks to all those concerned people who offered their services as volunteers during the recent state employees strike.

The response from the community was overwhelming. It is heartening to know that in a crisis situation there are so many individuals who are willing to give of their time to lend a hand.

I hope many of your readers will consider volunteering at Fernald on a regular basis. We have many varied programs any one of which could be of interest. Please keep us in mind. Thank you once again.

Belmont Springs Water Company, Inc.

"100 Years of Continual Service"

W. Lindsay Harper, president of the Belmont Springs Water Company Inc.

The exterior of the bottling plant, surrounded by the Belmont Country Club.

Crated five-gallon bottles of spring water are shipped by the company's fleet of trucks as far as Manchester, N.H.

Several of the Belmont Springs Water Company's delivery trucks, lined up after a long day's work.

Belmont Springs Water Inc., the town's oldest continuing business, is celebrating its 100th anniversary. From the days when the spring was frequented by Indians, it has filled many functions in Belmont life.

In the 1870's and '80's the spring was a popular Sunday afternoon excursion for Bostonians. The proprietor, George H. Cotton, even supplied patrons with a silver dipper with which to drink the water.

A golf course and then a country club grew up around the springs in the early part of the 20th century. During World War II 10,000 gallons of Belmont Spring water were hermetically sealed in cans every week. These cans were packed in Navy vessels' lifeboats.

Tests made in 1943 identified the water as the purest in the northeastern United States. The sample was identical with one made 50 years before at the same spring.

The business continues today on a 2.3 acre landlocked site in the middle of the Belmont Country Club. Company president W. Lindsay Harper employs 50 workers with an annual payroll of $800,000. Sales this year will reach $3,300,000.

Eighty percent of the Springs' 16,000 customers are businesses, with the rest of the water going to private homes. For $2.50 a five-gallon bottle, Belmont Springs will deliver the water to customers as far away as Manchester, N.H.

The fleet of 13 trucks carries half a million bottles per year. President Harper reports that even though the water comes from up through 220 feet of solid rock and is completely sealed off from the outside air, it is still tested daily and sent to an outside lab twice a week.

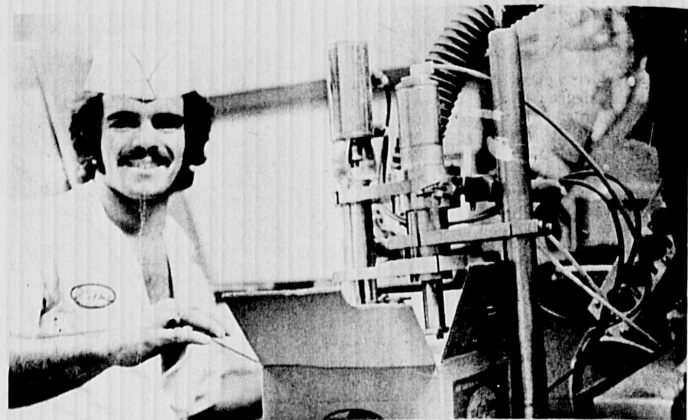

"We feel the advantage to your health is that the water is pure. We don't have to add any chemicals. And even though we can't claim, as they do in Europe, that it will make you well, we can claim that it won't make you sick," he says.

Bernice Engdahl is the mainstay of the data processing department at the Springs.

Domenic Spenolia is the grand old man of the employees, having worked for Belmont Springs Water Company for 46 years.

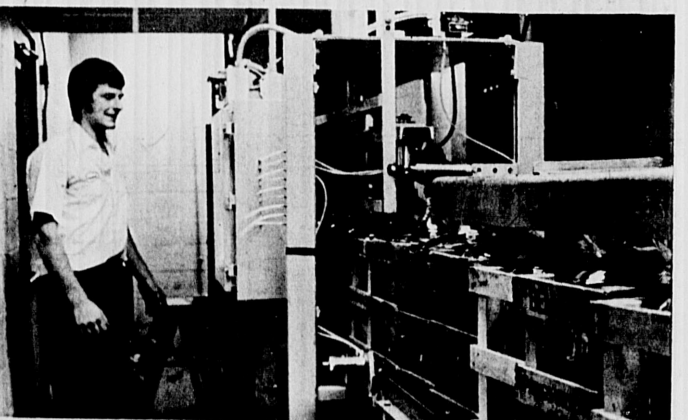

Helder Perry fills sterile cartons with distilled water. Water from Belmont Springs is used by laboratories all over the country.

Karen Dion and Theresa Corliss are busy at work in the main offices of the company. Administrative offices are located over the bottling plant itself.

Lou Annuciata hoists a five-gallon bottle of Springs water while Rick Cashman shows a more relaxed attitude.

Five-gallon bottles move down a conveyor to the pumps as Ed Patterson looks on. Six bottles are pumped full every 20 seconds out of the hermetically-sealed spring.

Ms. Needleman in running for clerk of courts

"There is too much power in the hands of the present Clerk of Courts," said Joan Rines Needleman, who has announced her candidacy for the position of Middlesex County Clerk of Courts.

"My candidacy for this position will offer the voters an alternative," she said. "For the first time in twelve years, they will have an opportunity to overthrow the long domination of Middlesex County by the Sullivan machine."

A lawyer who possesses, in addition, a doctorate degree in mathematics education, Dr. Needleman is also deeply concerned with the 5-6 year delay in civil cases in the Superior Court of Middlesex County, a constantly expressed source of frustration to judges and career professionals in the court.

"I am convinced that there must be a change in the status quo to permit effective introduction and operation of basic management techniques," she explained.

"The success of the new Rules of Procedure recently adopted by the courts in order to provide the public with speedier trials at lower cost will depend upon the training of, and the concern with which they are administered by the personnel of the clerk's office."

"A new clerk of courts, with a legal background and capable of supervising the retraining of personnel, can take the operation of the courts out of the political arena and restore efficient service to all clients and attorneys on equal terms."

Dr. Needleman pledges herself, if elected, to cooperate with the judiciary's goal of developing professional accountability in the court system.

She considers that her past activities uniquely qualify her to carry out this pledge.

"I offer the public a background of law, administration, mathematical techniques, experience in budget analysis and personnel selection and evaluation, hard work and a proven selfless dedication to public service," she stated.

A teacher for many years, she has also served two terms on the Newton School Committee. She is a member of many professional, civic and charitable organizations and has held office in several of them.

Mrs. Needleman, who holds a degree from Smith College, as well as graduate degrees from Radcliffe, Northeastern University and Boston University, comes from a family of lawyers. Her mother was a graduate of Boston University Law School. Her father is David Rines, well-known Boston patent attorney, and she is the sister of Dr. Robert H. Rines, Dean of the Franklin Pierce Law Center in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Needleman lives with her husband, Robert, at 80 Puritan rd., Newton. Their two children, Lucy and Barry, are both teachers.

Thomas Rossi announces for council seat

Thomas Francis Rossi has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Governor's Council from the sixth district. Rossi is a lifelong resident of this district. When asked why he was running for this position, Rossi stated, "I care."

"As a concerned citizen I want to bring state government to the people, let their voices be heard and acknowledged concerning the manner in which their state taxes are being used."

For example: No more closed meetings; open forums at convenient locations; direct confrontation by the people and the press.

"The majority of people do not do no realize the major decisions made by the Governor's Council. I want to make them aware of these issues before they are decided upon so they may have their say. The people need a fighter. Someone who will not bend to whim. In the next few months, I hope they will get to know me and what I stand for. I am a man of the people and for the people."

Know Your Governor's Council! He is your voice, make sure your voice is heard.

Former aide in race for Macdonald's House seat

Joe Croken

Joseph E. Croken, administrative assistant to the late Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald, had announced his decision to be a candidate for Congress from the 7th Congressional District. Croken has submitted 6,000 signatures for certification to the city and town clerks in the 7th Congressional District.

Born in South Boston, Croken has resided in Malden since early childhood. He attended Malden Public and Parochial Schools, Tilton Academy, and was graduated from Boston University with a Bachelor of Science degree. A veteran of World War II, he served with the U. S. Marine Corps in the South Pacific area.

"During my 21 years as Administrative Assistant in Torbert H. Macdonald's district office, I have developed a deep concern and commitment to the people of the 7th district. I know the needs of the constituents and their problems. But what is more important, I have the experience and the ability to solve those problems. I have worked far more closely with the Federal government and have dedicated more time to the people of the entire 7th district than any other candidate in this race. It is this unique blend of experience and dedication that I offer in my candidacy."

"Torby Macdonald provided excellence of leadership to his constituents and to his nation because his knowledge and his contacts enabled him to get the job done. In the operations of my duties as administrative assistant, I worked very closely with these contacts and would be able to provide the same first rate service the constituents have enjoyed in the past through a continuation of these good relationships. Promises and slogans do not solve problems—only experience and ability can accomplish this. I feel that, during the time it would take a novice Congressman to learn his way around Washington, I could continue the effort to solve individual constituent problems. In addition, I would maintain my working relationship with the Congressional leadership to pass laws that would benefit our area. These times are too unstable to waste months or even years without a voice in Washington which will be heard."

Croken has resigned from his position as administrative assistant to devote full time to the campaign.

Rebecca Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newell Riley of North Attleboro, was married June 26 to Edward Everett VerPlanck. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warburton King VerPlanck of Winchester.

The service was performed by the Rev. Jack D. Zoerheide in a garden ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride wore a white organza gown with a natural waistline, long sleeves and a wedding band neckline, embellished with appliques of white venise lace. The full skirt and train were edged with lace and had a light blue ribbon entwined at the waistline and hem of the gown. A white organza picture hat with matching lace and ribbon complemented the gown.

The maid of honor was Karen Martin of Concord. Her empire dress was of light blue trimmed with white lace. She carried a white straw basket of mixed flowers and wore a matching white straw picture hat.

Best man for Mr. VerPlanck was Mason Browne of Concord.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony, after which the couple left for a honeymoon on Cape Cod. They will make their home at Orne Square, Salem.

Local artist's photographs at Boston gallery

Winchester photographer Frank Siteman is one of five artists whose works in various media will be featured at an international show at the Boston Visual Artists Union Gallery from July 13 through August 12.

The other artists are Ellen Banks (painting); Ellen Driscoll (sculpture); Chris Enos (photography); and Flora Natapoff (painting).

An opening reception and party will be held at the gallery at Three Center Plaza, Boston, July 16 from 7-11 p.m. The works on display, all in black and white, emphasize the artist's concern with structure and create an immediate feeling of graphic continuity. Structural concerns range from the extremes of abstract mathematics to the intimate details of an old man's life.

Siteman's photographs are classically documentary in approach. They record the pattern of life of an old man on a small farm.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 1-5 p.m. Saturday.

First Aid book on choking available

What action is called for when a child or some other member of the family is choking?

Do you know what steps to take to remove an obstruction that has cut off his breathing?

The American Red Cross has just published a graphically illustrated, 22-page booklet that deals with this problem that every family should know how to handle.

The new booklet has a formidable name—"First Aid for Foreign Body Obstruction of the Airway," said Joseph Krajewski, chapter chairman. "It is used by Red Cross First Aid classes. A copy should be in every household, especially where there are children, and should be studied and restudied by every adult member."

The local Chapter has received a shipment of this new booklet. While the supply lasts, they are available at a nominal cost of ten cents at the chapter house, 39 Church st.

What is the efficiency of your Heating System?

If an average home required 1500 gallons per heating season when operating at an 85% efficiency, the quantity of oil required at the lower efficiencies is as follows:

65% would require 1964 gallons or 464 extra gallons that at 85%
70% would require 1921 gallons or 321 extra gallons than at 85%
75% would require 1896 gallons or 196 extra gallons that at 85%
80% would require 1589 gallons or 89 extra gallons than at 85%

The Extra Fuel Costs to the homeowner per season would be as follows:

Oil costs per gallon	40	41	42
at 65% efficiency, extra cost	185.60	190.24	194.88
at 70% efficiency, extra cost	128.40	131.61	134.82
at 75% efficiency, extra cost	78.40	80.36	82.32
at 80% efficiency, extra cost	35.60	36.49	37.38

Members of UCal Berkeley's Marching Band ham it up in comedy scene from "Spirit of America", a musical show to be presented in Winchester on July 15, with proceeds going to the town's seniors.

Ucal Band to perform here for seniors building fund

The musical revue "Spirit of America" will be presented by the University of California Band at the Winchester High School gymnasium Thursday evening, July 15, at 8 o'clock. Sponsored by the Winchester Jaycees, proceeds from the performance will be donated to the Senior Citizen Building Fund.

"Spirit of America" is a collegiate musical revue featuring the versatility and enthusiasm of the marching band. The show is created, produced, directed, choreographed, and performed by the members of the University of California Band, and features: concert, rock, folk, barbershop quartet, country band, Broadway, vaudeville, Dixieland, comedy, and even traditional marching band halftime stunts specially adapted for off-field performances—Total Band Entertainment.

The show will open with marching and the familiar strains of patriotic songs will be heard; a concert follows with a park setting of the Gay Nineties. Next, Roger Nixon's "Pacific Parade" will be featured; this composition was specially commissioned for the Cal Band's tour. A western mood with old frontier scenes gives way to the arrival of the band's showboat, and with the famous musical "Showboat" in mind the band shifts to a Vaudeville extravaganza.

Leaving the forties, the band sings American popular music and dances through the fifties and rockets into the seventies. A broad diversity of music is displayed in the final marching performance, and the entire band amasses to perform the final songs. Under the direction of Robert O. Briggs, the Cal Band performs a variety of concert music; classical, traditional marches, and contemporary selections. Tickets for the performance will be available at the COA office or at Henderson's Star Stationery.

Host families are needed for band

The Winchester Jaycees are still seeking host families for the housing of the 107-man University of California at Berkeley Band on the night of July 15. Host families are responsible for meeting their bandmen at the high school about 4:30 Thursday, providing dinner, transportation to and from the high school for the 8 p.m. performance, lodging for the night, breakfast, and transportation to the high school Friday morning to meet the buses.

Anyone who feels able to open his home to one or two members of this group for one night is asked to contact Art Daniels, 88 Highland ave.

Bicentennial dispatch

Scarlet fever epidemic . . .

Taken from E.A. Wadleigh's column in the Middlesex Journal:

Jan. 14, 1860—During the past few weeks scarlet fever has been quite prevalent among children of this community. Only three cases that I am aware of, have as yet proven fatal, although another has been given up by his attending physician several times, but still lives, with a fair prospect of recovery. Two of the three cases where the disease proved fatal, were the only children of Mr. Wm. M. Rand. I do not think the disease prevails to that extent which has been stated, yet it is well that parents should use proper precautions in regard to their children, but not be unnecessarily alarmed. In view of the number of cases, I think it is has assumed a mild form, and is not likely to be very serious in its attacks.

Jan. 24—Since my last communication, Frederic, youngest child and only son of our esteemed townsman, Mr. T.P. Tenney, has deceased of scarlet fever. He had been sick some twelve days, and on the morning of the last Sabbath, his spirit passed from its earthly tenement to its Father's home on high.

Feb. 4—The scarlet fever still continues to select daily victims. Since the new year commenced 8 or 9 children have been removed by this dreadful sickness.

Feb. 11—Little did your correspondent think when in a recent number of this paper he referred to the bereavement which one of his townsmen had experienced in the death of an only son, that so soon the same affliction was to be felt by him. (ed. note: Frederic Gray Wadleigh died of scarlet fever on Jan. 28, aged 5 years.)

Feb. 18—No deaths have occurred from scarlet fever since my last and although new cases are still occurring, yet they are of the mild form of the disease.

Mar. 10—Last Saturday, Lucy Isabel, the youngest daughter of Leonard and Elizabeth A. Bailey, of the age of 9 months, was added to the number of those who have deceased of scarlet fever.

May 26—It is a cause for congratulation that I am able to record the fact that the scarlet fever has ceased its devastating work in our community.

Police blotter

The Fourth of July weekend brought with it an increase in the number of housebreaks in town. Lt. John P. McHugh hopes it is only a temporary increase.

"You have to expect this over such a long summer weekend," he said.

Breaks were reported at 151 Cambridge st., 200 Swanton st., 18 Sheffield rd. (where entrance and egress were gained through an unlocked cellar door, although the family was away for the weekend), and 28 Prince ave.

The Ambrose school was the site of vandalism over the weekend when 12 windows and aluminum screens were destroyed. A parked Kelley and Hawes truck was subject to thieves when the air horn, chock blocks, and fire extinguisher were taken.

A hit and run accident at Black Horse terrace and Main street caused no personal injury.

Cummings named to commission

Governor Michael Dukakis announced the appointment of Robert E. Cummings, president of the Greater Boston Convention and Tourist Bureau, as a member of a special state commission.

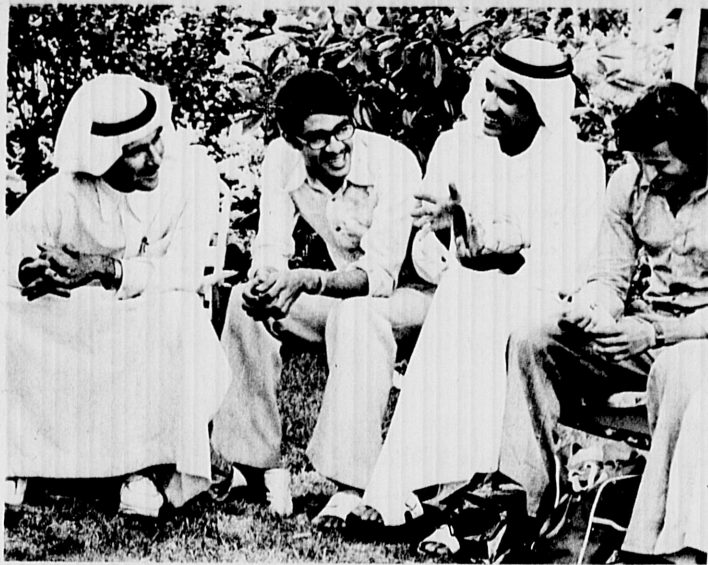

Cummings was named to the special commission relative to Improving the Recreational Facilities and Expanding the Recreation, Travel and Tourist Industry of the Commonwealth.

Robert E. Cummings

A long title perhaps, but a subject with which Cummings is familiar. The city's convention and tourist bureau has booked future conventions of which 283 will convene in Greater Boston in 1976. The delegate expenditures of these groups will exceed $70 million during the bicentennial year. Citing the closing of the Statler Hilton Hotel for extensive reconstruction and expansion as an example of Boston's improved capability to solicit major meetings, Cummings is optimistic about the future of Greater Boston's tourist industry.

Thirty-two Saudi Arabian summer cultural exchange students visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Philiou on Sachem rd. recently. All are entering the University of Petroleum and Minerals at Dahrhan when they return in the fall. Four of the students are spending July with host families in Winchester. Pictured above are Walid al Tunisi, Mohammed al Khowildi, Ali Sarhan, and Abdallah al Sughier.

Local woman cited by army

Presenting the certificate of recognition and cash award to Mrs. Sargent is Lt. Col. Edward E. Chick, commander-deputy director, AMMRC.

Mrs. Eileen Sargent, 6 James st., was honored recently with a Department of the Army Suggestion Award from the Army Materials and Research Center in Watertown. The citation for Mrs. Sargent, who is employed at the center's technical programs branch, read in part, "She is officially commended for an adopted suggestion which resulted in the implementation of a one source document for customer orders, which is proving to be a valuable tool to the technical programs branch. This new buyer's recap enables AMMRC to respond promptly to outside inquiries and contributes to the overall efficiency of the branch."

Ms. Ryer elected to alumnae group

Jane Robertson Ryer of Central st. has been elected to the board of directors of the Lesley College Alumni Association.

Ryer has been an active Lesley College alumna. She was previously on the council of regional representatives and Chairperson of the regional program.

At conference

Allan E. Oram of Winchester was among more than 125 certified public accountants who attended the 20th annual New England Graduate Accounting Study Conference at Bentley College recently.

The Conference, open to accountants throughout New England, provided both formal and informal discussions on notes to financial statements, partnerships, price level accounting, what's new with the FASB and the development of an accounting practice.

To those who think in terms of vintage, the year is far less important in champagne because this is a wine that is customarily a blend composed with dexterity from wines of various harvests... There are indications, however, that 1970 champagne may be "the wine of the century." Or, in wine terms, it may be "vintaged." This means that in five years at the earliest some of us may be sipping a Dom Perignon 1970... Dom Perignon is bottled only in great years... Since the 17th century it has been The Beautiful
Wine, as it still is the wine of celebration and celebrities

Twins are team to beat in Rec. League 'A' Baseball

McDonald Field established itself as the team to beat this year in the playground baseball "A Division" with two convincing wins last week. The McDonald twins started the season off well by beating the Ginn A's 4-1.

Ed Pratt was the winning pitcher for the Twins as he struck out 11 batters and allowed 1 hit. Ed had the Ginn A's off balance throughout the entire game. Paul Marshall started things off for the Twins by hitting a triple and scoring two runs in the process. Ed Pratt then slashed a double into center field to score Marshall. That's all the Twins needed as Pratt held the A's to 1 hit. In the defensive part of the game, catcher Steve Marshall played super ball along with Bob Fiore.

It was a good win for the Twins as they are trying to capture their second championship in a row. When asked how the league seems this year, coach Jerry Ferro claims that this is the strongest league in years.

Leonard Field showed their offensive strength Monday, with a win over Westside Field. Leonard has 12 hits, including a home run by Willie Strazzullo. Dave O'Neil and Lennie Bellino shared pitching duties for Leonard, keeping the Westsiders in check. Mark Aylward proved to be the lone offensive gun for Westside.

On Wednesday, Ginn and Westside Fields' baseball teams collided, both looking for their initial victories of the season. In the "A" game, Ginn romped to a 13-9 win. Although the Westsiders jumped to a 3-0 lead, the Ginn line stormed right back and from the second inning on, pretty much controlled the game.

Since the victory was a complete team effort, with good baserunning, solid hitting, and consistent pitching exhibited throughout the game, it is hard to name the outstanding players. The strong pitching of Ben Atkinson and hitting of Randy Pearl, however, should be noted.

Westside, while now 0-2, promises to be stronger than their record implies. Quality performances were turned in by Pat Fortin and Skip Sizemore and with the return of third base stalwart Bill Rodgers, the Westsiders will be tough.

Righthander Steve Marshall pitched a no-hitter to the McDonald Twins a 2-0 win over the Leonard Reds.

Marshall was phenomenal as he struck out

14 batters, walked 3 and picked off two off two of the 3 base runners he allowed. The twins scored their runs on aggressive base running by Captain Frank Vozzella and Steve Marshall. Not to be denied was Leonard pitcher Dave O'Neil who struck out seven and allowed eight hits. The win put the Twins in sole possession of first place and proved to everybody that they are the team to beat.

"B" Division
In the "B" division action of the Winchester Recreation Baseball League Leonard field established itself as a potent offensive machine with a decisive win over Westside field 17-7.

At Ginn field Wednesday afternoon the Ginn "B" eeked out a 5-3 win over the Westsiders. The game was close throughout, but the solid hitting of Scott Allen and Billy Barron paired with the pitching of Pumpkin McGrath proved too much for the Westsiders. Bill Sasha was a contributing factor with some timely baserunning.

In a "C" game Westside finally proved victorious, routing Ginn 18-1. Leonard and McDonald Fields played to a 3-3 tie Thursday afternoon.

Local girls win top spot in Jr. Wightman tennis league

A team of eight junior high age girls have won the Jr. Wightman Tennis League crown. The girls played under the direction of Mrs. Robert McNamara.

Giving up only two points during regulation play, the girls defeated Lexington and Reading to win the north division title.

They then went on to defeat a strong Turnpike Raquet Club team 4-1 in the north-south playoff to win the traveling silver bowl.

According to the NELTA Director Bill Mott, there is a possibility that this fine Winchester team will play off with other New England winners to determine an all-New England champion.

'Go for the wall' contest July 23

The Winchester Recreation Department will hold its second "Go For the Wall" home run hitting contest July 23, 10 a.m. at Westside Field.

There are two different age groups, 9-12 and 13-16 years old. Players are asked to arrange themselves in groups of three—pitcher, catcher, and batter. A batter is allowed 15 pitches of which he may swing at no more than 10. Points are awarded for a home run (10), off the wall (7), and hitting the fence on one bounce (5).

Groups which arrange themselves now and practice will have a definite advantage upon entering the contest. However, if you come to the event without a group, you will be placed in one.

Registration may be made at any playground, the Winchester Sport Shop, or at the recreation office in Town Hall.

Cookout, field days highlight week on town's playgrounds

This week's playground activities were highlighted by the Ginn Field playday and Westside's annual cookout and field day.

At Leonard the week's activities consisted of a picnic hike to the town duck pond, an inter-playground baseball game, kickball, and various low-organizational games and activities.

Westside field ended the week with two special activities. Thursday, 21 children traveled to Hago's Miniature Golf with instructors and chaperones. All enjoyed a great time. Tony and Lee, Westside instructors, would like to thank all parents who aided by driving and supervising. Because of the trip's success another trip to Hago's will be organized this Thursday.

The Westside field cook-out was held Friday at Lee Costello's house on Ravine rd. A group of over 35 children and adults hiked from the field to Lee's house. Upon arrival supervisor Tony Guarente was in charge of the races.

Race winners were: Sweat shirt relay: Chris Rogers, Jennifer Perkins, Robin Rogers and Peter LaCascia; three-legged race: Paul Evans and Phil DiDio, Kathy Leonard and Christian Leonard, Mark McNamee and John Ghirargini; relay race: Chris Rogers, Peter Lacascia, Mark DeAngelis and Robin Rogers. All 40 participants were winners in the candy find which was held throughout Lee's year and house.

Upon completion of the races all were treated to a feast of hotdogs, hamburgers, chips, vegetables and lemonade. The final event of the day was the watermelon eating contest, this event was made possible by the generosity of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nurseries, which donated the watermelons. An enthusiastic crowd of children gathered at Ginn this second week to enjoy activities planned. Activities included: croquet tournaments; chess and checkers games; and card games such as "21" using lollipops as the "betting chips."

Thursdays' field day was enjoyed by all and a tremendous success. The day started off with a "tug-of-war"; then running relays, sack races, and bean bag relay.

The afternoon activities included guessing how many M and M's were in a jar (Bonnie Jean Ripley had the closest guess); whistling with saltines; finding lifesavers in a bowl of flour; and watermelon eating contests.

Coming events at Ginn
1. Winchester firemen and truck, July 15 at 11 a.m.
2. Mexican Festival with pinatas, July 21.

Parker adviser on the Olympics

Harry L. Parker of Winchester was one of six active participants in United States rowing to meet recently in Boston to advise the President's Commission of Olympic Sports.

Parker is the rowing coach at Harvard University and in 1968 and 1972 the coach for the U.S. Olympic Eight, men's division. In 1976 he coached the Olympic Women's Eight and Four.

The President's Commission on Olympic Sports is mandated to make a thorough study of the current structure of the U.S. Olympic Committee and other amateur sports organizations and to make recommendations to the president on how to improve the effectiveness of the United States in international competition.

In addition to conducting nationwide hearings with respect to organization, funding, athletes' rights, facilities and other aspects of the current amateur sports situation, the commission has begun the second phase of its study — a sport-by-sport analysis of the Olympic sports.

Sports consulting groups such as the one for rowing serve as one means of researching the problem areas in each sport.

The following report will be submitted to the full commission for its consideration in September.

Parkhurst Fourth Grade Student Ann Marie Barry carefully plants a flower next to a cherry tree in the garden dedicated recently to two of the school's retiring teachers: Mrs. Ruby M. Wiggitt, at left in the background chatting with Mrs. Nesson, a past president of the school's parents' association; and Mrs. Jeannette D. Eaton, third and fourth grade teacher, who was unable to attend.

Flower garden dedicated to retiring Parkhurst teachers

A cherry tree and flower garden were dedicated recently to Jeannette D. Eaton and Ruby M. Wiggitt, first and third-fourth grade teachers at Parkhurst School. Mrs. Eaton, appointed in 1958, and Mrs. Wiggitt, appointed in 1949, retired at the end of the school year.

Students, faculty and parents gathered on the lawn outside the school entrance. The cherry tree, a gift of Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery, and flowers, purchased by the Parkhurst Parents Association, were planted by students from each grade. Representing grade one were Melissa Caci, Peter O'Brien, and Nancy Brooks; grade two, Julie Guarnotta; grade three, Ralph Lauretano; grade four, Ann Marie Barry; grade five, Karen Buckley; and grade six, Scott Ford.

Harriet Nesson, past president of the Parkhurst Parents Association, speaking of Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. Wiggitt, stated that "our only hope is that the garden will flourish as well as the children have done under their expert care."

Andrew A. Allan, Principal, asked students to help the garden continue to grow and bloom in honor of these "beautiful people." He then read the following poem written by sixth grade student Sonia Stryker:

It's Time To Turn The Page

The wind blows gently,
Through the pines.
The flowers blossom,
Then droop and drop with age.
The leaves turn brown,
Then fall on the frost.
Round and round the seasons go
It's time to turn the page.
The stream gurgles,
Then washes the rocks.
The clouds clear,
And sunlight fills the sky.
Then Christmas comes,
And snow drifts down.
Now we know how hard it is,
To say our last goodbye.
For you helped us to grow,
And guided our way.
Then built up our ego
Our bodies and minds.
So if darkness enfolds us,
And we see no way out,
We think of your kindness,
And a little light shines.

At the close of the ceremony an autograph album signed by all the students was presented to Mrs. Wiggitt. Mrs. Eaton was a patient in Winchester Hospital and was not present.

Union accuses postmaster of unfair practice

Winchester Postmaster Daniel Moynihan, has been charged with five unfair labor practices this past week by the American Postal Workers Union of Massachusetts, AFL-CIO.

According to a release from the office of State President, James Smyrniotis, "the filing of the five unfair labor charges was an inevitable matter and one the state union tried to avoid; however the most recent acts by Postmaster Daniel Moynihan has forced the union into taking aggressive action against Mr. Moynihan."

Smyrniotis added, "that in his ten years as a state officer, we have never found a postmaster so bad that we had to file five unfair labor charges in a one week period. These charges consist of Postmaster Moynihan refusing to permit union officials to review records and documents necessary for the processing of grievances; and retaliating against union officials and employees because the union has filed 16 grievances in a one week period."

"Postmaster Daniel Moynihan," according to Smyrniotis, "has attempted to intimidate, coerce and threaten union officials and employees from going to the union for protection."

"Under the provisions of the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970," Smyrniotis continued, "the U.S. Postal Service and its employees are covered by the National Labor Relations Act. However, Postmaster Moynihan either refuses to recognize or chooses to ignore his responsibilities under the Federal laws."

Though several attempts were made to contact Moynihan, The Star was unable to learn of his reaction to the union's charges.

Smyrniotis concluded his statement by saying that he was confident of an early resolution on behalf of the union by either the National Labor Relations Board or regional postal officials.

Town will be reimbursed for work on census

Winchester should be receiving a check for $5640.75 as its reimbursement for compiling figures for the 1975 state-wide census.

The payments are based on 25 cents per capita refund for all persons counted in each of the state's 351 cities and towns. The census, in all, found 5,789,478 inhabitants of the commonwealth.

Aboard USS Constitution U.S. Senator Edward M. "Ted" Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Jackie Looney, 10, of Winchester, were guests of Rear Admiral Roy D. Snyder, commandant of the First Naval District when Old Ironsides led a fleet of Tall Ships into Boston Harbor for the start of a five-day stay highlighting the city's observance of the nation's Bicentennial. Young Looney was named honorary cabin boy after he wrote a letter to Admiral Snyder saying his mother and father made sure he swept his room and kept it clean and he, therefore, felt qualified for the job. As Constitution was leading the Tall Ships parade, Admiral Snyder, with Senator Kennedy looking on, swore Looney in as honorary cabin boy. (US Navy Photo)

Aboard a man 'o-war

The short, sweet tour of 'duty' by Jackie Looney

The men who go down to the sea in ships don't say "shiver me timbers," any more. Nor, "avast there, ye lubbers." Ask Winchester's ten-year-old John Looney of 19 Perkins rd., who has just completed the most important tour of "duty" of his as yet young and already greatly enriched life.

Aye, sir. The lad got a real old salt's look when more than 900 cadets from seven nations sailed into Boston Harbor aboard the Tall Ships, the foreign navy training vessels that set New England's heart a-piping last weekend.

Yessir, yes indeed. Johnny got as salty an appointment as a man could hope for at his time of life. He got himself a captain's appointment as cabin boy aboard the USS Constitution. Johnny was topside, on deck of the historic ship to welcome the visitors in the biggest maritime event to grace Boston since they dumped the tea into that same harbor more than two centuries ago.

Looney, a student at the Mystic School, wrote to Rear Adm. Roy D. Snyder, Jr., commandant of the First Naval District, asking for the job.

The letter said, "My mother and father make me sweep the floor and clean my room and I think I would be a good cabin boy."

Young Looney would like to attend Annapolis some day, "but now," he wrote, "I would like to be the cabin boy for the Tall Ships voyage."

And so he was.

Band here tonight

The musical revue "Spirit of America" will be presented by the University of California at Berkeley band at Winchester High School gymnasium tonight at 8. This 107 man band is on a nationwide American Bicentennial Tour and will provide the best of Musical America ranging from folk tune and nostalgic "oldies" to musical comedy and current smash hits.

The performance is being sponsored by the Winchester Jaycees and proceeds will be donated to the Senior Citizen Building Fund.

Tickets for the performance are minimal and may be purchased at the door.

Battle of the periods

School board listens to pleas of citizens, but takes no 'seven' action

Winchester High School will operate under a seven period schedule starting this September, despite strong protests from many students and their parents.

After two hours of public discussion of the issue at an open meeting July 7, the school committee voted to stand firm by an earlier decision to scrap the eight period day in favor of seven longer periods.

More than 100 citizens showed up at the meeting to voice their opposition to what they termed the "precipitous" decision by the school board.

The seven period day was accepted by a 3-2 vote this spring, after students had made their course selections for next fall. The decision reversed two school committee votes, taken in June 1975 and again in December, which upheld the eight period day.

Public reaction to the move, which included numerous letters to The Star, several public statements made both in and out of school committee meetings, and a petition signed by more than 400 parents, resulted in the board's calling the July 7 meeting.

(The petition had called for deferral of the seven period day until September, 1977.)

A statement read by Committeewoman Constance Papas in support of the committee decision indicates a shift in the philosophy of the present school board majority from past school committees.

"When we completed the new high school we instituted a philosophy of freedom and responsibility," she said. "At the time this was the popular new concept in education."

"However," continued Mrs. Papas, "the past five years have illustrated that it has not been effective for the majority of students. SAT scores nationally and in Winchester have declined, colleges are complaining that they must teach high school courses to incoming freshmen, and the general public is demanding structure and discipline."

Several parents rose to ask the committee to defer its decision for a year and allow time for further study of the issue. Parent William Fallon suggested the committee turn the issue over to a group of professionals and parents for "more serious study."

Fallon questioned whether alternative scheduling systems had been adequately explored by the high school administration, and he added, "I'm not convinced we have the best scheduling service possible."

Another parent went even further in criticizing the high school administration, saying he doubted whether the administration "is capable of producing the leadership we need in the high school." He also criticized department chairmen at the high school who, he claimed, were "unsupportive" of the students who sign up for but eventually drop a sixth course.

High School Principal Vincent Larocco had noted earlier that a considerable number of those who opt for a sixth course drop out before the end of the term.

Larocco responded to the question of alternative scheduling by affirming that the administration had looked into other forms of scheduling. He emphasized that, "You have to decide, 'What do you want to accomplish?' before you try to change the schedule."

Larocco also used some facts and figures to back up his position and counter student charges that their schedules would be unduly limited by switching to a seven period day.

The principal noted that longer periods would increase instructional time and allow for "better coverage of study halls and the corridors." He said that 664 students or 51 per cent of the total number were denied open campus in the fall for one reason or another. "Instructional time is more valid for these students than study hall time," he said.

As for the contention that up to 15 students will not be able to graduate in the spring under the new schedule, Larocco said that of the 15, "at least 12 have less than 60 credits, which means they want to complete two years in one." With a normal work load a student accumulates 82½ credits by the end of his junior year.

Larocco admitted that the high school might be limiting the choices of some of the 15 who need extra credit to graduate but said "it is totally untrue that some can't go to college." He said for those not so far short of

Self-service to midnight

Selectmen approve more hours for filling station

Selectmen dealt with a variety of matters at their regular Monday night meeting from an extension of operating hours for the Cambridge street Texaco station to an increase in taxi rates this fall.

Wayne Klawns, division marketing supervisor from Texaco, Inc., appeared before the board to request an extension in operating hours for the mini-serve station (gasoline sales only) at 279 Cambridge st. from 10 p.m. until midnight. The request was granted.

At the hearing, Klawns said that with the guidelines set down by selectmen making regular closing time for the town's gas stations 10 p.m., the Texaco station has lost 30 percent of its business. The station had been open until midnight until the board's recommendations were made last month.

When Selectmen Chairman John J. Sullivan asked if any of the neighbors had complaints about noise or lights, none of those present responded.

The hearing had been delayed two weeks because Klawns had not been informed that such a hearing was to be held. The neighbors and abutters, however, had received notification and came to the meeting two weeks ago to express their views on the extension of hours. Most spoke in favor of keeping the station open later. Those objecting cited that a general precedent might be established.

At the first meeting, Sullivan allowed the abutters to speak and put their statements into the record for recall Monday night. Only three neighbors came to the second hearing.

The request for an extension was granted unanimously with the proviso that there be a one-year trial period to make sure that no complaints are received from abutters.

Selectmen have offered all gas station owners the opportunity to appeal for later hours, but only the Texaco station on Cambridge street has done so.

In other action, the board accepted the recommendations of Selectwoman Barbara Hankins that the request of the Taxi Owners'

Winchester at the crossroads...

Consensus: Town has open space aplenty, needs more

The Winchester Local Growth Policy Committee made a series of recommendations recently which it submitted to the town and state as a policy guide resulting from discussions at meetings it has held here. It decided that its first task was to find ways to expand the town's tax base, and secondly to encourage residents to remain here and to draw potential new residents to the town. In keeping with their recommendations, The Star offers the following as the first in a series of articles toward first exploring and then achieving those goals.

By Karen Whittlesey-First

There's a basic human need to see a blade of grass once in a while. The tenement fire escape of the city dweller has its one spot of bright red geranium. You take off your shoes to tickle your toes while you water those tomato plants. The Cardinals rest in your pine tree. Your heart sings.

You grow plants in water, in sand, in dirt, in air, in anything. It is a joy to grow things, to watch them.

Where in Winchester are there open spaces? Where will there be open spaces five years from now? How can the recreational needs of our townspeople be met now and in the future?

What direction are we going in? The Save the Park committee successfully brought a vote on the floor of town meeting which would give to the town the land known as the Wadleigh School site to have forever as a green area for the rest and recreation of the town's citizens.

They did it alone, this group of citizens who wanted to have some place to look at that didn't have a building on it.

According to Carolyn Ward, one of the Save the Park committee members, "You look at priorities. Some people in town would have preferred to see a new police station on that site, but in time that station would be too small and they'd build another one. That green space is there now and it will still be there in future years."

Nolan Jones, chairman of the conservation commission, sees the next five to ten years as vital to the ultimate direction the town will take.

"People are mistreating the open areas and the waterways of our town," he said. "What we do about it now will determine what Winchester will be like in the future."

Jones credits organizations like the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts with trying to keep open area green, but it's a discouraging battle.

"I've been making movies of the Aberjona River cleanup in the spring for the last few years," Nolan said, "and you wouldn't believe what they pull out of the water and from along the banks. Up in the swamp area near Sucker Brook the boys pulled out a refrigerator and a mattress."

The open spaces have become dumping grounds. They should be used for other purposes, like playing fields and recreation space for children and adults, like conservation areas where nature has a chance to revive itself unhindered.

Open space is looked at in different ways, depending on the particular interest of the person speaking, but in all cases, the need for open space was foremost.

To Leonore Frazier of the Winchester Environmental Protection Agency, the question of whether there is enough open space in town depends on the population this town is equipped to handle.

Davidson Park is a good example of what Winchester's open spaces could look like.

"We have to quite consciously put a maximum on the population of Winchester," she explained. "Are we going to allow a population of 100,000 or 50,000 or are we going to try to keep it where it is now at about 25,000?"

Mrs. Frazier is adamant that whatever land we have now must remain open space, no matter what the size of the town becomes.

Zoning-by-law changes which would bring more families into Winchester or which would serve to keep more residents from leaving the town, are a definite consideration in the amount of green space we need.

"We are talking through our hats if we don't consider things like that," Mrs. Frazier said.

Richard Tofuri, acting superintendent of the parks department, on the other hand, thinks that allowing apartments and multiple family housing would tend to keep the number of children using the park areas at about the same level it is now.

"We're not in trouble now," he said, referring to the recreation areas in the town's parks, "but of course we would like to see extra playing fields. It's a matter of common sense and good planning."

What were once green fields are rapidly becoming fields of dried up straw with little chance for revitalizing themselves.

Barbara Hankins, selectwoman, suggested at a public hearing held by the Local Growth Policy Committee, that one field should be allowed to lie fallow each year to give it a chance to become green again. She also suggested that it is not possible due to heavy use.

"We can't do that," Tofuri said, "because we just don't have the luxury to have bare fields. It's not the heavy use of fields for sports as much as it is the difference in the sports played."

By example, Tofuri pointed out that a baseball field used exclusively for Little League games could take years of activity. It's when the field is used by soccer teams, field hockey teams, baseball and softball leagues, and track and field events that the grass can't hold up.

"We have about as many kids playing soccer this year as we have in the Little League teams," Tofuri noted.

There are in Winchester now a total of 70 acres of recreational fields, 10 at Manchester, another 10 or so at the new high school field, and the rest distributed throughout the town.

Tofuri and others feel that better use of the land available will have to make up for the lack of additional space the town can acquire.

"Look at Ginn Field, for example," Tofuri said. "Ginn has six acres and West Side Field has seven, but we can put three Little League diamonds at Ginn. The shape of West Side is deceiving and we just can't do as much with it as we'd like."

One way of easing the park problem is the piecemeal development of the Lockeland playground area. There are nine acres in the area across from the West Side fire station and so far three or four have been developed. It will take another two or three years for all of it to be completed for use.

School yards, another possible play area, are too small. Even the field behind Ambrose, where soccer games are held fall and spring, is too small, something our teams find out when they go to play teams in other towns where the soccer fields are larger.

Don Spinney, director of the recreation department, is discouraged. "The worst thing this town has done is to turn down the swimming pool in the new high school and the second worst is to have torn down the old Lincoln School," he said.

He sees the need for a town-wide pool for use by all the residents to help take the pressure off Wedge and Leonard ponds. Instead of tearing down the Lincoln School, Spinney would have preferred to see a community center for the town housed in the facility.

"There's no more land available, there's no more park land available for our town's use," he sighed.

The town is 5.6 square miles in area. Of that, according to Spinney's figures, 115 acres are allotted to school land and 71 to park.

"That's not enough," Spinney said. "Not enough."

What is enough green space? Nolan Jones says that the 31 acres of open space designated conservation land now in Winchester is not enough.

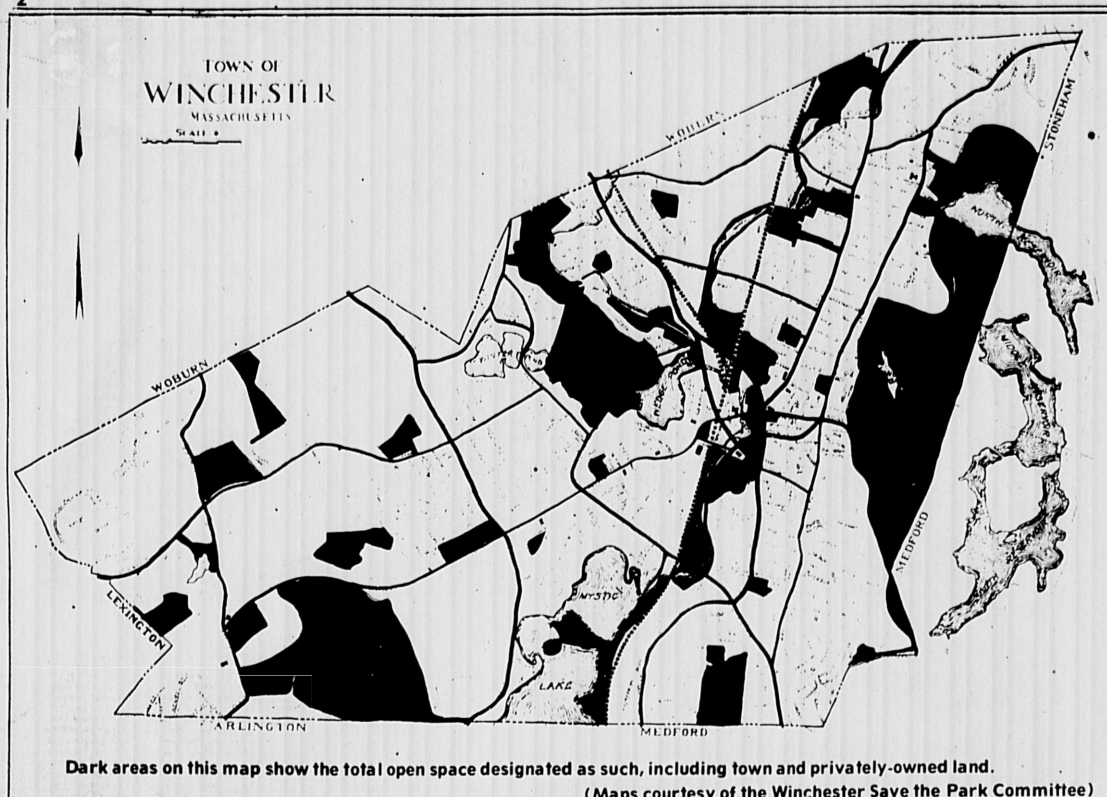

In 1971 a so-called west side green belt plan was established whereby the town would acquire small pieces of land each year on the west side of town and designated them conservation.

"When the town bought the new high school, we held back on the acquisition of land, the asking for funds from town meeting. At the same time there was not as much land development pressure as there has been in the last year and a half," Jones explained.

"Now the pressure for development is really on and we have to acquire land as soon as possible," Jones said.

The 1971 plan is due to be revised during the summer so that plans for completing the west side green belt can be made available. When Thomas J. Groux came on as the town's first town manager, Jones offered to go over Winchester's land areas with him and assist him in the designation of park land, recreation land, and conservancy areas.
"If some spot of grass should be play area, then we'll say so. If it should be conservation land, then we'll say that, too," Jones said, "but we haven't gotten started yet. Maybe with the town meeting and the budget pressures off, we can get that land designation going."

Jones does not see the problem that several others did, namely that there is no more land available in Winchester.

"We have a list of priorities for the acquisition of land and there is more land than many people think there is," he said. Parcels of land for green space use include about 90 acres of the Moss land on the west side. Much of that land, situated as it is above Mahoney's on Cambridge street, is set on a stone cliff.

"I don't think it's suitable for a housing development," Jones laughed. "On the other hand, someone would probably try to build on the cliff."

There are an additional 19 acres now known as the Nunes land which would provide access to the site.

Other potential town land includes 22 acres along the Aberjona River near the incinerator. That land is currently owned by James Cullen of Winchester.

Jones also sees other sites abutting what are now conservation land. In the Smith Pond area, the Giambro land takes about 40 percent of the area, the town holds about 45 percent in conservancy, and the rest is divided into other smaller parcels under separate ownership.

Smith Pond is widely used by school children for nature walks and outdoor education as part of the Winchester Trails program.

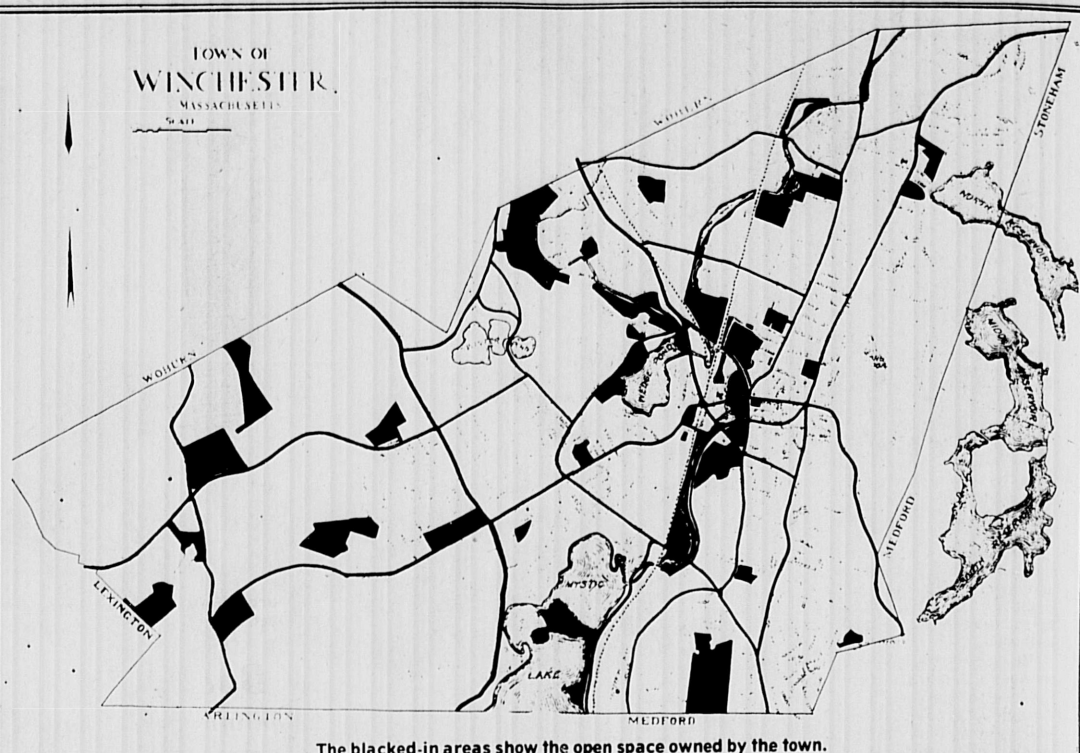

Jones also anticipates submitting an article to town meeting which would give the land at 22 Highland ave., now under litigation, as a conservation area to the town, with sale of the house now on the property.

In sum, then, we need green space to rest our eyes and our bodies. Whether we have enough to satisfy our needs as the town grows in population and how we will use what we have are the questions to think about.

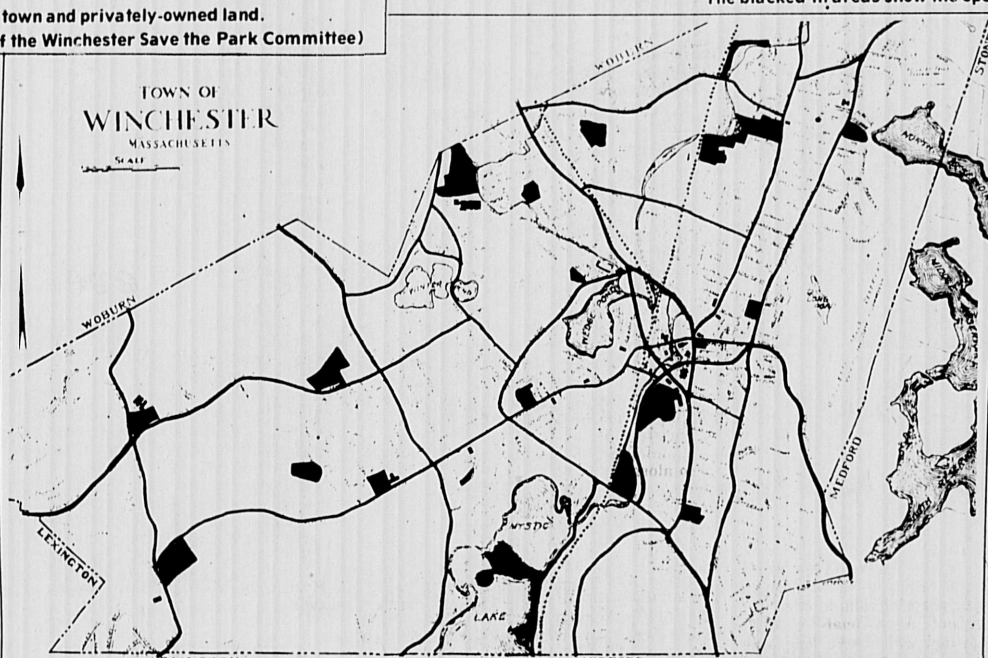

The Star welcomes comments expressing the direction you think the town should take.

Of ships and queens

BY ELIZABETH
Star Correspondent

What a Fourth of July it was! Ships and queens! Flags and fireworks!

The sparkle of festivity and the glow of goodwill which settled over Boston was launched in the aftermath of the cannon's roar and rocket's red glare over the Charles River Esplanade on July 4th.

The birthday party mood continued through the week up to the spectacular arrival of the Tall Ships and extended to the warmth of the welcome surrounding the visit of Britain's reigning queen.

For me, the spectacular will be remembered in smaller details.

Our Siamese cat was not asked to look upon the Queen. Instead she sank her feline incisors deep into the hand of the family fiver who was going to play for Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Although he was fortified with a tetanus shot, a Colonial waistcoat pocket filled with antibiotics, and a painfully swollen hand, husband William was thrilled at his participation in the pageant of the Queen's visit to Boston.

He was part of the Revolutionary-styled cordon of militia men who lined the Washington Mall and later marched in review through John Adams Park between Faneuil Hall and City Hall. Musicians were directed to play only one selection, "Ruffles and Flourishes," in the Queen's presence, but my spouse later played a life solo rendition of the popular "Amazing Grace" on Beacon St. to the delight of the crowds.

"People were so enthusiastic," he said. "I have never played to such an enthusiastic crowd in the city. Usually such friendliness is found at small town celebrations."

Queen Elizabeth referred to the shots fired at Concord and Lexington 201 years ago in her remarks at the Old State House. Later she stopped to compliment a member of my husband's company on the fine appearance of the Lexington uniform styled after the Virginia attire of George Washington.

The Tall Ships event which brought more than 70 ships from 18 countries to Boston could be enjoyed from many vantage points. The shimmering sun, cool sea breezes and billowing sails of the schooners, barques and brigs were the same whether viewed from a yacht or a dingy.

John Looney, 10-year-old son of the John Looneys of Perkins rd., had a unique viewing position. The nephew of Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill sought and won the position of cabin boy on the U.S.S. Constitution by writing a letter to the local naval commandant. He cited his skill with the family's small sailboat and his helpfulness at home.

Ruth and Ed Pepper of Robinson Pk. saw the Tall Ships twice—first on board a private craft in Newport, then aboard the Aquarium's research ship, the Discovery, which served a buffet lunch.

Fred Langill launched a borrowed 14-foot outboard in Lower Mystic Lake in Winchester and chugged down to the harbor to join the 3,600 other pleasure craft watching the show.

His thrill was seeing the square-rigged sails of the first Big Ship, the Polish Dar Pomorza, as he peered through the hundreds of bobbing masts of the smaller spectator craft in the harbor.

It was also the experience of being on the welcoming end for Langill who served aboard the naval destroyer U.S.S. Glennon when she made a goodwill tour of South American ports in Peru and Columbia.

My own memorable experience was seeing the soaring plumes of harbor fireboats escorting the venerable 179-year-old Constitution past the people-thronged Castle Island.

My own perch seemed quite appropriate on the base of the granite pylon monument dedicated to the Boston master ship builder Donald McKay.

How fleeting is fame for the American Clipper ship which ended the Age of Sail and brought world-wide fame to McKay and Boston was not represented among the living ghosts of the world's great sailing ships. Only the names etched in the granite remain to remind the viewer of the time the American clippers were the fastest ships on the Seven Seas.

the necessary credits, summer school or a sixth course, still possible under the seven period schedule, should resolve any problems.

He also questioned the student demand for a sixth course offering, noting that between 20-25 percent of the total student population completes a sixth course, roughly the same percentage as those who wind up in study halls.

According to Larocco, the largest group taking a sixth course is sophomores; the smallest is seniors. And the senior completion rate is 12 percent.

And in comparison with other school systems in comparable towns, he pointed out that Winchester requires more courses (five) than most.

"On total balance I believe the seven period day is in the best interests of the greatest number of students," he concluded.

Superintendent William MacDonald supported the high school administration, saying, "Their recommendation is appropriate."

Committee Member Catherine Fallon, who along with Robert Frank voted against the schedule change, said, "The issue has been blown out of proportion; it has become a red herring for the broader issue of education."

She indicated that there was "a philosophical question of whether policy is to be imposed from above without the input of both staff and students." Mrs. Fallon urged that there be "communication with all segments of the public before such a decision is made."

A motion by Mrs. Fallon that the schedule change become effective in September 1977 rather than this year was defeated by a 3-2 vote: Frank and Fallon voted yea, while Chairlady Mary Pronsni, Mrs. Papas, and Jack Noble voted in the negative.

In her remarks Mrs. Papas noted a movement in education to "modify freedom and increase the responsibilities of students and teachers.

"Our aim in Winchester," she continued, "is not to restrict or limit the efforts of our students but to increase instructional time and maximize use of the high school facility for the greatest number of students."

In conclusion, Mrs. Papas stated: "Quality education does not happen by accident. It involves difficult and sometimes unpopular decisions by the school committee, an administration capable of carrying out those decisions successfully, dedicated teachers who will work enthusiastically, students who come to school prepared to learn, and last but not least a supportive community. I believe we have all the ingredients and that the time to begin is now."

Association for a 25 cent taxi rate increase be granted. Also made part of Mrs. Hankins's motion was a request that cab owners post zoning maps and taxi fare rates in their cabs. The option of offering reduced fares to senior citizens was left to the individual owners.

According to a memo from Mrs. Hankins to the board, the present rate schedule has been in effect since December 1973, a schedule which has as its average fare $1.35.

The average cost per trip, however, is $1.60. An increase in the fares of 25 cents would provide income of approximately $1.60 per trip.

In other items, selectmen chose names of nine persons to serve as jurors in Lowell and Cambridge courts.

They are (for Lowell): Dan H. Spagnuolo, 7 Cutting st. and Emily H. Tourtellot, 27 Elmwood ave.

To serve in Cambridge: Edward J. Kirkpatrick, 5 Francis circuit; Judith A. Harrington, 3 Holland st.; Donald E. Waggaman, Sr., 44 Thornberry rd.; Richard J. McQuillan, 305 Highland ave.; James B. Craner, 103 Mt. Vernon st.; Antonia M. Penney, 28 Westley st.; and Thomas Zazzara, 21 Thornberry rd.

Selectmen also listened to Philip Locashia, architect of the proposed senior center on Skills path, who came at the board's request to present what he feels will be operating costs for the center. The town will eventually be operating and maintaining the facility and selectmen wanted to have an idea of the costs involved before drawing up deeds and conveyance documents.

According to Locashia, total operating costs should be less than $5000 a year, with heating by gas running to about $1700 per heating season, air conditioning to about $800 per 90-day cooling season, lighting about $188 a month based on 60 hours a week.

Dr. Richard Norberg, speaking for the seniors group, said that he expects to make a statement about the fund-raising drive and the date for construction to begin, perhaps as soon as a week or ten days.

A possible hearing before the board of appeals is being considered to seek a variance in the 40-foot setback requirement for the building. Norberg would like to see the building located further from the edge of the asphalt parking lot for reasons of esthetics.

He said, "If we don't do it now, we may have a building eight or ten feet from the parking lot and in a few years or in many years we may wonder why we didn't try to have that changed." He did not indicate if the variance would definitely be sought.

Selectmen will be meeting Monday as scheduled. There may be changes in scheduling during the summer.

A municipal milestone

Last week, millions of Americans participated in celebrations marking our nation's bicentennial year. It was a time for rejoicing and a time for comparing the United States of today with the nation that was given birth 200 years ago. Honor and tribute were paid to our courageous forefathers who had the wisdom to create a system of government that would endure, regardless of the crises brought about by changing times.

We, in Winchester, are also marking a new municipal milestone this year as we are about to see some of the traditional aspects of our limited representative town government fade into history. Along with the new town manager, we will be greeting a Department of Public Works. The latter will supplant our Water and Sewer, our Cemetery and our Park Departments that formerly operated under the jurisdiction of elected, unpaid officials.

It would be, indeed, an oversight if we did not pause at this time in our town's history to voice our deep gratitude to those fellow residents who have given so unstintingly of their time and efforts to direct the progress of those departments.

It is a tribute to them that our town water and sewer system is the finest in suburban Boston—that our cemetery is famed for its unspoiled, natural beauty—that our parks are the envy of neighboring communities. The accomplishments of these officials constitute a rich heritage that will endure long after their respective boards have passed into history.

The assets they have nurtured have done much to contribute to Winchester's reputation as an outstanding town. Only last August, the Ladies Home Journal selected Winchester as the number one suburb in the Boston area in which to live. We have good reason to be proud of our hometown.

Reputations are not acquired by accident. Evidence of poor planning and lack of concern is all too apparent when we visit some communities. The dedication and expertise which characterized our unpaid public servants are undoubtedly the greatest assets our town has enjoyed.

They exemplify the true spirit of '76. They have served us well.

Important goals

You probably remember a few weeks ago we ran some pictures about an oil spill in the Aberjona, showing a crew cleaning up the mess from the Mill Pond.

The ducks seem to have developed a sense about oil on the water and won't go near it. Good thing, and good for them, too.

Anyway, we are happy to report that something is being done about such things, specifically by the Mystic River Watershed Association, with headquarters in Arlington.

For instance, they met recently at a public session. More than 50 public officials and residents of the watershed area participated, and there was plenty of "input" by those in attendance. They shared their concerns about the Aberjona, the Mystic River and the lakes, but most important, established a set of goals including the use of the Aberjona, and for Horn Pond in Woburn, which affects Winchester.

The goals included canoeing, game fishing, and a linear park along the river with biking and walking paths.

You may wonder by now what all this has to do with ducks and oil spills in our water. The point we are leading up to is that this is one of many things being included in their far-reaching studies, plans and discussions.

They feel that they have to solve the problems of "non-point" pollution, that is, pollution which does not come out of pipes.

Specifically, this deals with leachate from a dump, junk and debris in the water, oils from the property of an autowash dealers, and salt from storage piles.

Also of concern is the general need for dredging, the low flow in the river, the dams and culverts that are obstacles to canoeing, and the polluted water coming from a pet food company.

They lamented the loss of trout in Halls Brook, and the filling of wetlands and the creation of a reservoir from a mill pond as contributing to the low flow in the river.

As for Horn Pond, they see the primary goal there is to protect it as a source of public drinking water. Its ground water is drawn off by neighboring wells that people use for drinking, hence its water must be clean and the level maintained. They feel that the current uses of the pond for swimming, boating and fishing should remain intact.

The MRWA meeting felt that the worst pollution source is probably runoff from streets, lawns and a golf course. They also believe that the erosion of stream banks and pollution coming downstream from Burlington are problems that have to be dealt with, along with those of weeds and algae, odors, loss of natural vegetation, and the very low flow with the water sometimes reduced to stagnation. (A Mass. Division of Water Resources report just published, says the Aberjona is an extreme example of the effect of excessive withdrawal of groundwater...by municipal and industrial users...This excessive withdrawal on streamflow in the Aberjona causes water loss as it flows downstream rather than increasing in volume as would normally occur. "As a result, the mean annual flow in Winchester is 30 per cent lower than for other streams in Eastern Massachusetts.")

They have found that the major problems of the Upper and Lower Mystic Lakes include weeds and the low water level of the Upper Mystic. The low water level is due to disrepair of the dam and the low flow of the Aberjona. So it is easily seen here that one problem leads to another. In addition, they cite continued pollution by chemicals, the blocking of the alewife run by the dam and unsuitability of the lake for trout.

For the Lower Mystic, they stress the need for a "B" classification so that the lake can be used for swimming and fishing. Brackish, toxic water at the lower levels of the lake is a big problem.

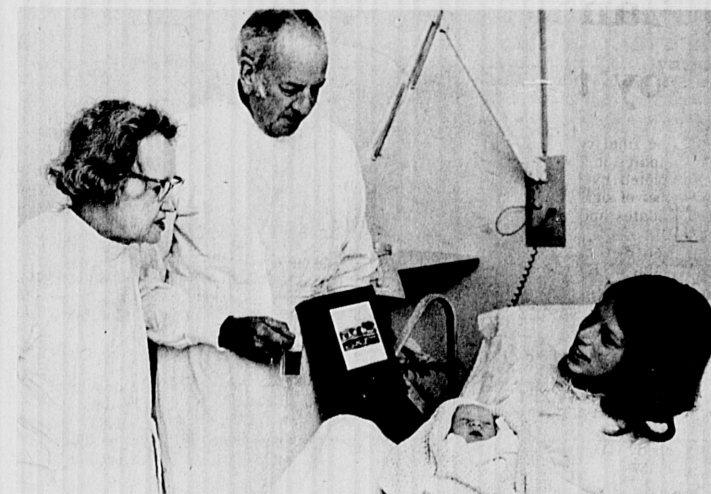

In their discussion, the MRWA set some priorities for action. These include control of known sources of pollution, removal of waste-impregnated wetlands around Stepan Chemical; a study of the nutrient levels in the lakes and their sources, especially of nitrogen compounds, repair of the Mystic Lakes dam and the building of a fish ladder for the dam.

Finally, and this may be as important as any of their other goals, the need for more public education, both through the news media and school programs.

As a sector of the "media" we shall do our part. We hope the public will, too.

They'll be holding a canoe picnic trip down the Mystic Saturday, July 17. That may be a good place to start the "education," for as you are going to do something about a problem you must first know something about it.—J.R.S.

Waste of time

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The school committee meeting on July 8 was a complete waste of time. Nothing at all was accomplished, the school committee refused to even delay the seven period day. I could have told you that without going through the bother of a meeting.

The school committee in the past and last night have made several false statements. One of these was that students will still be able to take a sixth course with the seven period day.

This is false because I and several other people I know have lost their sixth choice because there is no room for it under seven periods. When anyone takes two sciences, which takes four periods a day, only three periods are left for the other three required courses.

It is unfortunate that the school committee's statements are so unreliable; I can no longer accept any statement the school committee makes as true. Too many of their statements are not true, mainly because they have not done any research to speak of; if they had, they would not make false statements.

Please clarify

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At the June 30 school committee meeting, I was privileged to participate as part of the report made by the student representative to the school committee, Brian Tarbox, to help the students convey to the committee their concerns about the seven vs eight period day at the high school. During his report, Brian raised several questions to the committee concerning this matter, and Mrs. Pronski, the chairman, indicated the committee would take the questions under advisement and respond with the answers at a later time. In taking that position, she overtly denied her colleague, Mr. Noble, the opportunity he sought to respond at that meeting to a question directed specifically to him.

True to her statement, a few days later Mrs. Pronski did telephone Brian to give him the answers to the questions he had raised. Then during this conversation, Mrs. Pronski left Brian with the very clear impression by her statements that these answers were the official position of the committee. Moreover, Brian was directed not to discuss this matter with any other member of the school committee; not to raise the subject of seven vs eight period day at any subsequent school committee meeting; not to raise any specific questions at future School Committee meetings; and not to have any non-student participate in the student representative reports (presumably thereby barring any staff or faculty advisors as well from participating). In addition, if Brian did not abide by these directives, the chairman would see to limiting his further participation in the school committee meetings.

I am quite certain the chairman is aware of the section of Chapter 95 of the State Acts of 1972 which provides that the school committee shall meet at least once every month during the months that school is in session with a student advisory committee. The Winchester School Committee in the past has met this obligation by inviting the student representative to the regular school committee meetings and providing a time on the agenda for the students to address the committee on matters of concern to the students.

Under the recommendations promulgated by the State Department of Education on this statute, the purpose of the student advisory committee is to provide a meaningful link and promote a mutual respect and understanding between the student body and the school committee. Further, the student advisory committee is to represent to the school committee the attitudes, interests and concerns, both positive and negative, of the entire student body, to advise the school committee and add insight to their deliberations, and to carry to the school committee specific proposals and items of concern to the student body. By apparently imposing these restrictions on the nature and content of the reports to be made by the officially designated student representative, the chairman may well be violating not only the letter but also the spirit of this most important legislation — a spirit of communication which prior school committees have spent much time and effort in fostering and developing between the school committee and the student body.

I am not aware of the official action taken specifically by the present school committee to alter their method of compliance with the state statute. Therefore, I implore the school committee as a body to clarify what appears to be a new position taken with respect to the student advisory committee.

Doomsday

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester's Bicentennial Celebration was held Wednesday, July 7 in the auditorium of Ambrose School. The event was sponsored by the Winchester School Committee. Based on the current debate on the desirability of a seven or eight period high school day the theme was simply "7 or 8." Using this theme the committee provided the community with a demonstration of Democracy in Action.

Late planning prevented adequate public notice, however, By-Law provisions were correctly and technically met. Even so, as the word was passed throughout this Middlesex County town that the meeting was coming, citizens mustered in goodly number...

To open the celebration there was a significantly delivered address with elaborate statistical data given by the town's paramount leader of secondary education from Skillings road. There followed a chorus of citizen voices uniformly demonstrating the variations that can be rung on why eight should wait a year before seven should be provided. The single intent of all the voices was that we should know what happens to "Freedom and Responsibility" before a change is made. Alas no voice was raised for seven. Only the voices of concern for Freedom and Responsibility.

Those at the dais rose to speak in turn. An amendment was before them so they the committee, could find out what would become of Freedom and Responsibility! First one and then another expressed their divinely-blessed opinions. One there was who rose in solemn manner. She held a blue paper in hand and read the words which appeared in typed print thereon. It was, she said, that Freedom and Responsibility had failed.

She turned, was seated and silence reigned. A vote was taken. The motion lost. Seven alas, with no friends at all, had won! Democracy triumphant once more! There will be no study of Freedom and Responsibility. It was stated, it has failed.

Will there be education in democracy on Skillings road? Will our youth remember long the principles upon which the nation had been founded two hundred years ago? Can the teaching masters impress the young and tender minds with the values of the Revolution? Will there be freedom and responsibility anymore? These were the subjects of the Winchester Bicentennial Celebration sponsored by the school committee. Only the active demonstration of the citizens' power is sufficient to answer these questions when the town meets again on ballot day.

Without rhyme or reason

By The Observer

By now the wrecker's steel ball has all but demolished the former Bonnell Ford building on Main street, to make way for a 73-unit, five story apartment building opposite the Winchester Theatre.

The apartment building, which will rise 45 feet above the street, will be built by Edward Riess of 44 Old Nahant rd., Wakefield, who filed his application for the building permit in May of 1975. Hearings had been held, but more may be needed through the appeal board before construction can begin.

The demolition process has been giving sidewalk superintendents something to do of late. The building is being razed by the North East Construction Co.

Congratulations to both!

There are all kinds of poets around and would-be poets in our midst, just waiting for that chance to get published.

We have a note from the Better Business Bureau of Eastern Massachusetts this week, advising us of an outfit that will gladly print your poetry, no matter how bad.

Says the BBB about the "Massachusetts Society of Poets." It "isn't in Massachusetts and isn't a society. It's a vanity publisher offering to print one poem for $25."

So the BBB decided to test it with as bad a poem as it could devise. And guess, what, back came a note: "Congratulations: The Selection Committee of the Massachusetts Society of Poets has advised me that a poem you have submitted has met their standards for publication in our forthcoming book of poems entitled, A Collection of Poems by the Massachusetts Society of Poets."

The BBB admits that it is no judge of poetry, good or bad, but neither, it says, is the "Massachusetts Society of Poets' Selection Committee." Obviously, says the BBB, this is just a gimmick to part aspiring poets from $25 with the promise that their work will be published.

The poem submitted by the staff member of the BBB? Here it is, but only in part. We can't stand the rest: "Oh my darling sweetie, You have such smelly feeties" Well, you get the idea. They used to say, "Don't take any wooden nickels." Amend that: "nor offers to publish your 'poetry'."

If you haven't signed up, decided or been accepted at a college, don't despair. There's still time and space.

A member of the New England Board of Higher Education, Gordon I. Martin, Jr., of Boston, advises us that there are 2537 vacancies for qualified freshmen at 23 two-year and 32 four-year institutions in Massachusetts, only part of the 7624 such vacancies available throughout New England. There were 7464 such openings at this time last year. You can get a copy of the summer vacancy survey they conducted, which lists individual institutions, by writing to New England Board of Higher Education at 40 Grove St., Wellesley, MA. 02181.

In the mood...

It was worth it

By Karen Whittlesey-First

They came with names like Polanski, Tortellucci, Hanover, and Smith. They came from places like East Boston, Connecticut, and Winchester.

And they came twice. The first time was to see those tall ships from another era when salt air and fish sustained us, when "I must go down to the sea again" was an urge not to be denied.

The second time was to stand for hours, maybe walk for miles, for a 30-second glimpse of a beautiful woman and her prince consort. Elizabeth Regina brought to a close the historical period since the American Revolution.

It was something like a catharsis. Until she came, something important had been missing from our relationship with Great Britain. All the wounds hadn't quite healed yet.

It's been quite a week for Boston. Winchester of course is in the Boston community and some of the events of the past ten days had to rub off on our now nearly deserted town.

Whether here or in Boston the refrain was the same, "It's a once-in-a-lifetime event," or "It was worth the two-hour wait to get on the ships — it'll never happen again."

And for all New York's high falutin' celebration of the Tall Ships, we topped them one. We had the U.S.S. Constitution and no other ship on earth can match her.

When the grand old dame fired her cannon twice in one week after decades of silence, the applause from the crowd matched the boom across Boston harbor. She was beautiful.

She was beautiful and regal and a part of our history. And so was Queen Elizabeth all those years.

If the spirit that pervades Boston and Winchester can last and if we can be the ones to spread it across the country so that like a sail filling with salty wind our hearts can fill with love for each other, then this bicentennial celebration will have been a turning point in the history of our country.

Among the sights from the Constitution seen by Jackie Looney: Following the lead of USS Constitution the Polish ship Dar Pomorza was the first Tall Ship to enter Boston Harbor on July 10. The procession of 71 sailing ships, watched by a crowd numbering hundreds of thousands, made their stately way from Deer Island along a parade route to the Boston Army Base pier. (Continued from page 4) a seven period day at Winchester High School in the 1976-77 school year.

We do not understand why on May 25, the entire issue of seven vs. eight periods was allowed to be brought up by a member of the committee when on December 8 a motion in favor of eight periods for the 1976-77 school year was passed. Is it not against parliamentary procedure to take up an issue again without making a motion to rescind or reconsider the previously passed motion?

During the discussion, many inquiries were made as to why the seven period day was being rushed into effect in 1976 rather than waiting one year, thereby allowing for a more in-depth study to be made. It seems to us that these inquiries and speeches by members of the community were not taken into fair consideration by a majority of the school committee members.

Opening the meeting on the 7th, Mr. Larocco made a comment concerning the fact that many National Honor Society members take five or less courses, therefore allowing them time to continue the tutoring program effectively within a seven period day. It comes to our minds that many of the N.H.S. members take A.P. courses requiring or demanding more than the five or six scheduled classes per week for completion. The seven period day does not really allow for this time without reducing other opportunities or classes.

When asked about scheduling, Mr. Larocco said that in reality students who desired to take a sixth course would be able to do so. We would like to question the validity of this statement; there are many courses that are scheduled only once a day. Among these are ones involving the humanities. Many students take courses in music, art, home economics or industrial arts to vary their school day. There are also many students who have strong career aspirations in one or more of these areas. We feel seven periods would diminish the time available for pursuing these interests and talents.

The average college-bound student at WHS takes five major subjects. Every science course at the high school requires at least six periods a week. In some cases, such as independent chemistry and the A.P. science courses, it actually takes upward to ten periods per week. Still other courses require the use of materials that may be utilized only in designated open areas during school hours. Losing the eight period decreases the time available for the for the students to fulfill properly the requirements and prepare for acceptance to college. In the class of '76, 85 per cent of the students planned to further their education.

We would also like to question the procedure of the committee during the entire discussion of seven vs. eight periods. On many occasions, people wishing to express their opinions were not recognized by the chair, even though the meetings were open to the public. If the committee is representing the community why was the community not allowed to completely express its views and question the actions of the committee?

In our opinion the decision made on July 7 goes deeper than the question at hand. The outcome only helps to lessen the quality of education in Winchester for the majority of students.

Thanks friends

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I thank the many friends who attended the reception for me in June as well as the countless number who sent their best wishes to me through the mail.

The following letter was received by me from Senator Edward Brooke after the reception sponsored by the Winchester Republican Town Committee. I would like to share it with the readers of The Star.

Cynthia L. Barone
1 School St.

Dear Cynthia:

As our office relayed to Bill many days prior to June 9th, barring a serious roll call logjam, I would be at the country club late Wednesday afternoon for your reception. As you know, I left a message of regret at the club while the reception was in progress.

You certainly deserve all the good things which were said about you on that exciting and wonderful evening.

It seems like only yesterday that you and Bill were taking me in tow for the first time around the State to meet key Republicans and get my campaign for secretary of state off the ground. Then and in those agonizingly difficult pre-convention and primary months of 1962, when, literally, my political future was in the balance, you were always there with friendship and political sagacity aplenty.

I have never forgotten, and I never will forget.

The state committee already feels your absence and I truly hope that your "retirement" is only going to be a partial one. For this year and even more certainly in 1978, the elephant will be looking around the landscape for Cynthia Barone's guidance and inspiring leadership.

Best to you and thanks again for your service to me and to the party we both love so much.

Edward W. Brooke

Whip the Wildcats

Beavers win town Little League championship title

The National League Beavers defeated the American League Wildcats in a very close, down to the wire town championship game.

The Beavers attacked first with a second inning two-run homerun by third baseman, Mark Kennedy. The Wildcats came back and scored four quick runs to make it 4-2 Wildcats.

In the fifth inning due to heads up base running, the Beavers scored eight runs to make it 12-4. The Wildcats never gave up and in the top of the sixth came back to tie it up after the first two batters were sent down in order.

In the bottom of the last inning with the scored tied, Chris McRae stole second and came around to score and win the game for the Beavers.

The Beavers' tough infield was made up of Mark Kennedy at third, who played one of his best games of the season in the Championship game. He made key defensive plays and went 3 for 3 at the plate.

Sal Giacalone was at shortstop stopping everything that came his way. John Poduska and Mike Heuble shared the duties at second; both playing almost errorless ball all season.

The right side of the infield was rounded out with Howard Penn at first. He was a strong hitter and excellent fielder. Rob McGillicuddy was behind the plate throwing out more than half of the base stealing attempts.

Bill McMillan led the out fielders in center field with his exceptionally strong arm and hot bat at the end of the season. The right field spot was shared between Tony Pachione, Ed Hanson, and Charles Kenyon. All three showed tremendous hustle and played alert baseball. In left field there was John McGillicuddy and Ed O'Connell catching everything that came to them. Chris McRae was the teams utility man playing almost every position. He filled in and did a good job in whatever position he played. Steven Damacogno was the lead-off hitter who hit with strong consistency and led the team in stolen bases. He and Mark Kennedy were the two starting pitchers with John McGillicuddy backing them up in relief.

Coaches Don Martin and Kirk Swanson were jubilant after watching their much improved team play excellent baseball and take the Town Championship.

In celebration of the Fourth of July, Westside Field held its First annual Fourth of July Cookout at Lee Costello's home on July 2.

Activities included a candy hunt, watermelon eating contest, sweatshirt relay, three-legged race and other land races for which ribbons and prizes were awarded.

Costello for all of her help, Karen Whitley-First for her photographs, and Mahoney's Rocky Lodge Farm for supplying watermelon for the feast. The cookout was concluded by handing out ice creams, Reeses Cups, and exchanging Fourth of July wishes.

At Westside the park was improved by the addition of a flower and vegetable garden. Flower pots were planted and taken home to be later replanted in the thriving garden. ## McDonald Twins win three in a row

The McDonald Twins made it three in a row last Tuesday as they pounded the Westsiders 12 to 5. Leading the way for the Twins was shortstop Frank Vozzella who belted a two run homer, a double, and a single. Also joining the hit parade was Guy Cafarella who smacked a long drive over the center field fence. In the pitching department Paul Marshall picked up his first win with a little help from his brother Steve in the last inning.

On Wednesday the Twins maintained their hot streak as they dumped the Ginn A's 4 to 1. Ed Pratt picked up his second win of the season. Pratt struck out 10 and allowed only two scattered hits in going the route. Good baserunning and aggressive baseball keyed the Twins victory, as they were allowed only three hits but took advantage of each one. Playing key roles were Frank Vozzella, Craig Bradley, and Dave Bradley.

In other A league action last week Ginn and Leonard's battled to a 8-8 tie which had to be called because of time. The game will be continued this week Wednesday afternoon. The upset of the week occurred at Leonard's field Thursday when the Westside Red Sox gained their initial win of the season after three straight defeats. The final tally was Westside 10, Leonard's 9. The winning run was brought across by a Joe McIssac suicide bunt. The game was saved for the Westsiders earlier by a key defensive double play by Hugo LaFauci. Dave Garnaccia went the route for the kids from the Westside.

1976 regatta

Towle sweeps three straight to win WBC's Snipe crown

Sweeping three straight races in a fleet of 32 boats, Norm Towle of Arlington won the Winchester Boat Club's 1976 Snipe Invitational Regatta here last weekend.

The three firsts earned the WBC skipper a perfect score of zero under the international scoring system. In the battle for runnerup, WBC's Tom Legere got three second places for nine points and nudged out Cottage Park's Joe Petrucci with 13.7 points.

Sunday's final race witnessed the two WBC competitors, Towle and Legere, in one of their typically thrilling tacking duels. Into southeasterly winds 15-20 miles an hour, they beat through the Upper Mystic Lake nose to nose on the initial windward leg. Near the first mark, however, Towle got the best of a couple of tricky puffs rounded the buoy in the lead, and was never seriously challenged after that.

The annual Snipe invitational, one of the big sailing events of the Winchester Boat Club season since the early 50's attracted 19 entries from other clubs. There were two races on Saturday, a lakeside dinner Saturday evening, and a final race Sunday.

Posted scores were as follows:
Norm Towle and Beth Towle (crew), WBC, zero points; Tom Legere and Kristin Legere (crew), WBC, 9 points; Joe Petrucci and Chip Canty (crew), Cottage Park, 13.7 points; Ralph Swanson Jr. and Lisa Levaggi (crew), WBC, 16 points; Dave Rogers and Ted St. John (crew), Quassapaug Park, 19 points.

Jack McInnis and Tricia Simboli (crew), WBC, 19.4 points; Sue Tabor and Gene Kennas (crew), Cottage Park, 24 points; Bill McInnis and Jim McInnis (crew), Barrington, R.I., 26 points; John Lally and Chita Lally (crew), Cottage Park, 34.7 points.

Art Cunningham and Ned Towle (crew), Derry, 37.7 points; Dave Lence and Dennis Diuray (crew), WBC, 38.4 points; Tom Raphael and Connie Raphael (crew), WBC, 39 points; George Schwenk and D. Arconi (crew), Quassapaug Park, 40 points; D. Patrick, WBC, 40.7 points.

Buddy Freil and Mark Freil (crew), Town River Yacht Club, 42 points; Glen Younie and J. Younie (crew), Spofford, 43

200 on recreation field trips here

Every Friday is "special events" day for town playgrounds and this past Friday proved to be very special for over 200 town youngsters.

Eighty children and adults from McDonald and Westside fields along with the Arts and Crafts students traveled to the Prudential Center, Boston, to view the "Boston 200" Bicentennial movie "Where's Boston."

The movie was a video masterpiece using eight different screens and four sound speakers to show how Boston has developed. After the show the children went 50 floors up to the Prudential Skywalk, where they enjoyed a beautiful view of the Boston area in every direction. Along with the view there is a 15 minute recorded description of the area you are viewing. Leonard and Ginn fields will depart for this trip at 10 a.m. Friday from the Town Hall parking lot.

Over 125 town youngsters from Ginn and Leonard Fields departed from Town Hall Friday morning for a day at Canobie Lake Park, Salem, N.H.

This trip will be repeated this Friday for youngsters from McDonald and Westside fields along with students from the Arts and Crafts program. Buses will leave Town Hall parking lot at 11 a.m. and return at 4:30 p.m. Permission slips are required and must be turned in at the Recreation office. The Sport Shop, or at your local playground.

The matron of honor and bridesmaid wore identical long cotton dresses in a patchwork pattern in shades of blue, rose, and beige with V necklines trimmed with lace and long sheer white sleeves. ## Petition supports Beano bill filed by Sen. Bullock

Petitions are now being circulated at area Beano games in support of Senate bill 362. The bill, filed by State Senator John Bullock, would increase the amount of winnings that must be reported to the state for tax purposes.

Presently, any person who wins over twenty-five dollars must report his or her winnings to pay state taxes on the winnings to the Department of Corporation and Taxation.

However, a person who wins at the race track need only report his or her winnings if they amount to over $600.00.

Sen. Bullock's bill would remedy this inequity and raise the beano limit to $600. Petitions will be circulated during the next few weeks to urge the legislature to pass the bill.

Meeting to focus on coping with aging relative

Issues in Coping with an Aging Relative will be the subject of a series of four consecutive weekly Thursday evening meetings beginning on July 29, offered by Counseling Collaborative of Lexington. Mrs. Jane Adolph, ACSW, social worker specializing in geriatrics, teacher and consultant to geriatric residential facilities, will lead the series.

After an introductory session to define the specific areas of concern to the participants, there will be three more meetings to provide information and to concentrate on questions such as:

How do you assess what are your elderly relative's needs, capabilities and prognosis? What are the options that you have vis a vis community resources, placement, financial arrangements etc.?

How do you choose a nursing home? What should you know about consumer issues and rights of the elderly individual?

What are your own feelings and needs as a concerned family member?

Once a plan is decided upon, how best can it be implemented and handled?

The meetings will be held at Counseling Collaborative, 789 Massachusetts ave., Lexington (near Follen Church). Reservations should be made by calling the collaborative. There is a charge for the series of four meetings, but the opening session is free. Everyone is welcome.

Sober thoughts

Dear Sober Thoughts:

I have been following your column since it started in April, and I must say I am disappointed. You have never taken a stand on the evils of alcohol. It is evil to sell it, evil to serve it, and evil to drink it; and you should say so.

Disappointed

Dear Disappointed:

You must have missed the article in the March 25, 1976 Star which introduced the column.

The Winchester Alcohol Education Committee coordinates the column. There are consultants from many professional fields who actually answer the questions.

We are all interested in helping people understand what alcohol is, what it can do to the body, and how to handle problems that are alcohol related.

Total abstinence for religious or moral reasons is an individual choice. Our column is meant to emphasize responsible use of alcohol by those who choose to use it at all. Sorry to disappoint you.

Sober Thoughts

Dear Sober Thoughts:

Does drinking in the morning affect you differently from drinking at night?

Night Worker

Dear Night Worker:

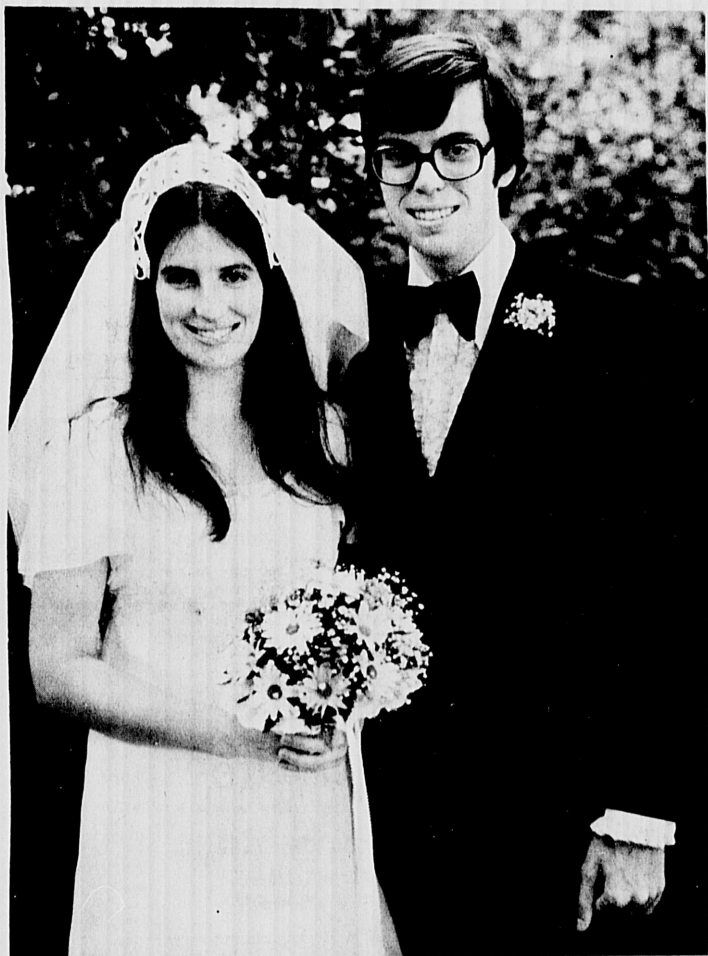

In your case, probably not. If your work day ends in the morning and you have a drink, a big meal, and go to bed, you won't be affected any differently from a person who works days and sleeps night.

A person who sleeps nights and has a job to do or classes to during the day and drinks alcohol in the morning is another story.

Because all food has been digested during the night, the morning drink will enter the blood stream very rapidly, and effects will be magnified. You have heard the expressions "Pick-me-up" or "Hair of the dog that bit me?" Alcohol works the same way an anesthetic does and helps mask the symptoms of a hangover. But it also impairs judgment and memory. The person who regularly uses alcohol this way needs help. The telephone number for the Alcohol Information Referral Center is 524-7884.

Sober Thoughts

If there are questions you would like answered in this column, write to SOBER THOUGHTS, P.O. Box 86, Winchester, Mass. 01890.

Porter rows to victory at Henley with Harvard crew

Winchester's Henry Porter was in the seventh seat as the Harvard freshman heavyweight crew captured the Thames Challenge Cup at the Henley Royal Regatta at Henley-on-Thames, England.

Harvard scored a come-from-behind triumph in the July 4 finals to defeat the home town Henley Rowing Club by less than a second. Harvard earned the finals of this prestigious international meet with impressive preliminary wins over Molesey Rowing Club (England); Imperial College (England); and Hansa Dartmund (West Germany) and a semifinals win over a quick eight from Christiana College (Norway).

The Henley Rowing Club qualified for the finals with a semifinals triumph over Eastern Sprints lightweight champion University of Pennsylvania.

Harvard coach Ted Washburn was delighted with the squad's win, although he admitted to some anxious moments during the race.

"This crew has amazed me all year," conceded Washburn. "They have come from behind in every race. It's tough on a coach—cardiac arrest on a weekly basis. But they deliver what I ask."

The win represented Harvard's first title at Henley since 1972, when a freshman crew, including three members of the 1976 U.S. Olympic eight, captured the Thames Cup.

The victory at Henley capped a perfect season for the Harvard freshmen. They posted a 5-0 regular season mark and captured their division championship at the Eastern Sprints championships in May. Washburn added, "What's really amazing is that four of these guys had never rowed before this year."

Porter is a 1975 graduate of the Belmont Hill School, where he was student council president and senior class president. An active participant in football and crew at Belmont Hill, Porter was in the four-with coxswain shell that captured its division in the 1973 New England Rowing Championships.

A government and economics major at Harvard, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Porter Jr. of 9 Lawson rd.

Mrs. Janet Meyer

Morse - Meyer nuptials

Janet Marjorie Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal R. Morse, Jr. of 7 Fairlane ter., became the bride of Douglas William Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eugene Meyer of Indianapolis, Ind. in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony June 12. The nuptials were performed by Dr. Leon Hatch at Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white silk organza, chantilly and alencon lace, with a wattle train. The sheer yoke was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. Her full length veil was also trimmed with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Royal R. Morse III, sister-in-law of the bride from Pittsfield, was the matron of honor, with Mrs. James Adzima, cousin of the bride from Cleveland, Ohio; Karyn Zabel of Burlington, Vt.; and Mrs. Julian Fabian of Madison, Ohio as the bridesmaids.

The matron of honor wore a yellow polyester crepe gown with square neckline featuring lace inserts in the skirt and lace trimmed bell sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies, baby's breath, and ivy. The bridesmaids' gowns were identical to the matron of honor. They carried nosegays of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

Exchange group looking for hosts

Residents in the Winchester area are being asked to open their "hearts and homes" to students from Europe and South America who will arrive in August.

The International Cultural Exchange (ICX) is looking for host families who will provide room and board for the students for a year. The students have all their travel expenses paid, sufficient spending money and accident insurance.

Charles Bullwinkle, field representative for ICX, says that in spite of all the preliminary work, including screening of students and transportation arrangements, the trip will not become a reality if homes are not found for the visitors.

Per Johnson, 16, from Sweden, whose interests include physics and war-gaming, and Santiago Pinto, 17, of Ecuador, an avid tennis player and swimmer, are two of the students still available to local families.

For further information, contact Bullwinkle at 5 Marlowe st., Boston.

Recycling cans helps Muscular Dystrophy Assoc.

Every Wednesday this summer from 2-3 p.m. Winchester residents can "Clean up for Muscular Dystrophy" by recycling aluminum at the Burlington Mall.

A mobile recycling unit makes regular stops at the Burlington Mall; those wishing to contribute should tell the driver they want the proceeds donated to the MDA. Donations are also welcome at the recycling service center in Newton Upper Falls, open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

YMCA offer chance to get back in shape

Are your clothes getting too tight for comfort? Does your stomach (rather than fashion) dictate the style of clothes you buy? Did you pull a muscle just by getting up off the couch from three hours of glaring at the tube? How many chins do you have to shave in the morning? If you had to run 100 yards to save a loved one, could you make it?

If you aren't proud of your answers to these questions, then you need a physical fitness program so that exercise becomes part of your lifestyle.

Years ago when there wasn't a great deal of scientific information about adult fitness, there were a lot of persons who laughed out loud at those few dodos in sweatsuits huffing and puffing along, or those funny guys who rode their bicycles everywhere they went.

Well today a lot of those persons have been buried and the dodos are still huffing and puffing along and the funny guys are still riding their bicycles everywhere.

It took a dedicated professor of physical education to prove that "exercise deficiency" is a direct route to the short life.

Dr. Herbert deVries of the University of Southern California proved this with the results gathered from 41 subjects. Prior to allowing them to participate in any form of exercise, he subjected them to a screening test to determine their physical condition.

Next came the huffing and puffing for an hour a day, three days a week. The test subjects were subjected to a specific routine of calisthenics and jogging.

After only ten weeks, the difference between exercising oldsters and a group of nonexercisers the same age was profound.

Dr. deVries found that his exercises normalized or reduced blood pressure, his subjects lost weight, and the proportion of body fat decreased. The subjects had better muscle tone and strength, and they developed an increased ability to relax; their capacity to work physically improved approximately ten per cent.

Dr. deVries attributes many chronic ailments to lack of exercise and feels that jogging is one of the best all-round types of conditioning, mainly because it involves virtually every part of the body.

To jog or not to jog...There is no question. Unless you are presently engaged in a regular program which includes jogging, you should start tomorrow.

The first step you should take should be in the direction of the doctor's office. Providing he gives you the green light, you're ready to begin, and that is where the problem is.

You don't know how far or how fast, and there is no way you can tell whether what you are doing is helping or harming you. This is why most physical educators emphasize that any man or woman contemplating an exercise program should not start on his or her own. The approach to fitness is specific, and persons should be guided through a series of calculated routines with professional directors and supervision.

The North Suburban YMCA in Woburn has these types of programs.

For more information, contact Fred Fallon, physical director, at the North Suburban YMCA, 137 Lexington st., Woburn.

Peter Kent on BU news team at Dem. Convention

Peter Kent of 2 Central Green, Winchester, will be covering the Democratic National Convention in New York City this week with a team of Boston University journalism students who will be reporting on the event for 14 radio stations throughout the nation.

Kent will work with about 50 student-broadcast journalists and technicians. The news operation, for which participants earn college credit, began July 5, with what School of Public Communication Professor Blaine Littell termed "close order drills."

"For a week prior to the convention, the drills include practice sessions emphasizing clear, direct news-writing, composing 30-second and 45-second news broadcasts, and even practice typing sessions," Littell said.

Littell, who came to Boston University three years ago after working for many years as a news correspondent with the three major television networks, points out, "With Jimmy Carter's nomination assured, the students will have to work even harder and use more imagination if they are going to provide the subscriber stations with interesting broadcasts. As the convention floor activity is televised," he explained, "most of our activity will involve reporting on delegates from the radio stations' respective states."

University students began their coverage of the once-every-four-year political event with the New Hampshire primary elections. They later covered primaries in Massachusetts and New York.

During the upcoming convention, the group will be housed at the Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, and will work from headquarters at the McAlpin Hotel.

"As with our coverage of the primaries," said Littell who has worked as a journalist in Africa, Israel and Vietnam, "We are attempting to help students develop a feeling for the narrowing gap between the classroom and professional life."

He continued, "We will do everything possible to create a realistic professional working atmosphere. For example, in the classroom a late paper may be accepted, but in this operation, as with any radio station," he emphasized, "those who fail to meet important deadlines can actually be dismissed."

The participating radio stations are, in Massachusetts: WBCN and WBUR, Boston; WAAB and WAAF, Worcester; WLLH, Lowell; WPEP, Taunton; and WSBS, Great Barrington.

Coins have a special appeal for the small investor because they provide a way to buy a limited amount of gold in an intriguing form. In addition to their gold content, many coins carry considerable numismatic value—measured in terms of scarcity, collector interest, and coin condition. These qualities can add a significant premium to coins, however, sometimes doubling the cost from the prevailing price of gold contained in the coin. You must know what you are doing when you invest in collector's coins.

Bible study series offered

The Radiant Living Seminar lecture series begins this Sunday night, July 18, at 7:15 p.m. in the Holiday Inn of Woburn, and continues each Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday through August 21. The complete series is offered to the public free of charge.

In announcing the series, Mark Finley, Radiant Living Seminar director, said, "Man's great quest is for inner certainty. He desires answers to Life's basic questions: Where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going?"

The Radiant Living Seminar is dedicated to unfolding answers to these questions." He continued, "The problems of overpopulation, inflation, crime, and thermonuclear warfare facing our world defy human solutions. The world's greatest thinkers are baffled as they contemplate these enormous problems. Ours is an age of increasing pessimism. So, for this generation, the message of the scriptures is extremely relevant. It presents a message of hope for troubled minds."

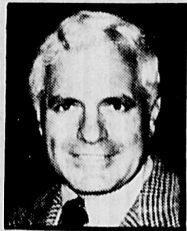

Every Radiant Living Seminar program begins with a presentation on health, nutrition, or on family living. On July 18, the program will begin with a health film on stress, dealing with how to calm nerves and control tension. After the health presentation the children meet separately for special studies on nature, Bible stories, and crafts. Parents desiring to attend the lecture series are encouraged to bring their children.

The major focus of each evening is a prophetic Bible lecture by Mr. Finley. Sunday night his lecture will be, "The Future of Planet Earth." In it he will discuss history in the light of Bible prophecy. Commenting on the lecture he stated, "The history of our world with the rise and fall of empires was unfolded over 2500 years ago to the ancient King of Babylon, Nebuchadnezzar. All which has been predicted, has been fulfilled unto the present, that which is yet to come will also be soon fulfilled in its order."

"In our lecture Sunday night we shall discuss the next world ruling power." Printed copies of each lecture will be distributed at the conclusion of each program. The Bible is the textbook throughout the series, and each person is given a copy as he enters the auditorium. Scriptural references are announced by page number for ease of finding the text. After attending 12 of the 21 lectures, the Bible is given to the person free of charge.

SPIRITS OF '76

by DAN BUSA

Cordials like Cointreau make the delectable difference in main dishes, desserts, cocktails (you simply cannot make a Side Car or White Lady without Cointreau Liqueur). Try the following delicious marinade and basting sauce: 1/2 cup melted butter, 4 cups Sherry wine, 4 teaspoons powdered cloves, 1/2 cup dry mustard, 2 oz. Cointreau Liqueur, 1/4 cup brown sugar and 4 teaspoons paprika. Combine sauce ingredients and marinate meat in mixture for two hours, turning once.

Broil to taste, turning frequently and basting with marinade. . . Mmmmmmm!! Company or family dinners can be made more festive with a bottle of imported or domestic wines. BUSA LIQUORS is also the exclusive distributor for "Spirits of '76" products. Our staff is always pleased to assist you with all your needs - just stop in at our locations in Burlington and Lexington. Stores are open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mon. thru Sat. Telephone: 861-1776.

Help invited to prepare for Seniors' Fall Fiesta Fair

It has been called to the attention of the Winchester Seniors' Association Fair Committee that the citizenry of the town may not be aware of the purpose of the fall-Fiesta Fair to be held on September 15 at Hadley Hall, Epiphany Church.

This is entirely apart from any church fair. All of the proceeds of the fair will be turned over to the Winchester Seniors' Association Building Fund.

Workshops are being held throughout the summer to make articles to be sold at the fair. All interested people are invited to help with things for the Christmas table on July 15 at 1:30 p.m. at 37 Glen Green. Many hands make light work in creating Christmas ornaments. Hundreds of articles are needed to make the fair a financial success.

For those who enjoy doing crewel work, Miss Hilda Hope has complete kits available. Knitting, crocheting, and sewing are needed.

All kinds of needle-work will be welcomed for the gift table as well as articles for the White Elephant table (those things you need no longer), and the Wishing Well (of wrapped gifts). Aprons, items for the Silent Auction, materials of plastic, jewelry, plants, homemade preserves, and anything salable will be accepted eagerly by the committee chaired by Hilda Hope.

We encourage you to bring back a salable item from your travels to distant places this summer. Let your Winchester spirit shine through and either create or donate articles for this most worthy cause. You don't have to be a senior citizen to be a volunteer. Come to the workshops. Get in touch with the office of the Council on aging for more complete information.

Help to keep this project alive so that the Building Fund will really thrive. Items that you provide will be stepping stones toward the success of this important venture.

'Cyrano' to be performed at summer community theater

One of fiction's most famous heroes will visit Winchester this summer.

The Winchester Summer Community Theater will play host to "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Winchester High School Auditorium on the evenings of July 29, 30, and 31. With a vocabulary larger than Noah Webster's and a nose more memorable than Bob Hope's, Cyrano is the unforgettable creation of Edmond Rostand. The role is as tempting as Hamlet and has been played in recent years by Jose Ferrer and Christopher Plummer.

Steven White will head the cast of 15 in the title role, accompanied by Winchester's stellar performer, Mary Klug as Roxane, the lovely object of Cyrano's romantic dreams. Roxane unfortunately loves only Christian, Cyrano's tongue-tied companion played by Jeffrey Ryan of Belmont.

Winchesterites in the cast include Alan Eyden, Phillip Green, Phillip Green, Ellen McCarthy, Elizabeth Ann Farrell, Kathy Dorsey, and Wendy Klug. Other cast members well known to Winchester audiences are Dick and Kaye Cox of Concord. Dick has directed and played in several productions of the W.S.C.T., notably "A Shot In The Dark" and "You Can't Take It With You."

"Cyrano" is being directed by Ed Burdick who was a memorable Elwood P. Dowd in last fall's production of "Harvey," presented by the Unitarian Players. Ed recently directed the local entry in the New England Theater Council's one-act play competition. Prior to his arrival in these parts, Ed accumulated years of experience in the professional theater, including a long run with the national company of the Broadway hit, "The Boys In The Band." Under his sure hand, a unique event in Winchester's theater history is taking shape.

Performances will begin at 8. Ticket reservations may be made by calling 729-5435.

Lynn Fraleigh

Lynn Fraleigh of Wakefield died July 7 at the New England Memorial Hospital, in Stoneham.

She was born in Burlington, Vt. in 1928 and was a graduate of Middlebury College. She received her master's in education degree from Loyola University, Baltimore, MD and did graduate work at Boston College.

For 19 years Miss Fraleigh was a dedicated braille research teacher in the John F. Kennedy School in Medford. Visually handicapped children, kindergarten through grade 9, from surrounding towns, were privileged to have been in her care.

Three Winchester students who have participated in this braille program are a credit to Miss Fraleigh's untiring guidance - John Smith of Sylvester Avenue, now a senior at M.I.T.; Jimmy Badger of Fletcher Street and Timmy Cummings of Pond Street, who will be well qualified to join their sighted friends, in the Winchester Public Schools in another year, thanks to Miss Fraleigh's encouragement.

In 1974 she was honored by being invited to study at Telesensory Systems, Inc. in Palo Alto, Calif. Here she was trained to teach the use of the opticon, an electronic device which enables the blind to read from the printed page.

Miss Fraleigh is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Fraleigh, of Essex Junction, Vt.; her grandmother, Mrs. Judson Blackmon, age 95, of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; one brother, John and his wife, Eleanor Fraleigh of Narragansett, R.I. and their four children, Joan, Janet Susan, and Robert.

A memorial service will be held on July 20 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Patrick's Church, in Stoneham where Miss Fraleigh was a teacher of Christian Doctrine. Relatives and friends are invited.

At her request memorials may be sent to The Jimmy Fund, care of Hotel Statler, Boston, 02117.

Wants You To Know - The Entire Production

Scene 6

Scene 7

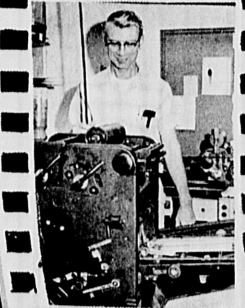

Scene 8

Scene 9

Scene 10

Scene One

The finished ad and news copy, headlines, and pictures are put together at paste-up. They are attached to pieces of heavy paper called "flats," each the size of the newspaper page. Glue or wax is used to make the copy stick to the pages. A negative is made of the entire page and from this the plate for the press is made.

Scene Two

This ECRM optical character reading machine automatically reads specially typed copy produced by the editorial staffs. The typing must be done on a special typewriter and marked with codes. On the screen to the right the operator can see the words and make corrections. The ECRM when it finishes reading the typed copy punches a perforated tape.

Scene Three

At these keyboards typists retype news and advertising copy which comes from the editorial and advertising staffs. Keyboards are similar to typewriters, but perforate a tape instead of producing a typed sheet of paper. The typesetting machines have adjustment for special functions such as bold facing captions.

Scene Four

The Compugraphic machines in the computer room set the type from the perforated tapes, paying attention to codes on the tapes and special settings to make adjustments for column widths and spacing between lines. The computers automatically space out words, practically eliminating hyphens. The words are transferred to photographic paper which is in a light-tight box in the machines. The paper in these boxes is fed through chemicals in another machine which develop the paper so that the words appear.

Scene Five

Large sizes of type, such as news headlines and display lines for advertisements, are produced on a Compugraphic 7200 headliner. The letters are set by a typist who can see the letters on a terminal and make adjustment for spacing. Instead of punching a tape, the letters are produced on photographic paper which is developed.

Scene Six

The Compuwriter IV allows typist to produce format copy in which the whole piece can be done as one unit, instead of as individual lines of large and small type produced on different machines. This machine will do an ad, for example with a large heading, different sizes and styles of body copy, all to the specified size on one piece of paper.

Scene Seven

Proofreading is done at three Hendrix machines. The perforated tapes which are produced by the ECRM machine and by the keyboard typists are "read" by the people. Before any words have appeared on paper, the machines read the tapes and show the words on the video terminal screens. Here the operator can edit and make changes in copy. A final perforated tape is produced which includes all additions, deletions and corrections.

Scene Eight

The separate lines of type which are set for advertisements, from the larger display lines to the small body copy, are put together with art work according to the layouts supplied by the advertising salesmen by staff paste-up artists.

Scene Nine

Several darkroom functions are performed each week from developing and printing pictures taken by the staff to making halftone negatives of each picture, making enlargements and reductions of copy and art work, and making page negatives.

Scene Ten

After page negatives are made, photographic negatives are stripped into place and the entire negative is opaqued (retouched). This is done to correct any deficiencies such as scratches or dirty areas which may occur from the time the negatives are developed to the time they are dried.

Scene Eleven

At Star Printers George Murray does offset job printing including business cards, envelopes and stationery, brochures and notices. Typesetting for these jobs is done on Century's computers, thus giving customers a wide variety of type faces to choose from.

Three youths hospitalized from car smashup following police chase into Woburn

Three Winchester teenagers remain in the hospital, one at each Massachusetts General, Choate Memorial, and Winchester after a police chase originating in Winchester at 1:20 a.m. Tuesday ended when the car in which the youths were riding rammed into a stone wall at Main and Green streets, Woburn.

Mark O'Brien, 18, of 205 Mystic Valley Parkway, the driver of the car, was being pursued by Winchester officers John Oliver and Kenneth Albertelli for motor violations, including speeding, failure to stop for a police officer, failure to stop at a red light, failure to stop at a stop sign, driving to endanger, and operating a motor vehicle after revocation of the drivers license.

O'Brien was taken by ambulance to Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn with hip, ankle, and arm injuries. His condition is reported stable.

Two juvenile passengers in the car with O'Brien also suffered injuries. One was taken to the Choate but later transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital with multiple injuries, including head injuries.

The other juvenile fled the scene after impact and later Tuesday turned himself into Winchester Hospital with severe injuries. His condition is reported stable.

The car was being pursued north on Main street from Winchester into the south end of Woburn. It turned onto Fowler street and proceeded to Fulton, making a sharp turn onto Green street.

Woburn police, notified by Winchester, were prepared to block off Green and Main streets, but the car slammed into the stone wall on the property of Luie Molinaro of 226 Main st.

Police said their blue dome lights were flashing and sirens were sounding but that the car did not respond.

Winchester and Woburn police are investigating the possibility that material found in the vehicle may be in violation of narcotics laws.

So far, charges are being brought only against the driver of the car, Mark O'Brien.

Wedge Pond guards save boy

Lifeguards Michael Gilberti and Richard Hines have been credited by police with saving the life of George Parker, a 16-year-old swimmer at Wedge Pond who was knocked unconscious while holding onto the raft at the end of the swimming area. The accident occurred at about 4:55 Monday, July 12.

Parker had been in the water when another youth dived over him, accidentally hitting him on the head with his knee. Parker was struck unconscious and fell to the bottom of the pond.

Gilberti and Hines "did react swiftly and expertly as a team effort in locating and reviving the swimmer and further aided his rescue with expert first aid by supporting him in the water until he could be placed on proper transportation equipment," according to the letter of commendation sent to the two lifeguards from acting Police Chief William T. Haggerty.

Hines, who observed the accident, swam out to the raft and recovered the Parker youth, who was still unconscious. After breathing had been established, Hines supported the young man in the water in case there had been any spinal injuries.

When police officers Peter Morgan and John Alford arrived with the ambulance, they supported Parker with an orthopedic stretcher and transported him to the Winchester Hospital.

The letter of commendation further states that "the Town of Winchester is fortunate to have you (both Hines and Gilberti) as a lifeguard at one of our recreational areas. It is especially comforting to realize that well trained, knowledgeable personnel such as yourself are on duty, and able to react instantly to the needs of the community."

Richard Hines lives at 1 Eaton court and Michael Gilberti lives at 7 Clematis st. George Parker resides at 9 Warren st.

Walking along this end of the duck pond on these summery days, one can almost feel transported to the jungle. The weeping willows lend a mysterious ambience to the area.

Candidates swap charges in re-election campaigns for county commissioner

by Larry Bartoň

Charges of fraud, possible criminal violation and conflict of interest abound in the current re-election campaigns of two of the three Middlesex County Commissioners.

Seven candidates have filed for the two County Commissioners seats up for grabs in November; the two incumbents, Mayor Lester Ralph of Somerville and State Representative Michael McLaughlin of Billerica, are making the most serious charges in the campaign.

Both Ralph and McLaughlin charge each other with hiring and firing county personnel for political purposes, with owning city departments in their respective communities, and with using their office to further political ambitions.

Ralph Charges

Mayor Lester Ralph says he is "disgusted" with the "petty politics" that his colleague, Michael McLaughlin, has used in office.

He charges that McLaughlin has put a number of friends and political aides onto the county payroll. Documents at the county courthouse do indicate that McLaughlin has approved hiring of people with whom he has been associated in personal and political life.

Among other things, Mayor Ralph says that McLaughlin is "a junior John Dever (a former Commissioner) who runs the county in the spirit of the old courthouse gang of a decade ago." He says that McLaughlin and the third County Commissioner, John Danahy of Cambridge, conspired "to take anything that was good in county government and place filth and graft in its place."

Ralph says he will often show up at the county courthouse on Tuesdays at 10 a.m. for the commissioners meeting but that the other two commissioners will not show up. "I will wait until 11 or 11:15 and then adjourn the meeting for a lack of a quorum." He adds that at noon after Ralph has left the courthouse, the other commissioners walk in and convene the meeting while he is not present.

Ralph charges that both McLaughlin and Danahy conspired to fire his administrative assistant Jean Rubenstein last year and that the two appointed Ted Stewart, one of

$122,292 cut

School board brings budget into line with town meeting

Through a series of adjustments, the Winchester School Committee has managed in recent weeks to bring its budget in line with the figures approved by town meeting in June.

Though not all of the cuts are as recommended by the finance committee, the final figure is the same: $8,414,313. Personal services takes up the largest portion of the budget, totaling $6,824,110. Other expenses amount to $1,560,523, while equipment costs are budgeted at $29,680.

The original school committee budget recommendation to town meeting had been $122,292 higher than the figure approved by the meeting.

The largest cut of $44,064 came out of funds allotted for salary ratios for counselors and specialists. The ratios were paid by contract to teachers for work in more than one school; new contracts are presently under negotiation.

Other deletions under personal services were $26,000 for employee turnover and longevity payments and $4000 for two-fifths of a teacher position at McCall Junior High School.

The longevity cuts were possible because no one had applied for this year; the employee turnover cut refers to the hiring of employees on the lower pay steps to fill positions opened by retirement and resignations. The McCall cut was made possible by an unanticipated drop in enrollment figures.

Under other expenses, $20,728 was eliminated from the funds allocated for replacement and repair of walls and lavatories; $20,000 was chopped off the budget for fuel and electricity; $2200 came out of the tuition account; and $1800 was cut from the budget for special education phones.

The tuition fund cut came about because no one applied to the Essex Vocational School.

An additional $3500 came out of the equipment budget. Most of the money was slated for desks and chairs; and the amount budgeted for a new piano was cut from $700 to $250.

Winchester's special children

Chapter 766 serving 500 local students

Christine Wiseman is hard at work and having fun at the same time. Here she is improving hand-sight perception and coordination by drawing and coloring from learning materials especially geared for her particular needs.

John Sevingy, Mark McLeod, and Christine Wiseman are among the more than 500 Winchester students who receive state-mandated special needs education. In this room at the Ambrose School tutors and instructors have learning and teaching apparatus specifically designed to help these students reach their full potential.

"766," "special needs," "core evaluation" - these are all terms that have become part of educational jargon. What do they mean?

766 has been praised and disparaged in the last year. It is, simply, a law passed by the Massachusetts State legislature which became effective September 1, 1974, guaranteeing to every child in the Commonwealth the right to a free and public education regardless of handicaps.

"Special needs" is a term defined under the law with reference to a school-age child who has been determined to have special needs because of temporary or permanent intellectual or emotional problems, or sensory or physical impairments.

The law further defines the process by which such special needs are determined - the core evaluation - and personnel who are to be involved in such an evaluation.

Winchester has more than 500 students with "special needs." These students are served by school staff under the Director of Pupil Services, Howard Niblock, and William Dissinger, Coordinator of Special Education.

The range of special needs is great. One child may receive a short period each week of speech therapy; another may attend a residential school outside Winchester. The intermediate area is vast. Special needs instructors and speech therapists see approximately 75 percent of the children in the program on a regular basis in their own school during their regular school program.

About 20 percent of children with special needs attend special classes within our system. During the core evaluation process it has been determined that the needs of these children can best be met in self-contained classrooms with a prescribed teacher/pupil ratio of one-eighth or one-twelfth with an aide. Wherever possible, children are "mainstreamed" into the regular school program.

There are eight special classes in Winchester, one each at McCall, Lynch, Ambrose, Washington, and Muraco, and three at Lincoln. Four of these classes are part of the SEEM collaborative program in which Winchester participates with six other towns. Why would a child be assigned to a special class? The answer has to do with his specific needs and requirements for intensive help and specially designed curriculum at a level he can handle. Such children would not be able to function on a full-time basis in a regular classroom. Frequently children who have had a period of intense help in a certain area can then be integrated back into a regular classroom program.

There are, further, a small number of children who are enrolled in special schools outside Winchester, such as Fernald School, Hogan, or Dever. These schools provide for children with handicaps which require full-time care and specialized educational procedures; in some cases, however, educational programs are inadequate and are provided locally through SEEM. It should be pointed out that tuitions for children placed in out-of-district schools have traditionally been paid by the state, but subsequently deducted from the state reimbursement to the town. Currently, however, the state is shifting the

This is the first in a series of articles dealing with the special needs programs Winchester is offering its children. The series was compiled through the efforts of the Advisory Committee on Special Education, Richard E. Cary, chairman. Those directly responsible for its writing were Sheila Clark and Susan Stahler, special needs instructors in the school system, and Sandy Thompson, a member of the advisory committee.

Positions open on town boards: apply by Wed.

There are posted vacancies for the following town boards and committees: personnel board - 5 vacancies; insurance commission - 1; methods and procedures committee - 2; permanent building committee - 1; finance committee - 5.

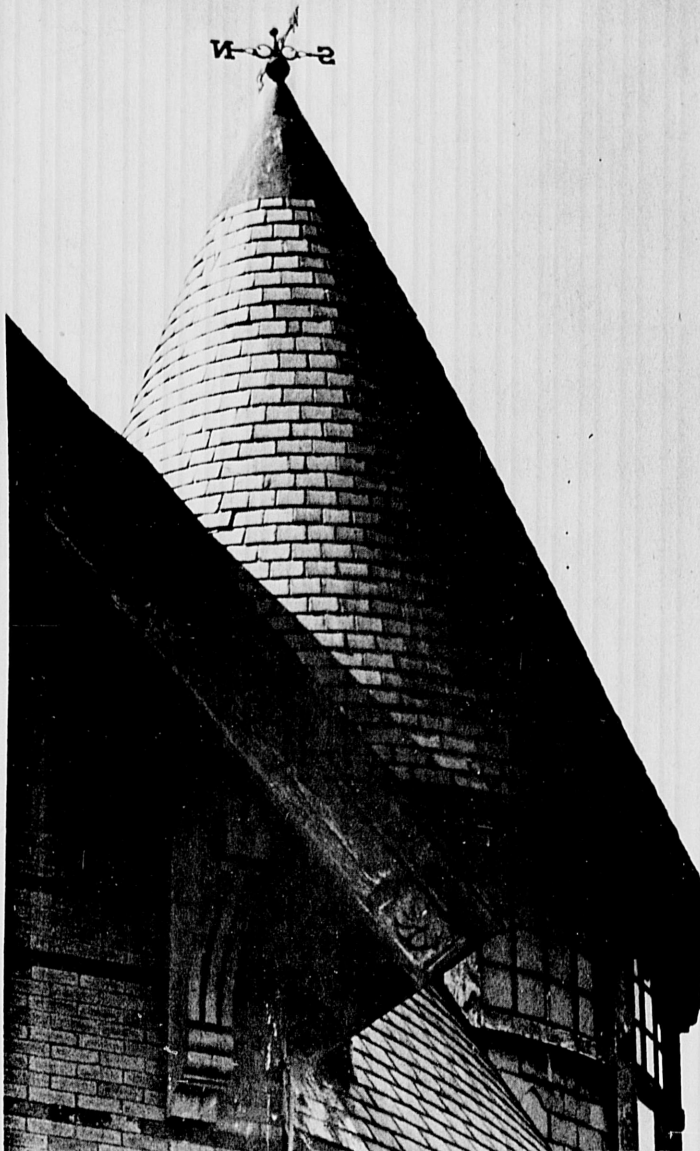

Anyone interested in serving in these positions may submit a letter of interest and qualifications to Town Moderator Raymond Kenney before July 28.

There is also a vacancy for recreation coordinator at a minimum salary of $8131. The position grade is P-T-5. Resumes may be sent to the recreation department, Town Hall.

Stoney Jacobs, working for the park department, was one of five men who cleared some ten loads of algae and weeds from the duck pond during the past week. It took seven work days for all the weeds to be cleaned out with the use of two men in a boat to loosen them, another to man the rope, and two to pull out the debris with long handled rakes.

Tourism directors for county named

Middlesex County Commissioners have announced the names of the ten new members elected to serve on the Board of Directors of the Middlesex County Tourism and Development Council Inc. as forwarded by the executive director, Thomas B. Daly.

These ten members were selected from a large list of nominees presented by members of the board and the county commissioners. The expansion of the board of directors resulted from a by-law change to have more representation from the hospitality and business industry. The MCDTC acts as an agent for the Middlesex County Commissioners and its chairman, Michael E. McLaughlin, in the promotion of the resources of the county.

The newly elected board of directors are: William Cunha, Owner of old oaken Bucket Restaurant, Westford; Dr. Charles M. Yardi, owner of Thunderbird Country Club, Tyngsboro; Stanislaw Robert Talutis, owner, Webb Brook Country Club, Billerica; Wendell P. Sylvester, Suburban Real Estate News, Stoneham; Maurice J. McCarthy, bank officer, Century Bank and Trust, Somerville; Aristides Haffapes, owner, Bronx Restaurant and Lounge, Marlborough; Roy Babbin, general manager, Framingham Motor Inn; Francis Koppeis, manager, Longfellow's Wayside Inn, Sudbury; James M. Bradley, vice president-business development, Catch Penny Inns of America, Lexington; Robert W. Hilliard, treasurer, City of Somerville.

Alcoholics Anonymous

★ Chapter 766

responsibility to the towns so that such bills will be paid directly by the town.

What difference has the law made in Winchester? Over the years, Winchester has developed many services for children with speech difficulties, adjustment and learning problems; children with handicaps have attended schools outside the town. 766 has mandated certain additions to these programs, broadened their scope and accelerated the transfer of responsibility for special services to the communities from the state. It must be added that it has imposed an enormous burden of paperwork and procedural red tape on special needs staffs all over the commonwealth, as well as a substantial financial burden to the town.

The law is a valuable one because it aims to assure every child a chance to develop within the framework of a school program that matches individual needs and abilities with the goal of achieving a happy and productive life.

Many aspects of 766 are faulty, and hopefully the law can be revised, without compromising its goals, to make its administration less cumbersome and the financial burden less awesome. That is a task of the legislature. In the meantime, children are going to school, learning, and being helped to develop to their fullest potential.

★ Charges

McLaughlin's "in people," to replace Rubenstein "so they could watch me."

Ralph says that Stewart's appointment was short lived however, as Stewart was reportedly indicted by a Middlesex Grand Jury last month for allegedly tampering with ballots in a Cambridge election.

As to the upcoming election in which five challengers are vying for votes, Ralph says he is not concerned with any candidate other than McLaughlin. "He is tampering with the sensitive line between county administration and politics," he says.

Ralph charges that Robert Rotberg, a member of the Lexington School Committee and political science professor at MIT, is being paid $20,000 by the county to do a written summary of county government policy. "He is also the Lexington campaign manager of Mike McLaughlin," Ralph charges. Rotberg denies that he is the Lexington campaign manager, and told The Lexington Minute Man that he felt it "would be wholly inappropriate for me to take part in anyone's campaign."

Ralph also charges that Charles Lyons, a member of the Arlington School Committee, was employed by the county as a security guard by Commissioners McLaughlin and Danahy. "He's also the Arlington campaign manager for that crook," Ralph says of McLaughlin.

Lyons didn't do a bit of work for the county, but rather spent 100 percent of his time campaigning for Mike McLaughlin. Lyons resigned from his county job recently. Mayor Ralph has also said that political organizers for McLaughlin in Cambridge, Belmont and Medford are all on the county payroll.

McLaughlin Charges

Michael McLaughlin refutes the charges made by Mayor Ralph by stating that under his direction the county has hired a number of capable and not necessarily political people.

"We have a new process since I've joined the county, and that's competition for jobs. For the first time new positions are advertised in papers all over the county, we have a new, independent personnel director who has control over things, and we are finding a new breed of employees," McLaughlin says.

Like Ralph, McLaughlin says that he isn't afraid to cite those people in county government whom he says were hired solely for political reasons.

McLaughlin charges that William Fothergill, Mayor Ralph's major fundraiser when Ralph ran for Attorney General in 1974, gave $2,400 in donations to Ralph. Fothergill was later hired as an administrative assistant to Ralph at a salary of $22,000, McLaughlin says.

"This guy was also appointed to a city job thanks to the low down cronyism of Ralph," McLaughlin says.

When asked about a secret report which one of his former assistants had written and given to Mayor Ralph detailing McLaughlin's inner office policies, McLaughlin says that he had heard of the report but wasn't concerned.

"Look, I know you're talking about Daniel Melillo's report and yes I heard about it. But it's just that I'm used to such junk from Ralph's mouth."

McLaughlin says that the reason Melillo wrote the report was that Melillo had asked McLaughlin for a raise but was denied one. "So he went to Ralph and coaxed him into hiring him in exchange to find out how I worked," McLaughlin adds that Melillo may have been forced to write the report.

As to Mayor Ralph's charges that County Commissioner meetings are held behind closed doors and at unannounced times, McLaughlin says the charges are "ridiculous."

McLaughlin says that Mayor Ralph has only been present at about a third of all County Commissioner meetings. He cites records which showed that between April of 1975 and last week, 62 meetings had been held of which Ralph had missed 13.

Mayor Ralph's charges concerning the Robert Rotberg study is strongly refuted by McLaughlin. He says that Rotberg is a competent professional whose report "will help bring a better perspective of county policy to everyone, including Mayor Ralph."

McLaughlin charges that Rotberg is not his Lexington campaign manager as Ralph says. In fact, McLaughlin says that he doesn't even have a Lexington campaign manager.

As for Ralph's charge that Arlington School Committeeman Charles Lyons was working for the county and McLaughlin's campaign at the same time, McLaughlin says the charge is false. "Charlie was hired on a part-time basis in the county to do security and library work, that's all."

"Now if Charlie did work on my campaign, it wasn't anything illegal. In fact, he didn't even do much work for me. I don't even think he filed nomination papers for me from Arlington."

McLaughlin's concept of county government is radically different from Ralph's, he says.

"Ralph says that he now believes that county government should be abolished. Yet in four years he's never introduced a piece of legislation to do that, he's never made any constructive suggestions of how to streamline or economize it. He's just making stupid, stupid charges."

Several people who were contacted by this paper suggested that McLaughlin had strong ties to the Billerica School Department.

McLaughlin says that such rumors are due to the fact that his administrative assistant, Paul Ford, is chairman of the Billerica School Committee. "Just because my assistant is on the School Committee, they dig that up."

As for owning people or departments, McLaughlin says he has a few charges of his own.

He says that Mayor Ralph has tried to run the Somerville Police Department and that he has exploited CETA employees to do work for his political purposes.

McLaughlin says that Mayor Ralph is under investigation by the United States Department of Labor and that the Department of Labor has 27 signed and sworn affidavits from Somerville CETA employees noting irregularities in hiring policies.

"He (Ralph) reminds me of Charlie Finley," McLaughlin says. "He's just a poor sport who cries wolf when he's the wolf."

As to the major difference between himself and Ralph, McLaughlin says that whereas Ralph spends county money, he saves it. "In the two years since I've been a commissioner, the budget of the county has gone down $1 million one year and $300,000 last year. I think that's significant."

Ralph charged that McLaughlin would not be able to live on his County Commissioners salary of $9,500 come November when McLaughlin loses his seat in the Legislature since he is not seeking re-election.

McLaughlin says that Mayor Ralph need not worry about his financial situation. "I might go back to teaching and have six offers right now, including a few from universities," he says.

McLaughlin also says that he cares about Ralph's financial assets. "I really wonder why Ralph gets away with his salary and benefits."

McLaughlin says that Ralph not only received a $9,500 County Commissioners

Like a contorted jungle tree, this trunk goes up and over the arbor behind the library, lending shade and coolness and a place to sit while watching the ducks. (Photo by Karen Whittlesey-First) salary last year, but also received $17,000 as Mayor of Somerville. He says that Ralph also receives a salary since he is a minister in Somerville and that Ralph pays no property taxes in Massachusetts since he lives on church property. He added that Ralph has extra income as an attorney at law.

McLaughlin says he is confident in defeating Ralph this fall due to "the new-kind of county government I have brought the people."

In the meantime, four others have filed to face both McLaughlin and Ralph in the September primary. They are Bernard J. Hennessy of Sudbury, Richard R. Caples of Weston, Joyce M. Beatty of Newton and Thomas F. Coughlin of Lexington.

Carl J. Cincotta of Waltham is the sole Republican challenger.

At ease with oils. . .

Artist's life an uncertain one

by Sheila Marley

Maybe 300 years ago, during Rembrandt's lifetime, Stony Jacobs would have been certain he could have made a career out of art.

Stony, the creative painter of the town's chuck wagon and "Snoopy" on the dog shelter, lives on Wolcott rd.

He started serious art work in 1974 at Boston State College. Today, at 23, he is building his portfolio for admission to the Massachusetts College of Art.

"I just want to paint in an art atmosphere and get a job in the art line," Stony said while he worked on a portrait in a Boston State art room.

He's not really sure what he will do once he graduates, but as long as he's painting he's happy.

"Some days I can paint six to eight hours. I did my first portrait a year ago when a friend from work asked me to draw a picture for him. It took me 19-20 hours or three days, and from then on I've been anxious to do more," he said.

"I felt happy with the accomplishment and I did receive $35 for my efforts. The art teachers here told me one day to expect $200," he laughed. "I will raise my prices when I feel I've improved a bit."

Stony also paints scenes for pleasure when he isn't busy doing portraits. He said he works more from visual stimuli than from his imagination.

"I saw this barn on a dirt road in Vermont last summer and I can't wait to do that picture when I go back," he said.

"I find oils are the easiest medium to use myself," he said. "Other things that can be used are water colors, pastels, or acrylics, all of which I've tried and now only use occasionally."

"When I'm painting, there's really nothing that can distract me when I really get going. I do most of my art work in the day so my nights are free to watch a hockey game or a TV show," he said.

Stony said he would be very disappointed if he could not make a living with his artwork. He said he was willing to go into commercial art as well as portrait painting. Although he's been drawing cartoons since he was small, he said that field doesn't interest him as a career.

"Modern painting isn't very realistic. That's why I don't like it. Rembrandt is my favorite artist because of his realistic portraits."

While he works at home, Stony listens to classical music and smokes his pipe to feel more comfortable while standing and concentrating for long periods of time.

Both his parents have artistic talent, he said. "They are my best critics. My mother draws portraits professionally with pastels. My father doesn't paint much now, but I feel his previous work is as good as any I've seen today."

At Boston State, Stony was a history major and an art minor because that is all that is offered in art there. He is no longer a student there but uses the facilities where he won't be disturbed. He dresses in comfortable old clothes and paints from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. most days.

In his spare time, he collects and builds World War II model airplanes which he paints before building.

"I enjoy painting the pieces down to the moustache I put on the pilot of the plane. I enjoy doing the fine details," he said.

"My favorite subject in history is World War II, so that is another reason why I build these planes." He also said he enjoys building model ships like the "Constitution."

Someday the Jacobs name may be familiar to all of us. That is if today's young artists can spend as much of their lives painting as they want to.

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

Some humid reflections

The other night the Cosmic Muffin, radio WBCN's astrologer-in-residence, noted the passing of the beginning of summer. Other than that, he didn't have much to say, he said, because there was very little planetary influence in the charts.

He did, however, give the evening a rating of 8, out of a possible 10, and said it was a good night for doing whatever you have to do.

Putting it another way: winter's harsh storms have piled their snow on the bare soil; on a fair morning came the spring thaw, and the streams ran thick with winter's debris. And now the mud has caked under the summer sun, and while swift currents have slowed to a crawl, all that was stirred by the shifting seasons has settled to the depths of the pond.

It's the time of year when cicadas moan in the trees and the heavy air muffles the sounds of the day. Everything seems to move a little slower.

Another twelve months of shifting New England weather have fizzled into the heat of mid-summer. But this is no ordinary year.

It's an election year. Though it comes every four seasons, it usually takes eight long years for a real change in the political climate, at least at the national level.

And no matter whose side one is on, there's a change in the air. Perhaps the most profound effect of the past decade has been spiritual and psychological. Our recent political turmoil, freshened in our minds by the politics of an election year, are but the culmination of an introspective journey which erupted during the violence of the 1960's.

Now the reactions have set in: a resurgence of more conservative views of government, that is, a government that will mind its own business and less of ours. But when the debris of Vietnam, Watergate, busing and all the demonstrations settles, a return to the status quo ante bellum will be impossible.

What we'll have is a resolution. One needn't be any more radical than a Groucho Marxist to believe in the social dialectic: out of all the social upheaval will come a new synthesis.

It's also a Bicentennial year (that sounds incredibly redundant). After a quick 200 years we step onto the sidewalk to watch the parade and examine how far we have come. It's so encouraging to see even a few die-hard social reformers waving a tiny Old Glory and cheering the national anthem.

Like a national Thanksgiving, we acknowledge our debts to the past. Now at last we can look ahead once again.

Things are getting back to normal. But changes in the system, so radical such a short time ago, are part of that normalcy: the affirmation of the civil rights of minorities and women; the fight to turn the tide against pollution and a new respect for our natural environment; and a sense that it is no longer our manifest destiny to go out, either at home or abroad, and strip mine, defoliate and bomb where we will without considering the consequences.

We have tested the system: it works. The changes are not quite so radical as some would have liked; but America, as author William Reich would say, is greening a bit.

Some of the decade's dust has even settled onto Winchester, which looks no worse for the wear. And Winchester's a pretty nice place to be in the summer of our contentment. — DKF

Be a part of it

In a matter of minutes the Hurst tool, aptly called the Jaws of Life, can open a crunched car to enable firefighters to quickly remove anyone trapped inside. This tool works like a giant pair of pliers to rip through metal with the ease of scissors snipping away at a piece of paper.

Through the efforts of the Kiwanis Club of Winchester, our town now has a Hurst tool on the rescue truck. Our firefighters have been trained and drilled in its use, although to a man they hope never to use it.

But the tool is not yet paid for.

We are not in danger of losing the tool at all — ways can be found to make payment — but there's something more here than a few groups making big contributions, although without those large amounts the tool couldn't have become a reality.

What we need to see is everyone giving a few cents or a few dollars to make up the $600 still needed. This tool is one that every single one of us in the community could someday need, either for ourselves or for a loved one.

Contributions have ranged from a thousand dollar check from EnKa to 35 cents from a little girl's allowance.

If everyone who uses the Packer courts gave a quarter...if everyone who has a child in the summer playground program gave fifty cents...we'd have that Hurst tool paid for tomorrow.

Take pride in what this town has.
Be part of it. — KW-F

Pictorial editorial

The Jaws of Life are now on the rescue truck, ready for any emergency. Firefighters on all shifts trained and drilled with the Hurst tool during the past week. Here the "jaws" are seen in action, tearing apart a car donated for the purposes of instruction. The Hurst tool can accomplish in minutes what it would take firemen working alone nearly an hour to do. For example, the tool can remove the roof of a car in four minutes. We are still several hundred dollars short of the payment which must be made for the tool at the end of the month. (See editorial)

Letters from readers

A bit of praise...

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

One of the most enjoyable evenings my family and I have spent in a long time was at Winchester High School on July 15 for the performance of the University of California Touring Band. For those who did not see the show you really missed something. It was fast moving, and colorful, entertaining; a Broadway show rolled into one!

There dedicated students have been on the road since June 19th with concerts in California and the Eastern Seaboard, from Tennessee north to Maine and working their way home through upstate New York, Michigan and back to California.

We thank the Jaycees for bringing them to us for such an entertaining evening.

All good things in Winchester seem to come in Jaycee packages.

Mary Lou Leach

And a message

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The recent performance of the U. Cal. Band in Winchester on July 15 was a performance of dedicated hard working students.

This was what Winchester High School music parents were trying to tell our school committee in our recent controversies. You cannot have music for fun. It takes hard work and then the fun comes on a tour such as this one or an exchange concert as we do each year.

The students of the U. Cal. band are not serious music students as our school committee thinks you have to be to perform in such excellence. They come from every academic area the school offers. They are in the band because they enjoy it, the hard work brings satisfaction to them and broadens their horizons. That's what it is all about.

Positive approach

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The indignation expressed in a letter to the editor and the STAR's editorial on the method used to cover up TMM absenteeism may be justified; however, the method should be of little surprise. What other reaction did you expect from your negative policy of public exposure of the names and records of the absentee TMM's? It certainly appears that you have arbitrarily decided that all absent TMM's should be subject to neighborly censure as a means of correcting their errant ways. Who wants this kind of abuse?

Two factors you should consider. One, there might be legitimate reasons for a TMM to be absent. Two, individuals don't have to perform volunteer activities no matter how noble these might be.

It is little wonder that the interest in Town Meetings has declined. It is little wonder that the interest in being a Town Meeting Member has declined. It is little wonder that some TMM's have to resort to the practice of signing in for the Town Meetings and then leave.

Instead of trying to employ a punitive, "beat them over the head" kind of policy, I would suggest that the Star take a more positive perspective:

1. Don't expect 100 per cent attendance of TMM at the Town Meetings. Be satisfied with about 75 per cent. These individuals will most likely be the most responsible, conscientious and dedicated ones.

2. Encourage the precinct voters who elected their TMM's to determine how their representatives are doing for their interests.

3. Give good publicity to those TMM's who conscientiously attend the Town Meetings.

Publicize the contributors. Accent the positive.

The political organization of Town Meeting Members is just too informal and the personal rewards too few to apply strong negative pressures in an attempt to achieve participation.

I was a Town Meeting Member but after my name was published a few times for being absent, my interest declined rapidly. Other TMM's past and present just might feel the same way and for the same reasons.

Robert R. Hamilton
2 Atherton rd.

(Ed's note: — We have no problem about TMM's who are absent with good reason. We suggest that the most positive pressure any TMM can apply is to attend the meetings or not run for the office at all. Our quarrel is with town meeting members who run for office knowing they will be able to sign in and disappear, giving the erroneous appearance that they are conscientious participants in their own town government. Why they do this, we dare not guess.)

Thanks police

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We wish to thank the Winchester Police for being so prompt, helpful and considerate in answering our emergency call when my husband became ill.

In one week's time we had to call on them twice and each time they were at the house within minutes.

The Meehan Family

Outraged

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was absolutely outraged by your editorial about the state budget and use of lottery funds. That was a blanket indictment of all politicians! Not all of them voted to divert the lottery to the state budget.

But your editorial was a promotion of "Us against them" and it was not right. Who is them? Why no mention? Do you know who they are? If you don't, you better find out. That editorial was a gross insult to many of us who have worked hard in behalf of certain candidates.

I know for a fact that Winchester's State Senator, John Bullock, voted against the final measure which transferred the Lottery proceeds from the cities and towns to the state's treasury. The Massachusetts Senate in an earlier vote opposed the transfer by a vote of 31 to 1. Why didn't you say so. The impression left by your editorial was that all our incumbent representatives are against us. Not so! There are a few hard-working, courageous senators and representatives and they should not be lumped with all the others.

I trust you will correct this misleading impression. I've been reading The Star for years and years and know that the paper will set the record straight. Thank you in advance, Eleanor Russo

Town watch...

Whose cow's in the corn?

By The Observer

The police reports this week showed the usual number of housebreaks, car accidents, and burglar alarms going off accidentally, but tucked in among them all was a sad note.

An elderly gentleman, whose name and face are quite well known in town, called to complain that some person or persons unknown had trampled his garden, knocking over bean poles and damaging corn stalks.

Anything created by the hand of man or brought into being through his efforts is especially dear in a world of machines and landings on Mars and the like. It is particularly senseless for an old man's vegetable garden, which he toiled and weeded and watered and brought to bear, to be ruined through some antic or mischievous behavior.

These vegetables may be a loss for this season, but knowing the gentleman in question, The Observer is sure he will try again.

We hope so.

Joan Carlson, who moved from 168 High St. yesterday to take up residence in New Jersey, is what is known as a good egg.

Ms. Carlson accompanied dog officer Nick Molea when he transported a wounded animal on a wooden stretcher to be seen by a vet. The animal, naturally distressed, was trying to get off the wooden plank and had to be restrained.

Ms. Carlson ordered two American Airlines carrying cases to be sent to the police department so that other animals would not find themselves in potentially uncomfortable and possibly dangerous circumstances.

Officer Molea expresses his thanks to Joan Carlson.

She showed a true spirit of Winchester... it wasn't even her animal Officer Molea was taking to the vet.

Speaking of animals, Officer Nick Molea has announced a new method of catching up with those residents who still have unlicensed dogs. He's serious about finding out who they are and bringing appropriate charges against them.

The system is simple. Nick Molea has a computerized list of all dogs in town (this information is available from the census taken by police). He is going to match this list against the names of dog owners who have taken out licenses for their dogs at the town clerk's office.

Any names that don't match will be set aside and notice of fines sent to them. They will have to pay the ten dollar fine for not having their dog licensed, plus an additional one dollar demand fee, plus the price of the license.

Molea said, "We've given the people long enough to comply with the law. The original date for having a license was April 1, then we granted an extension until June 12, and here it is the middle of July. This time we're going to put an end to this."

You better take him seriously and get your dog licensed now.

In the mood...

As time goes by...

By Karen Whittlesey-First

You over there with the sand between the toes. Yes you. Almost asleep weren't you? Ah what the sand and the sea and the salt can do to a person. Pretty lucky, aren't you?

Some of us have to settle for a week in the tomato patch, but that's not too bad either. Do you know what's been happening since you left?

Last week the parking meter became 41 years old. Can you believe it? There are some folks in town who would like to see them abolished, of course, but just as the little girl in long braids said, that's somewhere over the rainbow.

Like little mechanical beings from Mars, the parking meters are taking over the world.

They're in front of pet shops. Isn't that a ridiculous place to put a meter? There you are, holding onto the leash of some over-stuffed St. Bernard who has no intention of having his nails clipped and wants the world to know it, fumbling and grumbling for a nickel (Winchester must be the only place in the continental United States where you can get anything for a nickel), with little kids pointing at you and jeering, old ladies stopped on the sidewalk for fear of getting crunched, and no small change.

They're in front of hair salons. Oh boy. Who goes in and out of a permanent or wash and blow-dry or frosting or simple cut with manicure, pedicure, and eyebrow plucking, in one hour? Winchester has a dozen places to have your hair done and each of them is the site of a social gathering. The beauty shoppe has replaced the market square for gossip and chatter between women and now men as well. One hour parking?

The meters are in front of the beach. Ah, that you know pretty well, huh? You load up the station wagon, pile them all in, plus a few extra neighbors and kids, stuff the deviled eggs in one corner and set off for the one and a half hour trip to a public beach.

Oh the ride went smoothly enough. The baby opened the tuna fish sandwiches which released an odor that got everyone's stomach juices flowing. The toddler only had to go three times instead of the usual five per hour. The family grump more or less tolerated the whole scene. Everybody had a suit and a towel. Not going to be a bad day at all, is it? Then you arrive. You decide to take your chances on a parking space along the boardwalk. Mistake.

Who goes to the beach for half an hour? If you risk a parking ticket or a possible towing charge, the whole day can be ruined.

Parking meters. A science fiction sort of creature. A money gobbling monster which comes up out of the earth and stands in a parade line waiting to be fed.

With those thoughts in mind, you better roll over and toast the other side of that gorgeous physique.

Have a good vacation.

At the Adams' table

BY ELIZABETH
Star Correspondent

John Adams, the nation's second president was a firm champion of plain New England cooking. He differed from Thomas Jefferson whose well-travelled tastes preferred French cuisine.

But what the Adams table lacked in fancy flourishes, it made up in bounty and the graciousness of Adams' devoted wife Abigail. Adams, who was nicknamed "His Rotundity" in the political reporting of the day, obviously enjoyed his food, but his Puritan upbringing led him to refer to the dinners served to the founders of the nation as "sinful feasts."

A typical meal at President Adams' home in Philadelphia during the three years that the nation's capital was there consisted of a traditional first course of corn meal pudding, meats such as mutton, bacon or veal, potatoes, cabbages, carrots accompanied by madeira wine.

The Adams loved the significance of Independence Day and celebrated it with gusto. Adams wrote that the signing of the Declaration of Independence should be commemorated with "pomp and parade, shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations."

One New England dinner that Abigail planned for the Fourth included turtle soup, salmon with egg sauce, and apple pandowdy.

The Adams also enjoyed blueberry flummery. This recipe is from Poppy Cannon's "The President's Cookbook."

Apple Pandowdy
Pastry for two-crust 8-inch pie
4 cups sliced baking apples
1/4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
dash nutmeg
3 tablespoons molasses or maple syrup
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Line 8-inch pan with half the pastry. Toss apples with sugar, flour, spices. Turn into pastry-lined pan. Combine molasses and butter and pour over apples. Cover with top crust into apples with sharp knife. Return pie to oven, lowering heat to 350 degrees. Bake 50 minutes more, checking before the end of baking on the browning of the crust. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream or heavy cream or whipped cream.

Blueberry Flummery
Place four cups fresh or dry pack frozen blueberries in a pan and add one cup sugar. Cook and stir over low heat for 10 minutes. Butter seven bread slices, crusts removed, generously on both sides. Line the bottom of a loaf pan with part of the bread, cutting slices to fit well. Pour one-third of the berry sauce over the bread, then add another layer of bread continuing with sauce and bread, ending with layer of sauce. Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes. Chill in refrigerator until served. Served with whipped cream flavored with nutmeg. Serves six to eight.

these nocturnal creatures. We were never bothered by them when I was a kid, and we always had quite large fields of sweet corn, compared to these home garden plots that prevail around our local suburban towns.

I believe raccoons once did live here in New England in a wild state, but they must have been hunted off almost to the point of extinction by the early settlers. More

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have had two inquiries regarding raccoons this past week. One concerned a method of preventing them from raiding outdoor garbage cans; the other a means of stopping them from devastating a back-yard corn field.

I do not profess to know too much about

★ Letters

probably, they found themselves unable to cope with the changing environment as the area was cleared and increasingly settled. The first that I ever saw were in the early thirties, and right here in Winchester.

They have made a come-back, and they now thrive in towns like Winchester. Being nocturnal creatures, they sleep during the daytime and come out only at night. The presence of our ubiquitous out-door garbage cans, one in each back yard, proved to be their salvation. Chicken bones, ham bones, scraps of all kinds from the table, were theirs for the taking, once they had learned to pry up the flip top lids of these gratuitous serving dishes.

Instead of living in hollow trees, as they once did, they now duck down into the culverts that drain rain water from the curbs. Here they have found a subterranean system of passageways that are interconnected throughout the town. For most of the time, these passageways are warm and dry. When rain falls they have no difficulty finding dry places where they can perch, high above the water.

The result of all these things is that the raccoon is now flourishing better than ever. With their banging of garbage lids late at night, and their raids on home garden corn patches, they have become a decided nuisance.

My solution to the first of these problems is this: thread a short piece, (18 or 20 inches) of half-inch galvanized water pipe into a "tee" of the same size. Drive this down beside the garbage can as close as possible, without interfering with the larger lid. Then shove a two foot piece of tubing or pipe through the tee, so as to project across the top of the flip lid. No raccoon yet has been able to wake me up since I installed this rig!

As for their predilection to devastate my delicious corn the night before I intend to pick it, I fixed them, here, too! After pollination has been completed, as evidenced by the browning of the silks, I bend the stalks just above the tip of the top ears to a horizontal position, all in the same direction parallel to the row. These bent-over stalks now form a ridge-pole, over which I throw a strong netting, letting it hang down all around the sides of the ripening area. I find that the raccoons do not trust this netting and leave it strictly alone. I suspect that they fear entrapment, and want no part of it. That's fine, with me!

Inasmuch as I plant little square patches, eight or ten feet on a side, one patch following another as the prior one comes up, my corn tends to ripen in the same order. I find that the raccoons do not bother the ears until they are ripe, or very near ripe, so all I have to do is move the netting from one ripening patch to another following the rhythm of the ripening patches.

All I can say further about the matter is that it is a good thing for the country that they do not have many storm drains out in Iowa or Indiana. It would take a pretty good sized fish net to protect some of the fields that we have seen out there!

Chilling irony

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Because I am leaving the Winchester School System, I have not actively participated in the most recent outbreaks of the seven-versus-eight-period-day war. However, the school committee's pugnacious stance in recent debate chills me and makes me worry about the values we are passing on.

The school committee's decision reads like a punishment: freedom and responsibility have failed, test scores have dropped, vandalism has risen, so something must be given up in payment. No matter how carefully the school committee presents their argument, every student, every teacher knows the school is being punished.

The chilling irony, however, is that the students who have been successful are the ones being punished. The students who have used their freedom responsibly, the artists, the musicians, the scholars, will suffer. The troublesome students are already restricted: they have been denied open campus, and some have schedules especially tailored to minimize free time. By restricting the free time of the responsible students, the committee is essentially saying that the successful must now pay for unsolved problems.

The effect of inadvertently punishing success is dangerous enough, but in Winchester we have an unwritten policy of discrediting and discouraging success. In classrooms, the bright student has to hide his eagerness to learn from his hooting peers. Athletes are suspect. There is an unnatural resentment for those who play an instrument well, for those who love to read, for those who want a better world; and the school committee's action on the seven period day reinforces this trend.

How will the decision be received by those in the school? The students who are responsible for the trouble will bask in their immunity; they will enjoy seeing good students suffer unjust punishment. The majority of the students, unjustly restricted, will feel disheartened, discouraged and angry. They know how to solve the school's problems and they have voiced their solutions in public. The trouble-making students should be punished, even expelled, so that learning can advance. Literacy problems should be approached through curriculum, not scheduling.

The school committee's firm stand on the seven period day is restrictive, vindictive and foolish. More importantly, however, it exonerates those responsible for the problems in the Winchester schools and promotes mediocrity as a value.

Life patterns

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Now that Jimmy Carter has been nominated, I for one hope he becomes our president.

Any thinking person knows poverty breeds crime and an "I don't care" attitude. If people had jobs and cash they wouldn't think of holding people up, I hope, in broad daylight.

Our young need a church and a right and wrong way of life pattern. We also need a planned medical program so that if you cannot pay you will be treated with some dignity.

Making a person feel insecure, though no fault of their own, is mean and I am wondering how many people, church members and so on, have any feeling for their fellow man.

Now, as far as our elderly are concerned, I hope when they build our new center they will take into consideration how many old folks hate to eat alone and will make some provision for a nice dinner now and then, as many settle for crackers and a cup of tea. I will be glad to help with cooking and menus. They are a proud lot and will pay their way. Louise Chase

Jean Fritz - Will You Sign Here, John Hancock?: What could be more appropriate in the summer of America's Bicentennial than to find out why John Hancock had the biggest signature on the Declaration of Independence.

E.W. Hildick - Time Explorers, Inc.: This is for the science fiction fan who would enjoy a story of two seventh graders who find that they can foretell the future by interpreting dreams.

Carolyn Lane - The Winnemah Spirit: This is just in time for summer campers who will enjoy a story of two sisters and their exploits at "Camp Winnemah".

Ellen Macgregor and Dora Pantell - Miss Pickersell Takes The Bull By The Horns: Miss Pickersell is an old favorite who continues, in this adventure, to get in trouble and provide us with lots of laughs as she fights the idea of cloning animals.

Judith St. George - The Chinese Puzzle Of Shag Island: A mystery story with a Main locale, which will provide action and suspense for those in the 5th-8th grades.

Petronella Breinburg - Shawn's Red Bike: This will appeal to our picture book set as it shows the way Shawn earns money to buy himself a new bicycle.

G. Max Ross - When Lucy Went Away: A picture book about a family whose pet cat gets lost while they are on vacation; we hope this doesn't happen to your pet, but think you will enjoy the story.

Beautiful painting has always been a part of German history. In fact, the paintings of Dürer and Holbein are practically unsurpassable. Nothing could match the enduring quality of their art, the reality of people, settings, and the balance of their touch. But the new Germany also sports a new type of painting, call impressionistic, full of modern overtones, in a new and very mod country. Go to Germany for a unique look at history juxtaposed with the present.

Companies donate equipment for African medical mission

One doesn't normally associate nuns with the space age, but the Medical Missionaries of Mary here in Winchester have become more and more attached to modern technology of late.

The missionaries belong to an order of nuns active in the field of public health and operate medical missions throughout the world.

They have recently become involved in a United States AID program in Tanzania, where they already have four missions and are about to open a fifth station.

Through the help of a friend, Antoni Tabak of Arlington, the sisters have found several companies willing to donate recently developed equipment for the new mission, which will be located in a remote area of Tanzania, far from any regular source of supplies.

And some of the equipment they're taking along is pretty up-to-date stuff: solar cells, battery-less flashlights, a portable generator, folding camp shovels, and a covered trailer to carry all the goods across to Africa and out to the mission. (Sr. Joseph Anthony, one of the project coordinators, left recently to join the mission; the trailer left for Africa in early June.)

Onan International of Minnesota donated the 2.5 kilowatt portable generator. According to Sr. Anthony, it will be the only power source for medical teams traveling throughout an 8500 square mile area.

The Ames Division of the McDonough Corporation of West Virginia sent the mission six "FLIT" shovels, and the Coleman Company, famous for their camping equipment, provided the trailer in which the material was shipped.

Where space-age really steps into the picture is in the donations of Cyalume Chemical flashlights and the solar energy cells. The flashlights operate by the mixing of two chemicals to produce a fluorescence, eliminating the need for batteries; the solar cells will be used to recharge batteries for regular flashlights, calculators, and other battery-operated equipment.

The project in Tanzania has the endorsement of both the Tanzanian and the U.S. governments, and it is ecumenical in nature. According to Sr. Anthony, "This is the first attempt at a comprehensive, district-wide health project in Tanzania...It is our hope that the medical, preventative and instructive parts of this program, supported by introductions of crafts, cooperatives, and agricultural improvements that are allied with it, will indeed be a great step forward for the people."

Antoni Tabak is a volunteer liaison for the Medical Missionaries of Mary. He is a market development specialist with a primary metals producer; he also does volunteer landscaping work for the sisters at their mission at One Arlington st.

Janet Carpenter becomes 250,000th patient

At 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 6, Winchester Hospital's 250,000th patient was admitted, a petite 26-year-old mother of two children, Mrs. Charles Carpenter of Merrimac, N.H.

Mrs. Carpenter was scheduled for minor surgery on the following day.

Two days later, after she had undergone the surgery and was well on the way to recovery, hospital President Reese E. James entered her room, presented her with a bouquet of flowers and told her that, in celebration of her special distinction as the hospital's quarter millionth patient, a few surprises had been planned for her.

First, she was to be moved into a private room, with the hospital absorbing the additional expense. Meanwhile the private parking space usually reserved for President James had a new sign on it, "Reserved for Mr. Charles Carpenter" guaranteeing her husband the use of the space during his wife's hospitalization.

A sign, completely covering the door to her room announced to all members of the staff and to visitors that the person inside was the hospital's 250,000th patient.

On the following evening, a special dinner for two, complete with wine, was served to the young mother and her husband.

The next morning, James presented Mrs. Carpenter with a bicentennial coin set as a memento of the occasion, and the following morning she was presented with two surprise packages for her two children.

"This is the fourth time I've come to Winchester Hospital," Mrs. Carpenter said, "but it's the time I'm going to remember the most. I just don't know what to say about the lovely gifts and V.I.P. treatment I've received but it has all been wonderful."

'Colonial Day' to relive old-time Minuteman muster

"Colonial Day-1776", July 24 from 2 to 5 p.m. will welcome residents to an old-time muster day where everyone came to see boys and townsmen enroll and learn to be Minutemen while their families looked at and took part in games and crafts.

Fife and drum music, militia demonstrations, exhibits and demonstrations of children's toys and games as well as home and handicrafts will be at the grounds of the Jason Russell House. Guided tours will be given at both the Jason Russell House and the Capt. Benjamin Locke House.

The Arlington Historical Society is host. Programs are being conducted with the Menotomy Minutemen and Auxiliary and the Arlington Garden Club's Herb Garden committee. Admission is free.

Local lecturer and teacher, Mrs. Waldemar J. Darles, will exhibit her own recent design of a Bicentennial rug. She also will work on rug braiding and explain both the background and revival of that craft.

Butter churning and candle dipping bring a glimpse of tasks performed by a colonial household. Children's toys and games will be exhibited. There will be displays of souvenirs and mementoes including ceramics and publications.

The Arlington Garden Club members will show their Herb Garden beside the Jason Russell kitchen door and discuss growing and use of colonial herbs.

The military portion of the afternoon will feature the Menotomy Minutemen music unit.

The Colonial Day program is to close with the Minutemen conducting a final flag ceremony.

A small donation will be asked for the tours of the Jason Russell House, restored by the Historical Society, and on the roster of National Historic Places, and the privately owned Benjamin Locke House.

Sister behind the scenes manages stage for 'Cyrano'

When the curtains part for "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Winchester High School on July 29, 30, and 31, audiences will see one of the most remarkable sets ever presented locally.

Sister Christopher, with script and stopwatch, times rehearsal of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

istry, versatile as it is beautiful, hung with the banners and trappings of the seventeenth century. By the use of decorations, props, and ingenious lighting, it will become in turn an outdoor theater, a private chateau, a battlefield, and a convent.

Behind this magnificent scenery, making it all work, will be a stage manager who wears a costume in everyday life which would not be out of place in the performance itself. She is Sister Christopher of St. Anne's School in Arlington, where she teaches science and mathematics.

A member of the order of St. Anne's since 1953, Sister Christopher was active in dramatics in high school and college, but dropped out for a number of years, some of which she spent teaching in the Philippines. She returned to an active role only three years ago, but in that time she has worked with groups in Winchester, Bedford, Arlington, and Concord, as well as finding time to produce Arlington's bicentennial pageant. As stage manager for "Cyrano" she controls the comings and goings of a large cast which includes — would you believe it — four nuns.

Tickets for all performances are available by calling 729-5435 or at the door on the nights of the performances.

Local students are BU graduates

Local students received degrees when Boston University held its recent graduation exercises.

George F. Weston, 95 Sylvester ave., received a master of education in reading. Marietta Barnes, 10 Summit ave., received an M.A. in English language and literature.

BU's College of Liberal Arts bestowed a B.A. on Wendy L. Katz, 9 Highland terr., who majored in American history and civilization. Gayle Evans, 10 Woodside ave., received her B.A. cum laude for her studies in classical civilization.

Robert G. Salvucci of 30 Ridge st., received a B.S. degree from the School of Education, where he majored in human movement. Stephen C. McDavitt of 33 Emerson rd. majored in physical therapy and received his B.S. from the Sargent College of Allied Health Professions.

Marilynne Swenson, 253 Pond st., received a bachelor of science in nursing degree.

The Mahoney family continues to help the ecologists at Vinson-Owen School: Michael, Tommy and Lauren Mahoney assist their father, Paul Mahoney, and Custodian Patrick McDonough to replant trees around the entrance to Vinson-Owen. The Mahoney family donated the trees so generations to come might enjoy the shade and beauty these Maples will provide.

Summer school at halfway mark

The 1976 Winchester Summer School has reached the halfway mark in its six-week program.

More than 600 elementary and secondary students are enrolled in a variety of courses at both the Muraco and Ambrose Schools.

Over 300 elementary children alone are attending the enrichment program run under the joint supervision of the Winchester School Department and Lesley College.

Youngsters in this program are engaged in curriculum related activities with Master Teachers and graduate interns from Lesley. They attend for a full morning each day. Children in need of extra help are attending improvement courses in reading, mathematics and language arts. Each of these courses runs for one hour daily.

On the secondary level, over 150 students are enrolled in a number of courses for either make-up or enrichment. These courses include English, math, typing and American Studies.

In addition there is an Earth Science Field Trip program under the direction of Eugene Bouley. These students are engaged in trips throughout the New England area studying various aspects of Earth Science.

The summer school program will continue for the next three weeks, through Friday, August 6.

Al-Anon

Al-Anon, an organization for adults, generally spouses of alcoholics, meets Friday nights at 7:30 at the Parish of the Epiphany Church, 70 Church St.

Sign-ups start for classes at Schwamb Mill

Registrations are now being accepted for August craft classes at the Old Schwamb Mill, Arlington Heights.

A few openings remain in creative weaving, introduction to spinning and dyeing, oil painting, pottery, life drawing and two sections of children's pottery. Young people, ages 13 and up, may also join many of the adult courses.

The workshop in dyeing colorful Ukrainian eggs will be given by Irene Stein on Aug. 4 and Aug. 25.

In the weaving course, there is no need to buy a loom, as Meredith Davis will teach registrants how to make your own loom and weave pillows, purses or wall hangings. There are morning and evening sections.

If one cannot find wool for special knitting, crewel or weaving projects, Florence Feldman-Wood can tell how to spin and dye your own using goldenrod, yarrow and other natural as well as commercial materials.

The Old Schwamb Mill is operated by the Schwamb Mill Preservation Trust, a non-profit charitable educational institution under the direction of Mrs. John A. Flannery.

The trust is an institutional member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance, the American Association of Museums, the American Association for State and Local History, the Society for Industrial Archaeology, the National Science for Youth Foundation, and the Mass. Association of Craftsmen.

Its education programs have been funded by private individuals and the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities. Acquisition and structural rehabilitation programs have received grants to and from United States Department of the Interior historic preservation funds, administered by the National Park Service, through the Mass. Historical Commission.

The Old Schwamb Mill is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. For information about classes and in-person registration, the Mill, 17 Mill Lane at 28 Lowell St., is open Tuesday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

One of the 19 animal acts featured in the Hunt Circus, which will perform on Manchester Field, under the big top, July 28. The event, sponsored by the Winchester Kiwanis, will benefit Kiwanis charities, including the Jaws of Life Fund.

Cloister Garden Concert Series wraps up July 29

The Parish of the Epiphany is holding the last of its Cloister Garden Concerts next Thursday at 8:30. This fourth presentation will feature pianist Alice Wilkinson.

Miss Wilkinson will be performing works of Bach, Busoni, Beethoven, Bartok, Debussy, and Chopin.

The concert will be held in the cloister garden of the church. In case of rain, the event will be held in adjoining Hadley Hall.

For information call the church office.

Sister behind the scenes manages stage for 'Cyrano'

When the curtains part for "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Winchester High School on July 29, 30, and 31, audiences will see one of the most remarkable sets ever presented locally.

Sister Christopher, with script and stopwatch, times rehearsal of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Designed by Bill Gotha of Belmont, it is a light and colorful piece of Renaissance art.

istry, versatile as it is beautiful, hung with the banners and trappings of the seventeenth century. By the use of decorations, props, and ingenious lighting, it will become in turn an outdoor theater, a private chateau, a battlefield, and a convent.

Behind this magnificent scenery, making it all work, will be a stage manager who wears a costume in everyday life which would not be out of place in the performance itself. She is Sister Christopher of St. Anne's School in Arlington, where she teaches science and mathematics.

A member of the order of St. Anne's since 1953, Sister Christopher was active in dramatics in high school and college, but dropped out for a number of years, some of which she spent teaching in the Philippines. She returned to an active role only three years ago, but in that time she has worked with groups in Winchester, Bedford, Arlington, and Concord, as well as finding time to produce Arlington's bicentennial pageant. As stage manager for "Cyrano" she controls the comings and goings of a large cast which includes — would you believe it — four nuns.

Tickets for all performances are available by calling 729-5435 or at the door on the nights of the performances.

Local students are BU graduates

Local students received degrees when Boston University held its recent graduation exercises.

George F. Weston, 95 Sylvester Ave., received a master of education in reading. Marietta Barnes, 10 Summit Ave., received an M.A. in English language and literature.

BU's College of Liberal Arts bestowed a B.A. on Wendy L. Katz, 9 Highland Terr., who majored in American history and civilization. Gayle Evans, 10 Woodside Ave., received her B.A. cum laude for her studies in classical civilization.

Robert G. Salvucci of 30 Ridge St., received a B.S. degree from the School of Education, where he majored in human movement. Stephen C. McDavitt of 33 Emerson Rd. majored in physical therapy and received his B.S. from the Sargent College of Allied Health Professions.

Marilynne Swenson, 253 Pond St., received a bachelor of science in nursing degree.

The Mahoney family continues to help the ecologists at Vinson-Owen School: Michael, Tommy and Lauren Mahoney assist their father, Paul Mahoney, and Custodian Patrick McDonough to replant trees around the entrance to Vinson-Owen. The Mahoney family donated the trees so generations to come might enjoy the shade and beauty these Maples will provide.

Sign-ups start for classes at Schwamb Mill

Registrations are now being accepted for August craft classes at the Old Schwamb Mill, Arlington Heights.

A few openings remain in creative weaving, introduction to spinning and dyeing, oil painting, portraiture, life drawing and two sections of children's pottery. Young people, ages 13 and up, may also join many of the adult courses.

The workshop on dyeing colorful Ukrainian eggs will be given by Inez Stein on Aug. 4 and Aug. 25.

In the weaving course, there is no need to buy a loom, as Meredith Davis will teach registrants how to make your own loom and weave pillows, purses or wall hangings. There are morning and evening sessions.

If one cannot find wool for special knitting, crewel or weaving projects, Florence Feldman-Wood can tell how to spin and dye your own using goldenrod, yarrow and other natural as well as commercial materials.

The Old Schwamb Mill is operated by the Schwamb Mill Preservation Trust, a non-profit charitable educational institution under the direction of Mrs. John A. Fitzmaurice.

The trust is an institutional member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance, the American Association of Museums, the American Association for State and Local History, the Society for Industrial Archaeology, the Natural Science for Youth Foundation, and the Mass. Association of Craftsmen.

Its education programs have been funded by private individuals and the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities. Acquisition and structural rehabilitation programs have received grants to aid from United States Department of the Interior historic preservation funds, administered by the National Park Service, through the Mass. Historical Commission.

The Old Schwamb Mill is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. For information about classes and in-person registration, the Mill, 17 Mill Lane at 29 Lowell St., is open Tuesday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mr. & Mrs. Connell attending program at Regis College

Mr. & Mrs. William Connell of 6 Chesterford Ter. are attending an Elderhostel program at Regis College in Weston from July 11 through July 23.

Elderhostel '76 is a program for older adults that gives them the opportunity to stimulate new interests or to develop familiar skills by taking courses in art, music and history. Applicants from all over the country, as far away as Florida and California, will be attending.

The Connells are taking courses in American history and art. The program is funded by the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs with funds from the Federal Administration on the Aging and is free for participants except for accommodations. Regis is one of the four Massachusetts colleges participating.

Mr. and Mrs. Koren Kolligian, 71 Wedgemere Ave., and their sons Gregory and Ronald (standing on ramp) are escorted by Maj. Gen. David D. Bradburn, vice commander of the Air Force Electronic Systems Division at Hanscom Air Force Base, as they board an Air Force aircraft for Washington D.C., to witness the 1975 award of the Koren Kolligian Jr. Flying Safety Trophy. The trophy, a bronze statue of a jet pilot, is in memory of the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kolligian, a pilot who was declared missing in 1955 while on a jet training flight. The award is presented annually by the Air Force Chief of Staff to recognize outstanding airmanship by a crewmember in averting an aircraft accident of or minimizing its seriousness.

Summer school at halfway mark

The 1976 Winchester Summer School has reached the halfway mark in its six-week program.

More than 600 elementary and secondary students are enrolled in a variety of courses at both the Muraco and Ambrose Schools.

Over 300 elementary children alone are attending the enrichment program run under the joint supervision of the Winchester School Department and Lesley College.

Youngsters in this program are engaged in curriculum related activities with Master Teachers and graduate interns from Lesley. They attend for a full morning each day.

Children in need of extra help are attending improvement courses in reading, mathematics and language arts. Each of these courses runs for one hour daily.

On the secondary level, over 150 students are enrolled in a number of courses for either make-up or enrichment. These courses include English, math, typing and American Studies.

In addition there is an Earth Science Field Trip program under the direction of Eugene Bouley. These students are engaged in trips throughout the New England area studying various aspects of Earth Science.

The summer school program will continue for the next three weeks, through Friday, August 6.

Nationals bow to Arlington in first playoff round, 9-7

by James R. Stewart Jr.

In the opening round of the 1976 Senior League Tournament, last Friday evening, the Arlington North All-Stars staved off a late Winchester National All-Star rally to emerge the victor in a darkness-shortened baseball game at the Winchester High School Field on Skillings road.

In a see-saw battle, Winchester scored first as Joe Costello reached an error, moved up as Richie Magliozzi walked, and got to third on an single by Ed Pratt. Don McMillan's walk plated Costello, but no further damage could be done to Arlington pitcher Denis LaCount. Arlington took the lead with two runs in the second inning assisted by two Winchester errors, and increased their lead to 3-1 in the third as Bill Crowley (he knocked in two runs with a single and a triple) blooped a hit to center.

The fourth inning saw a spectator's delight. Winchester put across four runs to take a 5-3 lead. McMillan singled, Dave Vozella sacrificed, and Guy Cafferella and Bob Fiore singled, the latter scoring McMillan. Cafferella had stolen second, previously, and came home on a wild pitch which also moved Fiore to third.

Mark Aylward reached on a fielders choice as Fiore was cut down at the plate, but J. C. Forbes, Costello, Magliozzi and Pratt stroled to force-in the fourth run, the last walk given up by relief pitcher Paul Donovan.

Arlington came right back against J. C. Forbes, and before Ed Pratt could stem the tide, Arlington was ahead 9-5. A walk started it all off to Brian Keveny, forced at second by Greg Vartanian, but then singles by Tom Awiszus, Pat Lavery and Jack LePore, a foul out and then Ed Smith's single, Crowley's triple and LaCount's single added up to six big runs.

As darkness gathered and a cool breeze sprang up, the Winchester team came up for their half of the sixth inning, trailing by four runs. Mark Aylward walked as lead-off batter and then successive singles by Paul Feldman, batting for J. C. Forbes, Joe Costello, and Rich Magliozzi, followed by a force-out by Ed Pratt, put two runs across.

McMillan grounded out, but Jeff McGoldrick, batting for David Vozella walked to load the bases. But, with the tying run at second base, relief pitcher Donovan reached back and whiffed Guy Cafferella for the final out of the game.

In continuing the weekly special event every Friday, a group of over 300 town youngsters traveled to Canobie Lake Park and to the Boston 200 Exhibition last Friday. The trips are sponsored by the recreation department which provides transportation and low-cost group fares.

This week's special event will be the Go For The Wall baseball hitting competition to be held at Westside field Friday morning at 10. Applications are still being accepted for the Red Sox game on July 29. Registrations for this trip may be made at your local playground, the Sport Shop, or at the recreation office.

Permission slips are also available now for the annual town trip to Lincoln Park August 13. This trip includes transportation and unlimited rides all day at the park for a low cost.

Information for all recreation trips and events is available at the town playgrounds, Sport Shop or by calling the rec office.

The regular weeks activities at Leonard field were highlighted this week with a tour of The Star printing office. The children were shown the process used for printing the paper and were all treated to a copy of their names in headline print.

Other activities enjoyed this week at Leonard included making letter holders and a week long "marble game" in which Tom Hanlon proved to be the master.

Coming events at Leonard are: a paper mache project; a playground bike trip for those over 12; and the "Go for the Wall" contest.

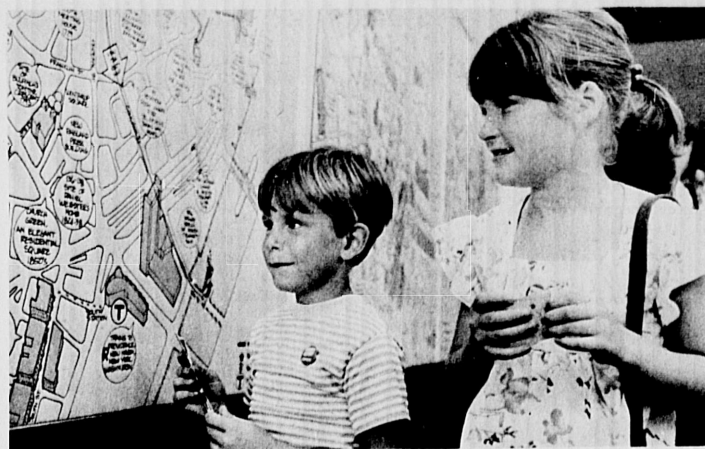

At Ginn field every Monday is arts and crafts day. This past Monday the children made necklaces, bracelets, and belts out of paper clips and colored tape.

On Thursday Winchester firemen Lt. O'Leary and Kevin Yore put on a fascinating demonstration of our hook and ladder fire truck.

Coming events at Ginn will be: a Mexican Festival with Pinatas July 22; and a playground cook-out August 5.

At Westside field the highlight of the week was a safety day. The children of the playground were visited by Officer John McKinley of the Winchester Police Department.

Officer McKinley discussed how to stop

Checking out the city "Where it all Began," eight-year-old Anita Bosody (right) and her friend, seven-year-old Mike Breen, both of Winchester, examine one of seven walking tour maps on display in the lobby of the Prudential Center's Bicentennial Pavilion. bleeding, care of fractures and how to restore breathing to someone. He also went into danger of firecrackers.

At the conclusion of the talk the children were shown some of the equipment used in the ambulance. The children were also given a ride in the ambulance.

McDonald tops baseball league

The recreation baseball league entered its fourth week of play this week with McDonald field still on top. The week was not without the usual upset though, as this week Westside field proved to be the spoiler upending previously undefeated McDonald 4-3.

In gaining the victory the Westsiders extended their win streak to 3. In the McDonald clash Westside did the damage early jumping on opposing pitchers for all their runs in the first two innings. Bill Coppins kept the Twins in check the rest of the game.

Earlier in the week the Westside Red Sox gained their second win as they defeated a stubborn Ginn field team 10-9. Key defensive plays by Jim Aylward and the Westside infield put the damper on any late Ginn rallies. Bill Coppins went the route for the Red Sox.

On Wednesday Ginn and Leonard meet in a rare doubleheader, a continuation of an earlier game and their regularly scheduled game. Ginn emerged victorious in both contests. The continuation lasted one inning as Ginn scored two runs to lead off the inning, and that was all they needed to take the game 5-3.

The second game was a pitchers duel and defensive battle with Ginn staging a late rally to win 2-1. A combination of walks and timely baserunning spelled the downfall for Leonard.

League standings at the halfway point are:
McDonald	5-1
Ginn	3-3
Westside	3-3
Leonard	1-5

'Go for the wall' contest Friday

The Winchester Recreation Department will hold its second "Go For The Wall" home run hitting contest this Friday at 10 a.m. Westside Field.

There are two different age groups: 9-12 and 13-16 years old. Players are asked to arrange themselves in groups of three, with a pitcher, catcher and batter.

A batter is allowed 15 pitches, of which he may swing at no more than ten. Points are awarded for a home run (10), off the wall (7), and hitting the fence on one bounce (5). Groups arranging themselves early will have a definite advantage by practicing together. However, if you come to the event with a group, you will be placed in one.

Registration may be made at any playground, the Sport Shop, or at the recreation office.

American Major All-stars edged by Woburn East, 6-5

On Ginn Field last Sunday, the Winchester American Major All Star team bowed to Woburn East Major All Star team 6-5.

Winchester opened the last half of the first inning with a four-run lead, with Winchester's Harrington contributing the first home run of the game. In the second inning, Kelly of Winchester tagged another homer to make the score 5 zip.

In the second inning Woburn loaded the bases with one out but failed to score.

In the third inning Woburn again loaded the bases and scored twice, making the score

5-2. From the third inning on, Woburn's pitcher Fitzgerald handcuffed Winchester by spreading one single and two walks for the rest of the game. In the fifth inning Woburn exploded with four runs. The final score was 6-5.

Fitzgerald went all the way for Woburn, giving up six hits and two walks. Stackpole pitched for Winchester for five innings and was replaced by Jacobson in the sixth. Both teams gave the spectators their best, but some one has to win and some one has to lose. Our congratulations to Woburn East — may you go all the way to Williamsport.

Arts & crafts take trip to Canobie Lake

The Winchester Recreation Departments Arts and Crafts Program completed its fourth week of activities last week by bringing over 50 students who participate in the program to Canobie Lake Park.

Activities for the week included cardboard tube sculpture and kites for the morning session, which is for student grade four and up. This program has been averaging over 25 students a day, but director Sue Jeffery will still welcome anyone who wants to participate in this program from 9 a.m. - 11 a.m. Monday through Thursday.

The afternoon program for students grades one through three is still averaging over 25 students a day. Any child in those grades may still take part in this program every day from 1 - 3 p.m. The activities of the week for the afternoon program included tissue paper collage, collographs and print work.

Skating day next Friday

The recreation department has announced it will hold an ice skating afternoon at the USA rink on Cross st. on Friday, July 30.

Skating will be held from 1-3 p.m. All Town playgrounds will be closed for the afternoon on Friday and instructors will be taking groups to the rink. The cost will be a low group rate. You must provide your own skates.

Registratin may be made at the playgrounds, Sport Shop or at the recreation office, Town Hall.

Woburn Central bombs Winchester Nationals

by James R. Stewart Jr.

Winchester's National Major League All-Star team more than met its match, last Saturday afternoon at Ginn Field, as the Tanners took an easy 7-1 victory home with them.

Pitcher "Smoke" Fonseca stood the Winchester batters on their ears throughout the game, registering 11 strikeouts and allowing but three hits. One hit was a scratch single in the 6th by Steven Dionne, but Alan Christy "owned" Fonseca with a triple and a home run, to record the other two hits garnered by the hosts.

The die was cast in the first inning. After Winchester had gone down one-two-three, including two strike-outs, the Woburn sluggers combed Christy for four runs and five hits (including two doubles), a walk and an error to take a convincing lead.

In the third inning, Woburn added two unearned runs on some sloppy play at the plate. Christy hit a towering fly over the fence in the fourth, but Woburn answered with another run in their half.

Bob Fudge took over the Winchester mound in the second when starter Christy injured his arm sliding into second base in the second on his double, but his mates were unable to solve Fonseca and the Woburn infield added insult to injury by capping the game with a double play to end the fracas, started by Fonseca.

SPIRITS OF '76

by DAN BUSA

Here are a few back-bar secrets you can keep in mind when you're serving liquor. Use the best! Whatever you add in mixing a drink, the taste of the basic liquor comes through. Never guess — measure! Not even a highball should be "eyeballed". For better drinks, fill glass with cracked or shaved ice and let stand; dump ice, add drink; serve at once. In general, stir drinks made with clear liquors. Shake those made with hard-to-blend ingredients like fruit juices. . . . And the most important thing to remember — have enough! Nothing's so embarrassing as a dry well! the high school. Either she's praying all will turn out ok, or else she's

Statehouse roll call

Massachusetts Senate
Volume 11, Report No. 19
May 10-14, 1976

Massachusetts House of Representatives
May 10-14, 1976

THE SENATE: Picking up the pace in roll call, the Senate held 8 roll calls during this week.

The Senate approved a measure banning hitchhiking on Interstate Highways 91 and 291. The bill carries a maximum $50 penalty for persons who hitchhike as well as those who stop. In addition, it gives an officer the right to arrest and hold for 24 hours anyone who refuses to give them his name or address or refuses to leave the highway after being asked to do so.

Senator Bullock voted against the bill. On a 24-12 vote, the Senate tabled and thus created a motion to abolish the Obscene Literature Control Commission. Sen. Bullock voted in favor of tabling the bill.

The Senate okayed a bill which would prohibit furloughs for first degree murderers and make inmates serving second degree murder sentences eligible for parole after 12 years. Sen. Bullock voted yes.

On a 32-4 vote, the Senate gave first round approval to a bill which grants leaves of absence to teachers who are elected to public office, including mayor, or to a state or county office. Under the bill, teachers would be granted leave without pay, which could be extended to the entire length of the elected office.

Sen. Bullock voted in favor.

On a unanimous vote at a Constitutional convention, the Senate approved for the second time an amendment which would permit absentee voting by persons whose religious beliefs preclude them from voting in the day an election is scheduled. Since the measure has been approved twice, it will now be placed on the ballot in November for voter approval.

Sen. Bullock voted yes.

Bullock's attendance record for the week is eight for eight roll calls or 100 percent. His cumulative record is 49 for 54 roll calls or 94 percent.

THE HOUSE: Thirteen roll calls were held, bringing the session's total to 97.

A resolution was passed 219-1 calling for Governor Dukakis to accept $50,000,000 in federal highway funds. The resolution states Dukakis' action was "ill-advised and indefensible" and urged him to change his mind before the June 30 deadline for acceptance of the money. Rep. Saltmarsh voted in favor of the resolution.

The House easily defeated a move to prohibit the carrying of firearms loaded with so-called "dum-dum" bullets or other bullets with a high muzzle velocity. Rep. Saltmarsh voted against the ban.

Rep. Saltmarsh also voted with a large majority of the House against a proposal to decriminalize possession of marijuana for personal use. The measure would have allowed police officers to issue "tickets" to persons arrested for possession. The person would then have 21 days to pay a $50 fine or have a criminal complaint lodged against him.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which calls for a referendum on the question of dog racing in Worcester, Hampshire, Berkshire, Franklin, and Hampden Counties. Rep. Saltmarsh voted for the referendum.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted in favor of a bill which was defeated in the House to grant the House Ways and Means Committee an extension, a one-week extension in order to prepare its work on the 1977 budget. The House went on to pass a 30 day extension, which Rep. Saltmarsh voted against.

Sitting in Constitutional Convention with the Senate, the House passed almost unanimously the absentee voting bill allowing voting by persons whose religious beliefs conflict with the act of voting on a particular election day. Rep. Saltmarsh voted with the majority.

Saltmarsh's attendance record was 13 of 13 roll calls or 100 percent. His cumulative record is 95 roll calls or 98 percent.

pH Plus Salute To The Sun

The sun. That bright, radiant orb that provides light and energy beckons us each summer to play and relax under its glorious rays.

Soaking up its shine brings a healthy, pretty, glowing color to almost everyone and makes us feel younger, more alive.

But with all this goodness comes some bad. The sun's ultraviolet rays age and wrinkle the skin like nothing else in the world, and, worse, year after year exposure has even been proven to cause skin cancer in some people. There are two kinds of ultraviolet rays: short, invisible rays that burn; and longer, almost visible rays that tan. The burning rays are what you want to really protect your skin from—all season long.

These rays, however, are not all you have to watch out for. The heat generated by sunlight also contributes to premature aging. Even if you use a sunscreen, your skin can literally bake if your sun worshiping takes up a good portion of the day. It not only dries your skin but with the help of heavy perspiration, may dehydrate your body.

You can do a great service to your skin by taking care to sun in moderation as well as protect and condition your skin before, during and after exposure.

pH plus Deep-Cleansing Creme, Toning Skin Freshener, Moisturizing Skin Balancer, Firming Facial Masque, Lip Conditioner and Conditioning Make-Up can make for more fun in the sun. And at the same time, provide you with the conditioning you need all summer long. (Try keeping all your pH plus Treatment products in the refrigerator; they'll be extra refreshing when you use them.)

Protecting your skin means using good common sense and quality products. However, conditioning or moisturizing your skin is equally, if not more, important. You need lots of water because water is what moisturizes your skin. Water to drink and water to shower your skin. And, of course, moisturizing skin conditioners which help minimize moisture loss.

Before going out in the sun, moisturize your face with pH plus Moisturizing Skin Balancer, and your body with Amino Pon Moisturizing Lotion. pH plus Conditioning Make-Up applied to your face and neck will help screen out some of the sun's burning rays. And be sure to protect your lips with pH plus Lip Conditioner; it contains a sunscreen. You can even have long, wispy lashes during your swim because new pH plus Conditioning Mascara is waterproof.

While you're in the sun-swimming, golfing, walking, playing tennis, gardening—use a good sun preparation that protects and moisturizes. Any suntan lotion, cream or oil that contains PABA will give you an extra shot of protection. There are also some very good sunblock preparations formulated especially for fair or sensitive skins. It's a good idea for everyone to use one of these sunblocks on the area around the eyes. And speaking of eyes, invest in high quality sunglasses. Reapply your sun preparation frequently and especially after swimming, and every now and then spritz some cooling water all over.

Follow up your sunbath with a facial and a bubble bath.

For your facial, use pH plus Deep-Cleansing Creme followed by Toning Skin Freshener. For extra cleansing and conditioning, apply Creme Concentrate and then the Firming Facial Masque, leaving it on for 10-15 minutes while totally relaxing. Remove with warm water and splash with cooling Toning Skin Freshener. The results are terrific.

Fill your tub with tepid water and several tablespoons of Amino Pon Conditioning Bubble Bath. Luxuriate in it for a while then cleanse with Amino Pon Beauty Bar. Stay in the tub for 20 minutes and reflect on the pleasant day behind you and the glorious evening ahead. Pat dry and apply Amino Pon Moisturizing Lotion all over your body. Apply a veil of Moisturizing Skin Balancer or Creme Concentrate to your face and neck. Blending pH plus Conditioning Make-Up onto your face. Conditioning Creme Blusher onto your cheeks, and the collection of Conditioning Eye Make-Up onto your eyes adds still more benefits and lends the finishing touch to your sun-kissed face.

If you need a truly soothing and refreshing foot comforter, try an updated, old-fashioned foot bath. Prepare two soak basins, one with hot water, one icy cold. Place half a cupful of Amino Pon Bubble Bath in the hot water basin. In the cold water basin, half a cupful of Toning Skin Freshener. Soak in the hot bath first and then plunge your feet into the cold bath.

And here's another refreshing tip: dab Toning Skin Freshener on the bottom of your feet, at pulse points and behind the ears. It's quite a lift on a hot, humid summer day.

Library gets new TM book

Marion Marcous and the new TM book.

A new book on Transcendental Meditation was donated to the Winchester Public Library last week by Marion Marcous of Symmes road.

The book is entitled: "Happiness: The Transcendental Meditation Program, Psychiatry and Enlightenment" by Harold M. Bloomfield, MD, and Robert Kory.

On Wednesday, at 7:30 in the library, Winchester TM Program Director John Hagelin will give an introduction to the TM program and talk about Dr. Bloomfield's book.

Dr. Bloomfield is a psychiatrist and the author of last year's best-selling book, "TM-- Discovering Inner Energy and Overcoming Stress."

"What we mean by happiness is not just those fleeting moments of enjoyment we may have from time to time," said Dr. Bloomfield, "but a baseline happiness founded on a stress-free nervous system and on the use of one's full mental potential. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder and through TM the full capacity of every area of the beholder is unfolded and evolved."

Home destroyed

Relief fund established for Woburn fire victims

A Winchester woman, Marsha Pumyea of Wendell Street, is coordinating a relief effort for the James H. Barlow family of 3 Mostika rd., Woburn, whose home was destroyed by fire early in the morning of July 20.

Smoke from the fire woke 18-year-old Roger Barlow, who ran from his room to wake the rest of the family and help them get to safety. Roger suffered burns and was treated and released from Choate Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Alice E. Barlow suffered smoke inhalation, was taken by ambulance to Choate, treated and released. Another son, David, aged 16, had his hair severely singed.

The rest of the family, including father James Barlow, sons James, 28, and Frank, 20, and daughter Alicia, 13, escaped injury.

The two alarm blaze broke out around four in the morning, and companies from Woburn and Winchester were called in to fight the blaze. The Woburn Fire Marshal's office termed the fire a "total disaster." The family has moved into the apartment of another son, William at 58 School st., Woburn.

The elder James Barlow, an employee of Atlantic Gelatin, had suffered an accident at work the week before the fire and is now out of work. Daughter Alicia turned 13 two days after the fire.

Along with other family friends, Ms. Pumyea has helped set up the James H. Barlow Fire Fund at the Tanners National Bank in Woburn. The Winchester chapter of the Red Cross, with the assistance of Mary Fowle, has been working with Ms. Pumyea to coordinate relief.

Nearly all of the family's personal belongings were destroyed in the fire. Because of the crowded conditions in his apartment, son William has moved in temporarily with friends.

Contributions to the disaster fund may be made directly to the Tanners National Bank in Woburn or in Winchester at Chitels on Mt. Vernon street; at Cradocks Apothecary on Church street; or to Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Chase Jr., 180 Forest st.

The Clothes Tree on Mass. avenue in Arlington and Howdy Beef Burger of Woburn have offered to use their facilities to aid as clothing donation centers.

Winchester man arrested after stolen car stalls

A Winchester man was arrested in Chelsea early Sunday morning when the stolen car he was allegedly driving became stalled at the corner of Bellingham and Shurtleff sts.

Nicholas Aufiero, 21, of 38 Pilgrim dr., in Winchester, was taken into custody by Officers Stanley Janilunas and George Cummings after the car, which was being driven in the wrong direction on a one-way street, stopped.

The officers reportedly saw Aufiero in the car which was coming down Bellingham st. toward Shurtleff. As the officers approached the vehicle Aufiero reportedly was holding a screwdriver in his hand and the vehicle's ignition had been popped.

Upon checking with the station it was learned that the car belonged to Carolyn M.

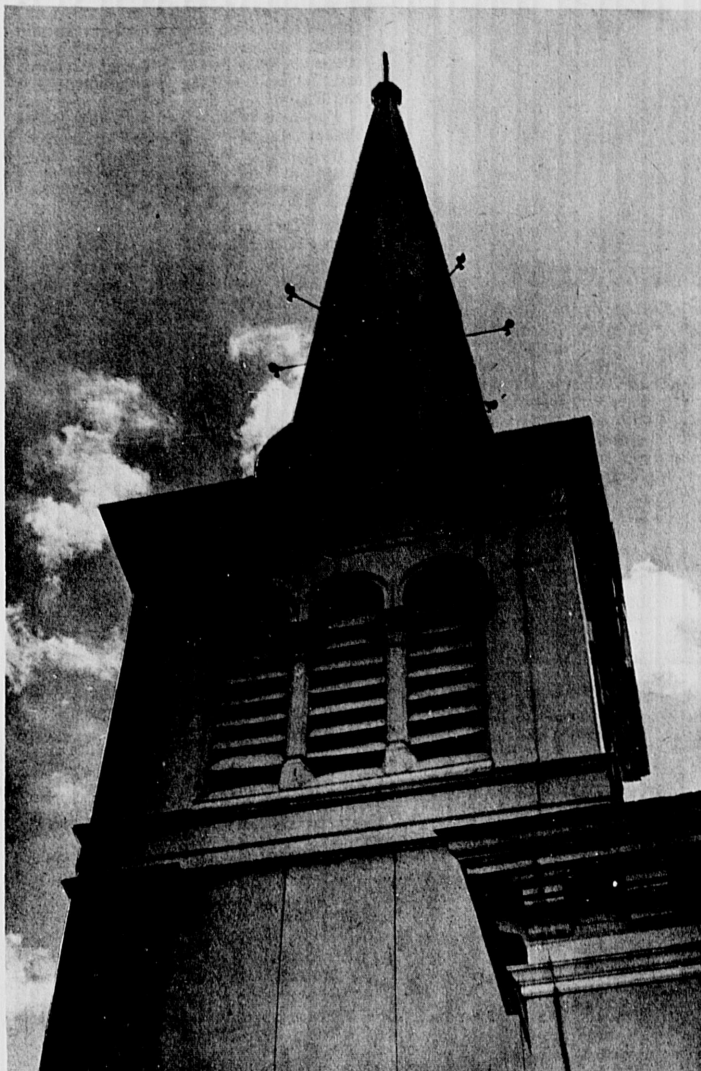

Parsons, of Arlington, and had been stolen unbeknown to the owner.

Upon taking Aufiero into custody the officers reportedly found a needle and syringe upon his person and two antique clocks in the car which did not belong to the owner of the vehicle.

He was brought to the Chelsea police station and booked on charges of using a motor vehicle without authority; not having a license in his possession; possession of a hypodermic needle; receiving stolen property; and operating a vehicle the wrong way on a one-way street.

At the request of the police the motor vehicle was towed from the scene.

Aufiero was arraigned in district court on Monday and the case was continued until August 11.

Winchester at the crossroads...

Planning key to housing problems

By Karen Whittlesey-First

Everyone needs a place to live, be it tent or palace. One of the problems Winchester must face is that of providing housing for our residents and would-be residents, for the problem affects both groups.

A certain assumption is made about the manner in which someone looking for housing in Winchester will be conducting his life. If he is the head of a household consisting of a wife and children, and if he has an above average income, he will have no difficulty finding a large house with play area for the children. The house may be nearly one hundred years old or it may be five years old, but somewhere in Winchester he will probably find what he is looking for.

If, on the other hand, he is a student with roommates, or an older person living alone, or a lifelong Winchester resident looking for a smaller place where he can live with his friends nearby, then he is in trouble.

Winchester has very little to offer as shelter for these groups, according to numerous spokespersons contacted by The Star.

Charles Tseckares, an architect and land planner who lives in Winchester, finds that the town has a quality and an attraction which brings people to it.

"This is an open space town which encourages single-family dwelling investors, families who come here for the play area for their children and for the schools," Tseckares says. "The problem is that we find we're gobbling up the open space and at the same time increasing the number of children in town. The result is an increase in the taxes."

The other aspect of Winchester which Tseckares finds attractive is the mix within neighborhoods of young, middle-aged, and old residents.

"There has been an exodus from Winchester in the past few years," Tseckares notes. "We have no place for our older residents to go when they no longer are able to or wish to maintain these large, old houses which are such a visual asset to the town."

Housing for the older residents is scarce. Housing for single or small family units is scarce.

The solution, according to every person contacted by The Star, is to change the zoning by-laws to permit construction of apartments or condominiums and to allow the conversion of some large houses into smaller dwelling units.

Clara Hewis of the Winchester Housing Authority is adamant in her belief that construction of apartments is the only thing that will make Winchester Center work.

"We have to put people and businesses where the action is," she says. "The business area must be multiple zoned. Mutually exclusive zones, which is what we now have in Winchester is not good planning."

"Seventy percent of the properties in town don't conform to the zoning laws. There are literally hundreds of houses split into as many as six dwelling units, in clear violation of the laws."

Miss Hewis wonders at the large number of violations. "Who do you have to know not to get caught? The planning board is going to have to take a look at zoning which restricts the ways in which a tax paying homeowner can use his property," she says.

The planning board is doing just that. William Cummings, chairman of that board, says that a committee formed late last year, the so-called RB-20 committee, is looking into changes in apartment regulations.

"Apartments should be encouraged," Cummings says. "The by-laws as they stand now are too restrictive and demanding on potential investors. Look at the Winchester Theatre site."

That property on Main street was zoned by a vote of town meeting to allow construction of apartments. So far, two builders have gone to the point of obtaining necessary permits to begin construction, but neither has been able to meet the stringent requirements of the zoning by-laws.

The two main obstacles for developers to overcome, according to Cummings, are the height restriction of 45 feet or five stories, and the parking requirement of one and a half spaces for each unit of housing.

The old by-law allowed construction of an apartment building to a height of 80 feet. After the Parkway Apartments on Swanton street were built, town meeting voted to lower that limit to 45 feet.

The Bonnell site on Main street was demolished last week to make way for construction of an apartment building, but some townspeople are not sure the building will go up.

Clara Hewis says, "I'll believe it when I see it. As things stand now, it's just too hard for someone to come into town and meet the requirements."

Zoning administrator Norman Sherman explained the problem. "The area where Bonnell's is located is the only place in town now zoned for apartment houses. Any other location would require a variance or a change in the zoning by-laws," he says.

As for areas which can accept single and two-family houses, the triangle going from the center and bounded by Washington and Main streets is the sole location zoned for such use.

Sherman notes that this is the oldest section of town and it has little land left for new construction of two-family dwellings. The zoning regulations further state, he says, that a two-family house must have 11,000 square feet of land. This would make it difficult for any conversion of large homes in Winchester which may be in a zoning district where lot size may be less than 11,000 square feet.

Sherman points out that multiple family housing does not necessarily have to mean apartment buildings or two- or three-unit houses.

"We can certainly think of housing of the townhouse or garden apartment type," he says. "There are possibilities in clustered housing where land otherwise used for construction can be left open as a common area for the residents. People are afraid of the term 'multiple family housing' but they needn't be."

One change in the zoning by-laws which will come before town meeting, possibly in the fall annual meeting according to Cummings, is bringing our laws into compliance with the state statutes regarding zoning. This is the so called Chapter 808 legislation, the zoning enabling act. It will require a two-thirds vote to make whatever changes are needed in our by-laws.

Meanwhile, Sherman concurs, the zoning regulations, while "a good set of by-laws," are indeed discouraging to potential builders. Far-sighted planning seems to be the answer.

Charles Tseckares feels that we have anticipated the services Winchester's residents will require in the future and that further development will not put a burden on police, fire, water, sewer, light, and other services the townspeople expect.

The architecturally interesting building at Church street and Waterfield road is an example of a multi-level structure which might be suitable for apartments with or without businesses.

John McHugh named sixth chief of police

John P. McHugh, a 27-year veteran of the Winchester Police Department, became its sixth chief by appointment of Town Manager Thomas J. Groux, effective yesterday.

Groux advised the board of selectmen at their Monday night meeting that he was making the appointment from the civil service list recently established as a result of a promotional exam held on April 10. The vacancy in the position was the result of Chief Edward Bowler's retirement last January.

Groux noted that civil service had certified Lts. McHugh, Andrew Crawford, and James Cogan as eligible for appointment and that all three had scored within one point of each other in the final civil service ranking.

Town Manager Groux noted that in addition to considering the formal examination, he also gave careful thought to each man's overall career, training, experience and education. During the past six months he met frequently with all of the lieutenants in order to gain a better understanding of the department and the individual lieutenants.

Chief McHugh is the youngest chief to serve Winchester, just as he was the youngest police officer appointed up to August 1949 when he joined the force. He was also the youngest sergeant appointed when reached that rank in January 1961. He reached lieutenant rank in February 1964.

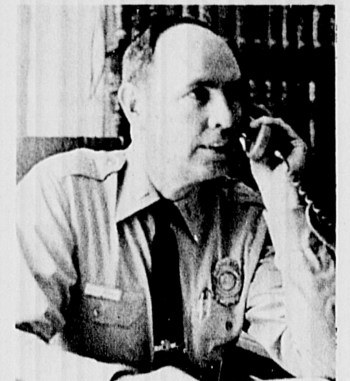

In his letter to selectmen, Groux wrote, "Based on my evaluation of each officer, I believe the department and the community can best be served at this point in time by the selection of Lt. McHugh."

Chief McHugh arrived home Monday evening from a 15-day trip to Ireland with his wife Catherine. Until he was called down to police headquarters that evening he had no idea that he had been appointed chief.

Waiting to greet him were the town manager and the other lieutenants who had been serving as acting chiefs since Chief Bowler's retirement.

McHugh is a lifelong resident of Winchester and graduated from the high school in 1945. Last year he became the first member of the police force to receive a college degree. By going to Boston College nights for five years, McHugh was able to earn a B.A. cum laude in law enforcement.

His police training includes studies at the Chief John P. McHugh

FBI national academy in Virginia, the University of Virginia, Babson College, and other specialized courses.

He lives at 46 Salem st., a block from where he grew up, in a house he built himself on land which was his grandfather's garden.

Daughter Catherine Flaherty, a graduate of Salem State College, no longer lives at home, but she and her husband Michael live nearby on Washington street. The McHugh's other seven children are still at home. They are John P. Jr., 24, a Northeastern University graduate now employed as an accountant; Laurence, 21, a construction craftsman; George, 19, a sophomore at Salem State; Nancy, 18, a June graduate of Winchester High School who will be going to Katharine Gibbs in Boston this fall; Margaret, 17, a senior at WHS; Mary 12, a seventh grader at Lynch Junior High School; and Cynthia, 8, a third grader at the Noonan School.

Kay McHugh, a Woburn native, met her future husband while they were both in high school.

In his spare moments, Chief McHugh wants to do some fishing and hunting with friends at the camp they built in Maine.

New group challenges Mystic Valley Center, proposes dismantling

by Larry Barton

A group of six women who work in the psychiatric unit at Choate Hospital in Woburn have told the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that $13 million in funding to the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center should be transferred to Choate.

The nurses have formed an organization called the Metropolitan Organization for a Regional Effort in Mental Health.

Although never heard of until two weeks ago by most officials, the women have drafted several lengthy reports and sent copies to HEW officials, state mental health officials and local residents who are members of the Mystic Valley board.

Several weeks ago Choate Hospital informed the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center that it would terminate an affiliation agreement for in-patient care as of September 2.

Now that the agreement will end, the staff persons have formed the organization and called for grants that they say the government would be sending to Mystic Valley to be transferred to Choate if an alternative to current Mystic Valley organization is not found.

Local family descendants of Italian explorer

Winchester has a unique connection to the beginnings of American history: a direct descendant of the man for whom our country was named, Amerigo Vespucci.

Anthony Vespucci of 33 Harvard st., a sixth generation descendant of the 16th Century Italian explorer, was the guest of honor at a reception held Monday on board the Italian Navy's square-rigger, the "Amerigo Vespucci." The Italian tall ship sailed into Boston Harbor Saturday for a week's visit.

Vespucci visited the ship with his family, which included a tenth generation, Jennifer Amerigo Kean, born July 10 at Winchester Hospital to John and Joan (Vespucci) Kean of 69 Florence st. (Coincidentally, the explorer Amerigo Vespucci was born in Florence, Italy in 1454.) Also at the reception were Mrs. Anthony Vespucci and another grandchild, Jacqueline Kean.

The "Amerigo Vespucci" is berthed at Boston Army Base and is open to visitors until 5 p.m. today. She sets sail for Halifax Saturday.

Seniors need volunteer help for fall fiesta

Forty-eight days remain before the Fall Fiesta Fair, held under the auspices of the Winchester Seniors Association, and the group needs volunteer help in preparing for the event.

Proceeds from the fair will go to the Senior Center Building Fund.

There will be gifts of all kinds, from handiwork to valuable buys at the silent auction. Homemade treats will be found on the food table, including baked goods, candies, and preserves.

The fair will feature a luncheon in two sections: one for those with hearty appetites, and a special diet bar for the dieters.

Throughout the summer the fair committee has been at work preparing for the fund raising event, to be held September 15 at Hadley Hall, Church of the Epiphany, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

The following are serving in the planning activities: Gretchen Batra, Constance Davy, Anne Feuss, Beryl Hagan, Olive Hatch, Catherine Holland, Pauline McGuigan, Jane Nordberg, Anne Orgettas, Mary Pierce, Leonor Rich, Sally Templeton, Gertrude Walker, Inez Yajjian, and Hilda Hope (general chairman). Clarence Borggaard and Ray Murphy are assisting in multiple ways, and many others are involved in activities that are being done at home or at vacation spots during spare moments given to handiwork.

Residents are urged to search their attics for items for the white elephant table; everything but used clothing will be accepted, and all kinds of costume jewelry are welcome.

The committee is also seeking donations of plantings to be offered for sale at the fair, and hopes to present a wide variety of growing things for your selection.

Anyone wishing to volunteer should contact the Council on Aging office. Persons who can come to Hilda Hope's home at 37 Glen Green on Wednesdays and Fridays at 1:30 p.m. through August are invited to stay at the workshop or take materials home for completion of projects.

Local youth in summer theater

Twenty-seven young area residents are spending part of their summer on the stage of the Tufts University Arena Theater learning about everything from curtain calls to costume design.

The summer children's theater at Tufts, called Magic Circle, gives young persons between the ages of 11-16 a six-week taste of the theater arts. The program also puts them directly under the lights with the production of two plays for young audiences.

Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" opened the Magic Circle Children's Theater season July 28. "Toad of Toad Hall" will be presented today and tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.; and August 4-6, again at 10:30 and 1:30.

This is an example of multiple dwellings near the center of town.

Buildings such as this on Mt. Vernon street are precluded in the zoning by-laws as they are now. There are apartments on the upper floor and businesses on the lower. Only if such use started before the zoning by-laws were written in 1928 and continued to this day, is such multiple use in one zone permitted.

★ Housing

"What we must do, and I can't urge this strongly enough," Tseckares says, "is to plan cautiously and don't impact any one area so much that expenses to the town make development unrealistic."

He, among others, suggests that a third party come into town — a redevelopment authority — whose responsibility it would be to oversee the large-scale development of Winchester.

Dr. Lawrence Quigley, chairman of the board of health, concurs. "Unless we have a happy union of business, professional, and residential interests, we will see the further deterioration of our town," Dr. Quigley says. He suggests a redevelopment authority which would encourage mall-like business-residential areas. "Why couldn't we have a building where the first floors could be shops and businesses and the upper floors apartments?" Dr. Quigley asks. "If a third party would oversee the large-scale planning of the town, we would have proper management and problems of congestion, parking, and such would be alleviated or non-existent."

Lexington has been cited as an example of what a community can do with its center, but Clarence Borggaard, one of the older residents in town, is wary of trying to compete with other towns.

"Big cities draw to the exclusion of smaller towns," he says, "and there's only one thing this town can do. We have to make the most of our strategic location to Boston and become a bedroom town in earnest."

Borggaard does not share the enthusiasm of others for a redevelopment authority, however, being generally distrustful of what he calls "all these regulatory organizations." Several general themes regarding the construction of multiple housing and the subdivision of the large houses run through discussions on this subject.

In review, then, the town must face the fact that Winchester has physically deteriorated. In a later article we will look at how it has fared economically.

Housing for many of our residents is not appropriate, but there is no place for them to go. Two major aspects of the housing problem should be considered:

Zoning laws will have to be looked at and possibly changed to allow construction of multiple housing units and subdivision of large houses to accommodate both current residents and those who would wish to move into the town.

The possibility of an agency to oversee development in Winchester will have to be considered. Consolidation of small parcels into larger ones under single or corporate ownership will need to be looked into.

Apartments could be built in several locations so that no one section of town becomes impacted. Suggestions for these buildings are Winchester place, the north side of Mt. Vernon street, the west side of Main street, and in the center itself.

The town will need to look at multiple zoning so that we are not divided into small parcels of mutually exclusive zones.

And after all the plans are made we should consider a design review of proposed buildings so that what we plan is what the actual construction will look like.

Whatever direction the town chooses to take, it must be done cautiously and carefully. Dr. Lawrence Quigley summed up the feeling of most of those The Star talked with when he said, "We must stop saying 'Do something' and start to say 'Plan something.'"

Indiscriminate "doing" will not necessarily make the housing problem better. What is needed now is "planning something" that will improve the situation here and at the same time retain the qualities the townspeople have come to take for granted in Winchester.

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

A friend in need...

There's a very real human drama going on in Woburn and Winchester right now that pulls at the heart from all directions.

The fire that struck the Barlow home in Woburn July 20, destroyed in a matter of hours and minutes the work of thirty years of a family's life. By a miracle the whole family got out with their lives.

Irony compounded the tragedy: Alicia Barlow, who turned 13 two days after the fire, wondered in her shock, "What kind of a birthday present is this?" And her father, James Barlow, suffered an accident a week before the fire and had to face the disaster as an unemployed man.

The terror, the panic, and the shock came all too swiftly in the early morning hours.

But there's another miracle in the story: the reaction of friends and neighbors came just as swiftly. Family friend Marsha Pumyea of Winchester arrived on the scene almost immediately, and through the grief she saw what had to be done.

She and other friends went to work to get the Barlows clothing and shelter and to set up a relief fund to try to rebuild some of what was so cruelly destroyed in a night. They are also helping with insurance arrangements to expedite the recovery and bring life as far back to normal as possible.

The James H. Barlow Fire Fund has been established at the Tanners National Bank in Woburn. Also accepting donations are Ms. Pumyea at 48 Wendell st. and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Chase Jr., 160 Forest st.

The Red Cross, as always, when it is needed, is there, providing some clothing and bedding and a little reassurance against the cold reality of life without a home.

Some of the local businesses, too, are playing their part. Chitels on Mt. Vernon street and Cradock Apothecary on Church street are accepting contributions for the fire fund. Donations of clothing are being accepted by both the Clothes Tree on Mass. avenue in Arlington and the Howdy Beef Burger Restaurant in Woburn.

After the horror of the flames and smoke comes the shock of knowing that you've lost the tangible product of a lifetime's work, a home: the representation, both physical and psychological, of all that is permanent and secure. The realization that the bottom has dropped out has to be one of the most agonizing feelings in the world.

But the bottom line has not entirely dissolved. From some reserve beneath the surface of everyday life comes the strength, the love and the compassion of friends like Marsha Pumyea.

It is a strength that brings people together and heals the wounds of the soul, straight from the heart.

Pols and the pole

There's a little battle going on over on Main street that's as interesting for its subsidiary skirmishes as anything else.

In a letter to today's Star, the Captain (Robert Feeney of 805 Main st.) declares war on Boston Edison. The issue is a light pole, and it has the makings of a classic confrontation between the individual and the corporation.

It seems the pole is blocking an access to the Captain's property, and he would like it moved. He's been working on it for five years.

The electric company, which would be glad to move it, wants to assess him for the cost. They have a policy, among others, that when a property owner wants an access cleared, they'll cover the cost. But, if another access already exists, the property owner pays the cost of moving the pole.

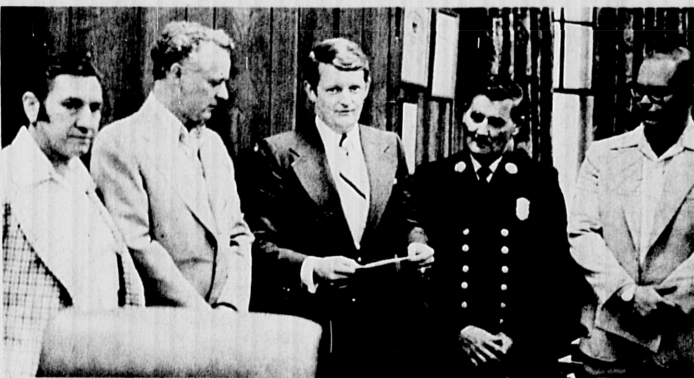

So far it's a Mexican standoff: neither side is willing to foot the bill.

But now backstage there seems to be a battle for the role of Knight on a White Horse. A number of local politicians are eager to sidestep into the fray in defense of "the little guy."

A public controversy would do little for the image of the electric people, already being pressed on the issues of fair share rates and public power. But such classic confrontations are bread and butter to a politician.

And there's another little issue stewing below the surface of things, to which the Captain, in his letter, offers a clue. But the question of shunts has yet to come to light.

Pictorial editorial

A check for $5100 was presented to the board of selectmen Monday night by the Kiwanis Club of Winchester for the purchase of a Hurst Tool — the Jaws of Life — for out town. Present at the check passing were, left to right, Thomas Derro of the Kiwanis, Bob Simpson, president of the organization, Chairman John J. Sullivan accepting the check on behalf of the town, Fire Chief Robert W. McElhinney, and Bill Morton of the Kiwanis. The effort of many people for many months went into the eventual purchase of the tool from the American Fire Equipment Corporation of Needham.

Letters from readers

Best seats

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many thanks to the parish council at St. Eulalia's for their thoughtfulness in installing handicapped parking spaces in their parking lot.

This was a very necessary service and one more instance of St. Eulalia's efforts to make a true community.

Now the handicapped have the best seats in the house and the ramp.

I hope to see many more wheelchair users at St. Eulalia's.

Thank you for everything.

Maureen Winn
10 West Chardon rd.

The audacity and hypocrisy of that request is what is truly "outrageous!"

As a strong supporter of Sam Rotondi's candidacy for the State Senate, a citizen, and former town meeting member of Winchester, I felt obligated to set the record straight on this matter.

See the light?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Mr. Edison:

Two weeks ago today I, Captain Robert E. Feeney, awoke to the light of a new day. I fell on my knees and thanked the boy from Galilee and asked what they wish me to do for his flowers in the garden today. By this I mean the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. As a humble servant of my God, he is of my understanding.

Mr. Edison, I implore you to go to confession; do not be afraid, the church will not fall down.

Mr. Edison, I declare war on you though only a peasant in your eyes. I've asked you to remove a dangerous pole from my driveway. Your answer was the policy of Edison is "We will not remove that pole."

You have sent 13 men to do your bidding. You have stepped on all of my bill of rights; therefore you are liable, etc., etc., etc.

Mr. Edison, I stand ready to accept your surrender. My terms:

1. Down with the pole.
2. Fill the hole.
3. Check my meter, it is a money eater.

The shunt, the shunt—that's an old tune (clue).

Tote that barge, roll that bale, Mr. Edison says the Captain is going to jail.

We Winchesterites may not always be right; within the eyes of God we are never wrong.

Amen.

Capt. Robert E. Feeney
805 Main st.

Bless the spirit

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In an editorial awhile back, the Star asked us to consider, "What is the Spirit of Winchester?" There are many ways in which the Spirit of Winchester is demonstrated, one of which is the unselfish spirit of our many volunteers when something worthwhile has to be done.

We have many dedicated citizens of all ages, from the very young to our senior citizens, who cheerfully donate their time and talents to make this a town in which we are proud to live.

The Spirit is visible in the hospitals, Bloodmobile visits, Town Day, parent associations, Winton Club, school and amateur theater, church groups, Scouts, C.Y.O., and in the many, many wonderful men and women who organize and coach our youth in the various sports in all seasons.

Time is a precious commodity which most people never seem to have enough of. Yet, the Spirit of Winchester is manifested by our concerned citizens who sacrifice their precious time for the benefit of us all. Therefore, the Spirit of Winchester is, in reality, the Spirit of the People of Winchester, and there's always room for more to get into the Spirit.

Winchester is also fortunate to have many service clubs which are most active in giving the needed financial support to the various programs in which our volunteers are active. As Director of Winchester Youth Hockey, I would like to publicly thank Rotary, En Ka, Aberjona, Post, V.F.W., Elks, Kiwanis, and Sons of Italy for their continual financial support in providing the youth of Winchester the opportunity to participate in a skating program over the long winter months. Boys between the ages of five and sixteen have been taught the fundamentals of what is at first a difficult recreational activity, but in a few weeks they learn something they will enjoy the rest of their lives.

Many boys who learned to play hockey under the sponsorship of Winchester Youth Hockey and its dedicated instructors have gone on to enjoy the opportunity to play at Winchester High, prep schools, and are well represented at a great many colleges throughout the country.

Let us not forget, however, that had it not been for the Spirit of Winchester, with its unselfish volunteers and generous service organizations, our lives would not have been so rich.

The Spirit of Winchester is living in human beings who enjoy doing something worthwhile for their neighbors. God bless them all.

Francis X. Murray

WHS reunion

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

August 21 marks the 6th (5th) Reunion of the Winchester High School Class of 1970.

For the past several months the reunion committee has been working hard to locate class members. Great enthusiasm shown by the members over the past year spurred the effort to organize the affair.

Letters and reservation forms were sent out over two weeks ago, but response has been very light. It's going to be a great disappointment to those who attend if more of their classmates don't make it.

The committee realizes some class members did not receive reservation forms. We apologize for this, but every effort was made to reach each and every one of you.

On behalf of the committee I sincerely urge every 1970 Schem to get their reservation in immediately to: WHS '70, 16 Bacon Street, Winchester.

Steve Boodakian

WHS '70 Committee, Chairman

Letter of thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Jaycees would like to thank those individuals who made the evening with the University of California Band a great success.

After many months of preparation Winchester was chosen as one of the 23 stops in the 13 Eastern states that were visited by the band.

The theme, "Spirit of America," portrayed trends in American life from the Gay '90s through Vaudeville, dancing through the 40's, cruising through the 50's, and the glitter and platform shoes of the 70's. In all it was a great evening. And not only were we able to entertain the townspeople—but the Jaycees were able to make a donation to the Senior Citizens' Building Fund.

Again, thanks to the people of the town that housed the 107 member band; the selectmen and the town manager, Tom Groux, for allowing us to stage the event; and the business concerns that made specialty donations, Peterson Chair, The Star, and the staff at the high school.

A great event, a memorable evening for a good cause. Thank you.

David Pywell, president,
Winchester Jaycees

Misleading

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The letter to the editor which appeared in the July 22 Star entitled "Outrageous" was a misleading political ad for the present state senator, whose district includes Winchester. It did not state the real facts.

"Outrages" was written in response to a Star editorial which attacked legislative action that diverted Lottery funds (from the Numbers Game) from cities and towns to the General Fund. This action took 20 million dollars from communities, which in most cases will be reflected in increased property taxes.

The letter implies that our state senator voted against diverting these funds. This is simply not true.

The Senate considered the specific question only once. A proposed amendment to the budget was made to restore these funds to the cities and towns. The Senate passed this amendment 31-to-1, as the letter stated. But what the letter did not state was that our state senator did not vote!

This non-action, which rendered the Senate voice of this district mute on such a vital question, cannot be considered "hard working and courageous" as the letter suggests.

The final words of that letter request the Star to correct "this misleading impression."

Town watch...

A chance to serve

By The Observer

Interviews will be held Monday night for those citizens who have written selectmen expressing a desire to serve on the new Winchester center study committee.

The board urges anyone to apply to them, in writing, as soon as possible so that the committee can get started with its work to plan a revitalization program for the town's center.

Especially needed are interested contractors, engineers, developers, and realtors.

***

Michael Connelly took off his fire captain's hat long enough to receive the congratulations of the board of selectmen Monday night.

Capt. Connelly has received his associate's degree in fire technology from the Massachusetts Bay Community College after seven years of night school.

Connelly says, "I took it one night a week or whatever I could handle with everything else going on and now it's done." He is the first college graduate to serve on the fire department.

***

Dr. Lawrence Quigley, chairman of the board of health, was lavish in his praise of Town Manager Thomas J. Groux the other day.

It seems that a week ago Friday a problem with the crane at the dump meant that rubbish left in the pit would have to remain until a broken part could be obtained to fix the crane.

Groux, rather than let a potential health problem build up, hired a private firm to remove the rubbish for disposal.

Dr. Quigley relates that since the conveyor belt at the dump has been moved to allow for construction of the transfer station, a rat problem has arisen.

According to Dr. Quigley, the rats had been hidden under the belt. When they were exposed, the board of health was notified that perhaps as many as several dozen were in the vicinity.

Allowing the accumulated rubbish to remain in the pit could only have further aggravated the rat problem, according to Dr. Quigley. "People will still throw their unwrapped garbage in the dump," he said, "even though it's illegal."

Meanwhile, the rats are in for bad times.

In the mood...

Surprise!

By Karen Whittlesey-First

John P. McHugh arrived home from a fifteen day trip to Ireland on Monday night. He had been awake for 24 hours and was looking forward to seeing his family again and to celebrating his wife's birthday.

The plane was delayed a while and then there was customs to go through and then finally he felt he was back.

No sooner did McHugh clear customs than he was called to police headquarters.

Like the vice presidential candidates in Jimmy Carter's campaign, the four police lieutenants in the department had been waiting for the phone to ring since they took the civil service examination for chief on April 10.

McHugh didn't know why he was wanted at the police station.

He was the last of the four to learn he had been named new Chief of Police. There at the station he was greeted by the town manager and the lieutenants.

Tuesday, after a Monday night cookout of burned hot dogs and birthday exchanges, McHugh looked excited and pleased as passersby shook his hand.

The police station phones were ringing all day and people came in off the street to wish the new chief well.

The chief has inherited a good town to work in.

Hearthstone

Rich bird for rich tastes

BY ELIZABETH
Star Correspondent

Out of the kitchen and into seafood restaurants has been my direction this summer as visitors have dropped in on the New England scene.

The 1771 Public House on the Sturbridge Village Common served up hospitality, colonial minstrel singers, Yankee cornsticks and an exceedingly rich house specialty called lobster pie.

Popovers, Pier Four's traditional offering, preceded a delectable seafood dinner. Colorado visitors loved the elaborate nautical decor of the Northern Avenue restaurant.

One visitor was making a professional study of the seafood industry. While enjoying our fresh Boston-docked seafood, we learned that foreign competition and antiquated methods have resulted in a decline in the New England catch from about 115 million pounds in the early '60s to only 22 million pounds in 1975. The industry hopes that international agreements to let decimated fish populations build up and the recently passed Federal bill setting a 200-mile limit for Americans only will improve the catches.

The contrast is dramatic when you learn that the rich fishing area of St. Georges Bank 90 miles off the tip of Cape Cod once yielded up to three million fish a year, according to Hugh O'Rourke, spokesman for the Massachusetts Seafood Council.

A visiting home economist who tested the following recipe found it exceedingly rich and high in calories. Well, you only live once.

Public House Lobster Pie

- 1/4 cup melted butter
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 pint light cream
- 1 pint milk
- 1 pound lobster meat
- 1/2 stick butter (1/4 cup)
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- Pinch cayenne pepper
- 1-3 cup dry sherry
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 egg yolks

Topping

Combine butter and flour in saucepan. Cook over slow fire (do not brown). Add cream and milk which have been heated, and cook 10 to 15 minutes, stirring frequently.

Saute lobster meat in butter; add paprika. Add part of sherry and cook briefly. Add cayenne, salt, and thin cream sauce. Blend 1/4 of the sauce into the beaten egg yolks, then stir this back into the whole mixture. Stir until newburg bubbles and thickens. Remove from heat; stir in rest of sherry. Combine topping ingredients. Spoon newburg into three or four individual casseroles distributing lobster evenly. Sprinkle on topping. Brown in 400 degree oven five to 10 minutes.

Topping: 1/4 cup grated fresh bread crumbs, 3/4 teaspoon paprika, 3 tablespoons crushed potato chips, 1 tablespoon grated parmesan cheese, 5 tablespoons melted butter.

★ Mystic Valley

Bob Good, director of the Office for Children, says that he too was never contacted by the staff people or Choate Hospital and that their is "no way" that his agency could replace the services offered in Winchester by the mental health center.

Good says that the Office for Children in Winchester is under state direction and he sees no way that state and federally funded mental health programs could be integrated with the children oriented programs which his office offers residents of six towns.

Good says that he agrees with some of the women's recommendations that funding methods be changed since he says that "some mismanagement" and "too much power" exists within the mental health center. But he says that the suggestions about his office are unworkable and he doubts the proposal will ever come to fruition.

In Arlington, that all services currently offered by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center on Maple St. be turned over to the Arlington Youth Consultation Center of Prescott St.

Patsy Kraemer, director of the Youth Consultation Center, says the suggestion "makes no sense since we simply couldn't handle it" and because "the mental health center and AYCC offer completely different services to completely different clientele."

Ms. Kraemer adds that none of the nurses had contacted her about the proposal and that she could see of no instances where the town of Arlington would accept such an agreement without making major changes in the Human Resources Department.

Ms. Kraemer adds that if the proposals suggested by the women were accepted, programs now offered by the Council on Aging and the Recreation Department in Arlington would have to be altered.

The Mystic Valley Mental Health Center is financed by local communities, the state and federal government. It receives about $1 million in federal monies and $700,000 in state and local funds each year. It also receives funding from the United Fund, client's fees and other sources.

Mazy E. Welch, chief of administrative services for the mental health center, says that the proposals of the Choate people are "misdirected, incorrect and hopeless."

"If Choate became the recipient (of the grant), we'd be substantial trouble," she says.

Mrs. Welch says that the mental health center has real estate commitments in Winchester, Lexington and Burlington and that a loss of funding to Choate would "mean a great loss to the people who turn to our satellite agencies for a large variety of counselling services." She does not know where the $13 million comes from.

Mrs. Welch says that in an agreement made with Choate last year, Choate was supposed to provide the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center with beds for patients with serious medical problems in its in-patient unit.

She says that Choate did not provide one bed to the mental health center during the agreement period. "Our association with Choate was not pleasant to say the least, but the proposals made here are so misdirected, so irresponsible that I can't understand their motives," she says.

Ms. Kraemer says she is equally puzzled as to why the group proposed her center as an alternative to the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center.

"I would hope it is because the AYCC has gained a reputation for good working abilities with the schools, the courts, the police and troubled young people. We have been recognized by all levels of the government for our work. But in no way can they take all of the varied services that Mystic Valley offers and throw them to us without total reorganization of the Human Resources Department," she says.

Mrs. Kraemer says that she, like Bob Good, has some reservations about the operations of the mental health center.

She feels that more alcohol treatment is needed, particularly a detoxification unit and stronger referral service. "But we all have reservations about every agency. That's no reason to try to cut its funding," she says.

"It's clear to me that the nurses are recommending a disintegration of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center. I can't see it. They do a lot of good and are very worthwhile for the needs they meet, particularly in a town as large as Arlington."

Bob Good agrees. He says that there is no way the Office for Children could duplicate the services offered by the Winchester Mental Health Center. "I like the idea of having one central office and other offices in each community where the needs exist," he says.

The six staff people at Choate Hospital have made a series of recommendations to state and local officials. Among them:

"The staff people say that discussions have taken place in the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration, in HEW and in the Mass. Dept. of Public Health about taking away monies from Mystic Valley and awarding them to Choate. Since Choate does not charge for patients unable to pay for emergency psychiatric treatment, the nurses say that Choate could handle the services better."

The staff people say that "the continuation of the state and federal grants to the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center, Lexington, is not a viable alternative. It fails to meet the needs of local people for comprehensive mental health care."

In a letter to HEW, Kathleen Riley, chairperson for the group, said that "the only alternative to this arrangement (turning over monies to other agencies) is to follow the suggestions of the Mass. Dept. of Mental Health officials and make the Choate Hospital the grant recipient."

Although several attempts were made to reach officials at Choate for comments on the situation, no administrator returned any calls.

However one officer of the staff people's organization, corresponding secretary Helen Corbett of Winchester, said the women formed the organization in January when they became dissatisfied with the "tremendous amount of waste" in spending of mental health monies by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center.

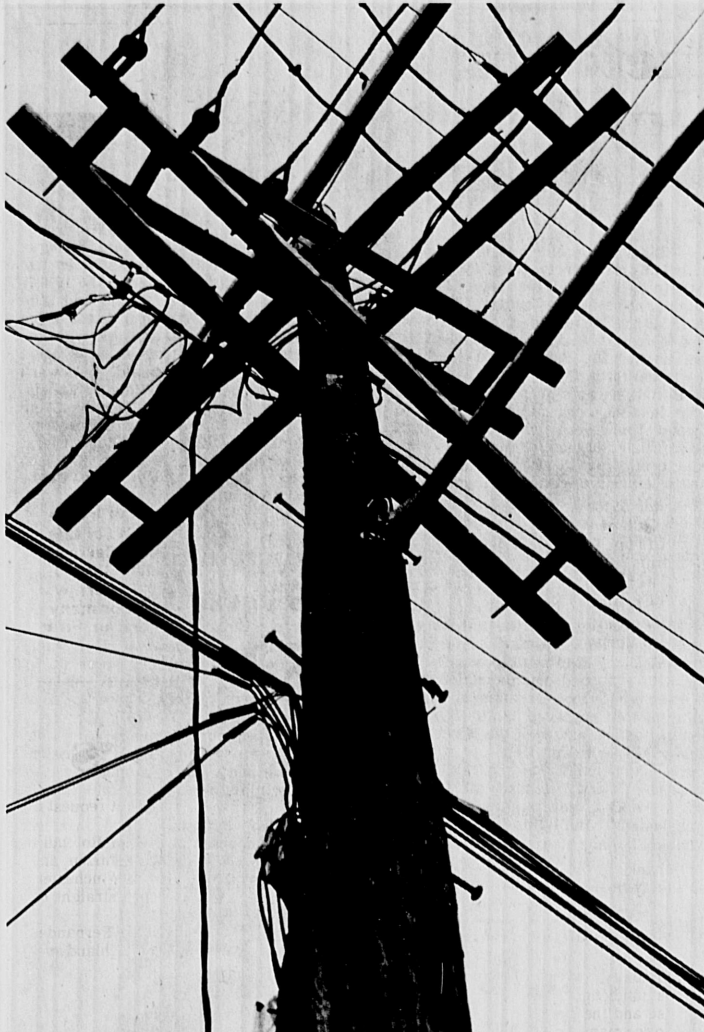

She said that the group has about 50 members and is composed of a variety of persons involved with mental health in the area.

Somehow the Boston Edison Company manages to keep from getting its wires crossed on this light pole at 805 Main St. The pole is the subject of a controversy over who is to pay to move it, the owner of the property, who claims it blocks his driveway; or the electric company, which has a policy of assessing the property owner for the cost of moving the pole if another access to the property already exists. So far it's a standoff.

Late night streaker, vandals keep police busy

Police activity in the past week ran the gamut from streaking to vandalism.

On Sunday morning, a 1:50 call to police reported a streaker in the vicinity of Pierpont rd. Officers Culhane and Gallant responded but the streaker had left the area. There were no other reports of his whereabouts.

On Monday, July 19, there was a report of vandalism to the concession stand at Wedge Pond, when Norman Doucette of the park department discovered the stand had been broken into.

On Tuesday last week two breaks were investigated. Officer Tranchita and Route Officer Faulkner were called to Oak street and Officer Oliver and Sgt. Frongillo responded to Grove street.

On Wednesday, an American flag valued at $30 was stolen from its stand in the window at 2 Winchester pl.

That same day, Officer Anselmo reported that the telephone booth windows at the Wedgemere station had been smashed.

Thursday a call from the Boston and Maine station notified police that a train had been struck by a rock in the vicinity of the Winchester Theater. Officer Tranchita checked the area but found no one.

Late that night a resident on Cambridge street reported that a woman had fallen from a bike. Officer Albertelli took Nancy Clark, 25, to the hospital for treatment of lacerations.

Officers Tranchita and Manzie investigated a break at 36 Calumet rd. on Thursday after an occupant of the house called police to report that a man was in the bedroom when he awoke. The caller was unable to give police a description of the intruder who fled the house through a rear door when he realized the occupant was awake. Entrance had been gained through an open window.

The two officers also investigated damage to the B&M gate at Cross street.

Friday, July 23, Officer Albertelli arrested a 21-year-old man at the Parkview Apartments on charges of assault on a police officer and idle and disorderly conduct. The incident occurred in connection with police arrests for receiving stolen property with which they charged two men and three youths.

Also on Friday, Boston Edison was notified of dangerous conditions on Cambridge street after several callers reported to police that the street in the vicinity of 18 Cambridge street was a hazard. Boston Edison is resurfacing the street there after installing underground lines. Police said the company failed to provide adequate lighting at night during the resurfacing.

Later on the morning of July 23, Officer Manzie arrested a town resident for larceny by false pretenses after the driver of a cab for Town Taxi of Boston reported to police that a customer had refused to pay the cab fare. Officers Guarente, Manzie, and Wright responded to the call.

On Saturday Officer Emery reported that a 6' by 2' window on Winchester Terrace was broken and a trail of blood led from the area.

After checking with Winchester Hospital, Officers Alford and Cammon discovered that a person was being treated there for hand lacerations. The Stoneham resident, formerly of Winchester, reportedly admitted that he had broken the window. He was charged with malicious damage.

There were two reports of mail being removed from rural mail boxes and ripped up and left strewn on lawns. Calls came in to police from residents on Fernway and other at Wood lane.

Former resident in candlelight nuptials

Mr. &amp; Mrs. Love

Jane Moon Simms became the bride of Thomas Alan Love in a candlelight Bicen-tennial wedding held July 4, at one o'clock in the First Baptist Church of Auburn, Ala. The Rev. John H. Jeffers officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simms of Woburn, formerly of Winchester for six years, and Dr. and Mrs. G. Thomas Love of Valdosta, Ga.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza and Venise lace. The bodice had an overlay of re-embroidered Alencon lace studded with seed pearls. The horseshoe neckline, empire waist, sleeve cuffs, hem of the gown and attached chapel length train were edged with a rope of Venise lace and seed pearls. The full bishop sleeves and skirt were sprinkled with Venise lace and rosettes.

The three-tiered fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a Venise lace and seed pearl covered Camelot cap.

The bride carried an antique rosepoint lace handkerchief, a gift from her father's mother, Mrs. B. T. Simms, to her mother on their wedding day. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis, and baby's breath with white satin ribbon and streamers.

Nancy McLean of Knoxville, Tenn., served her cousin as maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of white lace eyelet lined with red satin. The bodice had a scooped neckline and puffed sleeves. The waistline and full ruffled skirt were accented by a red satin sash and huge red bow in back. She carried a cluster of white carnations and baby's breath with white ribbon and streamers.

Bridesmaids who wore dresses identical to the maid of honor's and carried similar flowers were: Shirley McLean, Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. Nancy Bence, Shawmut, both cousins of the bride; Jane Clark, of Stamford, Conn. and Scotland; Janie Kasarjian, Winchester; Mrs. Lucie MacDonald, and Mrs. Sue Ann Henderson of Auburn.

The groom attired in all white, was accompanied by his father, Dr. G. Thomas Love, who served as his best man. Dr. Love and the groomsmen wore formal wear of navy blue with white ruffled shirts and blue ties.

Groomsmen were: William Francis Love and Robert Bowen Love, twin brothers of the groom, Valdosta, Ga.; Nimrod Lipscomb, Auburn; James McKinney and John Andrew Rumker, both of Valdosta, Ga.; and James Daniel Snyder of Meridian, Miss.

Peggy Sue Love, sister of the groom, Valdosta, Ga., was the flower girl. She wore a dress similar to the bridesmaid and carried a miniature white basket filled with rose petals.

Mrs. Simms, mother of the bride, wore a long powder blue dress with blue embroidered flowers. Her flower was a white orchid.

Mrs. Love, mother of the groom, chose for the wedding a formal summer gown of white which was accented by a white orchid corsage.

Grandmothers attending were Mr. B. T. Simms of Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Annie Paul Rounds, Gadsden, Ga.

The reception was held at the bride's home in Willow Creek.

Shirley McLean, cousin of the bride, kept the record of guests.

For their wedding trip, the new Mr. and Mrs. Love took a night flight from Atlanta to Washington, D. C. arriving over that city in time to see the fireworks from the air. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Auburn and continue their studies at Auburn University.

Jan Dillon tops Turnabout fleet in Petticoat race

Once a summer, women of the Winchester Boat Club take over as skippers, snap orders to their male chauvinist crew, and sail their Turnabouts in the traditional Petticoat Race.

And 1976 was Jan Dillon's year. Around a four-leg triangular course, Helmswoman Dillon of 26 Oxford st. paced a fleet of 14 craft all the way here July 18. Her crew was Dick Williamson of 55 Yale st.

Winds on the Upper Mystic were shifting but primarily southeast, and roughly 15 knots. The Dillon-Williamson craft jumped to a fast start and pulled ahead of the pack. It was not seriously threatened till the final windward leg, when Arne and Norm Towle charged up from fourth to take second place. Joanne and Ron Levaggi finished third.

Other Petticoat skippers finishing the race were: 4th--Jean Dillon (crew: George Dillon), 5th -- Joan Kingsbury (crew: Dr. Richard Kingsbury), 6th -- Rosemary Brady (crew: Bill Brady).

Seventh -- Claire Kilban (crew: Peter Longo), 8th -- Helena McCormack (crew: Shawn McCormack), 9th -- Nancy Quigley (crew: Charles Quigley).

Tenth -- Alice Lombardo (crew: Bob Lombardo), 11th -- Meg Wheeler (crew: Paul Wheeler), and 12th -- Olga Mulvaney (crew: Dr. John Mulvaney). Two boats did not finish.

An awards dinner was held that evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brady of Belmont.

Dr. Barone honored by school officials, nurses

Dr. William D. Barone was the honored guest recently at a party given by the administrators of the Winchester School Department and the school nurses. The affair was held at the home and garden of Mrs. Richard Merrow on Robinhood rd. and was in appreciation of Dr. Barone's 30 years of service to the town.

Dr. Barone became Winchester Medical Director in 1946, soon after returning to Winchester from Germany where he had served as Flight Surgeon for four years with the Nineteenth Tactical Air Command. He terminated his active service in the Air Force with the rank of Major.

During his thirty years with the School Department he served with four Superintendents of Schools: Forbes Norris, Harry V. Gilson, Donald Klemmer and William Macdonald. He also saw six schools added to the system: Parkhurst, Vinson-Owen, Lynch Junior High, Muraco, Ambrose and the new enlarged Senior High School.

Superintendent MacDonald presented Dr. Barone with a framed commendation from the Winchester School Department and a beautiful pewter engraved plate from the administration and nurses of the Winchester Public School Health Service.

It was noted that Dr. Barone served as "team doctor" and attended all football games for twenty-seven straight years, hiring other physicians to fulfill this duty only when his own health made his personal attendance inadvisable.

Dr. Barone has recently prepared a course of instruction on health subjects which has promise of being implemented in the 1976-77 school year. He highly praised the cooperation received from the administration and nurses in his years of work with the school department. Among those present were Superintendent MacDonald, W. Howard Niblock, Henry Perry, William Collela, Joseph Forte, Andrew Allen, Martha Grenzeback, William Warnock, Clare Corcoran, Leonor Rich, Henry Knowlton, William Clark, Gloria Pearson, Joan Merrow, Kathleen Sullivan, Mrs. Doherty, Jayne Tapia, Peggy Keefe and Martha Heigham.

Water safety takes brains, not just guts

"Courage is always magnificent, but courage alone is not enough to rescue a drowning person from deep water. All too often it results in the would-be rescuer becoming a victim too," Cathy McManamon, Aquatic Director, at the North Suburban YMCA said today.

"That is why the YMCA, which offers both swimming and life-saving courses, urges no one to undertake a rescue from deep water unless he or she is a strong swimmer."

Cathy pointed out that swimming expertness, physical stamina and the special knowledge that comes from a sound training in life-saving methods is necessary. "It's common," she said, "for lifeguards to have to go to the aid of not only the original victim but a well-meaning but incompetent rescuer as well. Many times this means a double tragedy."

Cathy listed six simple rescue rules which she said could save many lives.

In making a rescue, never get into the water unless you have to. Try to use a pole, a stick or a rope to reach the victim. Never swim to a rescue when you can use a boat. If you must swim, try to take along some means of support such as a board or inflated inner tube.

If the victim is near shore and you can't swim, push a board or other buoyant object out to him so he can hold on until help arrives. If you can't swim, don't try to save a victim in deep water. Instead, go for help as fast as you can.

Everyone, whether they can swim or not, should learn and practice the principles of artificial respiration.

Water safety and artificial respiration are included in all Youth Swim Classes offered at the YMCA. Classes start this week. For information call or drop by the North Suburban YMCA at 137 Lexington st., Woburn.

Hartley Rogers, Jr., 19 Lakeview rd., was sworn in last week as a new member of Governor Michael S. Dukakis' Judicial Nominating Commission. Rogers, an associate provost at MIT and chairman of the MIT Press editorial board, is one of 15 members who assist the governor in making appointments to the judiciary and court clerkships. Those sworn in last week are (left to right) George L. Duncan of Lowell, Rogers, and Charles Judlian Beard of Boston.

If you are a champagne lover, another wine made from the same grape as the pink champagne from the northeast area of France, is an exquisitely effervescent Blanc de Blancs called Krier. Strictly speaking, Krier is a sparkling white Burgundy, and though relatively new on the American scene, it is said to be the best-selling sparkler in its native land. It should have enormous success in the U.S.A., particularly since the price is just about a third of most French Blanc de Blancs.

American League Seniors fall to Arlington West, 9-3

The fourth and last Winchester Little League All Star team, the American League Seniors fell 9-3 to the Arlington West team in a second round game played July 20 at the Winchester High School field.

Arlington reached the second round with an impressive 15-2 win over Lexington West, while Winchester had a bye in the first round.

Winchester won the coin toss preceding the game and chose to bat last, which appeared at the outset to be wise in that Arlington was held scoreless in the first inning, despite loading the bases on an error by 3rd baseman Kimball, a single by Sullivan and a walk. Pitcher Wolfe reared back and put a third strike past Arlington catcher, Ryan. However, Winchester could do little against the fire-ball pitching of Sullivan despite a solid single up the middle by Wolfe.

Wolfe got Winchester in trouble in the second as lead off batter Pedulo was given a base on balls, stole second, took third on an overthrow at second by catcher Figlioli, and scored on a fielders choice, Wolfe to Waite. The ninth Arlington batter flied to right but the next two batters walked, stole second and third and scored on a single by Sullivan who was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double, Edwards to Rigney to retire the side.

This out proved to be costly to Winchester as Rigney's knee was injured by the hard sliding Sullivan, and this talented player was lost for the game.

Winchester failed to score again in the second inning partly because of sloppy base running. Figlioli walked to open the inning, stole second and went to third on an overthrow at second by Arlington catcher Ryan. However, he over ran third base and was tagged out by an alert Pedulo, Arlington's third baseman. Edwards then walked, but was picked off first base on a very good move by pitcher Sullivan. Kimball then walked, which would have loaded the bases with none out with more cautious base running. However, Stewart, batting for Rigney, struck out to end the inning.

Centrella opened the third with a sharp single to center. (Stewart now in at third and Kimball at second for Winchester.) Duffy flied out to Edwards in left, but Centrella's stole second and went to third on Figlioli's overthrow at second, then scored on a wild pitch. Wolfe then got out of the inning with two strikeouts while walking one.

Winchester finally got on the board in the bottom of the third when Waite walked, and reached third on a walk to Blanch and a hit batsman (Wolfe) on a wild pitch. Sullivan, however proved overwhelming in the clutch, striking out Mafera, Bellino and Figlioli to end the threat.

Arlington broke the game open in the fourth with five runs on three walks, two base hits and two passed balls and a wild pitch. A sixth run was saved on an alert play by Winchester's short stop Blanch, who took an overthrow to third base and threw out Pedulo at the plate to end the inning. Bellino had replaced Wolfe on the mound after one out two runs in and the bases loaded. Wolfe moved to third to replace Stewart who moved to catcher to replace Figlioli. Cowen replaced Bellino in right field.

Despite a solid double to right by Kimball, Winchester failed to score in its half of the inning as Sullivan struck out Edwards, Stewart and Waite.

In the fifth, Jackson went to left field, Ross to second and Goodrow to first for Winchester. Lorden to second, Cockery to catcher, Ouellette to third, Boudreau to right field, and Griffin to left for Arlington. Arlington failed to score in the fifth in spite of a walk and a single, and Winchester rallied in the bottom of the inning as Blanch walked, stole second and scored on Mafera's base hit.

Mafera later scored on a wild pitch. Sullivan loaded the bases on walks but got out of the inning with no further scoring.

The sixth inning was uneventful as Arlington failed to score and Winchester also did not score despite a one-out single by Blanch, who stole second. The inning ended when Mafera struck out but had to be thrown out at first when the catcher dropped the ball and Blanch was thrown out in an attempt to take third on the play.

The umpire then called the game because of darkness.

Swim team drops two

The recreation department's town swim team began its competitive season last week by dropping two close meets with the Winchester Boat Club and a combined team of the Lexington Adams Estates and Paint Rock Pool. Final scores for the meets were 148 to 206 in favor of the Boat Club and 173 to 201 in favor of Lexington.

Considering the small size and inexperience of the "Man-o-Wars," they did very well in their first competition. Deserving special mention for these meets are eight-year-old Ann Adelsburger, who won seven of eight events entered in the two meets; and nine-year-old Shelia Donaghy, who also won seven of eight.

Other standouts in the meets included Pete and Rich Webber with a total of 11 firsts and Kevin Conley who captured four firsts.

This year's team is under the direction of Cathy Cook, who is being assisted by Sally Grant, Scott Shawcross and John Henriquez.

Coming meets for the team include: Burlington Country Club (away) July 30, 9:30 a.m.; and Winchester Swim Club (at the swim club) August 2, 4 p.m.

YMCA running gymnastics camp

A summer of learning and fun is underway at the North Suburban Y.M.C.A.'s Gymnastics Camp.

Boys and girls are taught gymnastics skills of tumbling, balance beam, trampoline, uneven parallel, and vaulting in a competitive but fun atmosphere.

At the end of the week, all the campers participated in a camp-wide gymnastics meet. All the campers received a prize for the routine of moves, which they themselves made up.

The winners of this meet were Stephanie Ricupero, Barbara Smith, and Bonnie Phillips on vaulting; Diane Schulte, Michelle Lanzafame, and Billy Bruce on bars; Bonnie Phillips, Laura MacTaggart, and Cynthia Wadsworth on beam; Sandra Ricupero, Laura MacTaggart, and Pam Mulvihill on floor exercise.

The order of events is as follows:

1. Girls 16 & under 100m freestyle; 2. Boys 16 & under 100m Freestyle; 3. Girls 12-13 50m Backstroke; 4. Boys 12-13 50m Breaststroke; 5. Girls 8 & under 25m Freestyle; 6. ## Pop Warner tryouts begin this Tuesday

Tryouts for Pop Warner Football A, B, C, and D teams be in Monday, August 2 at 6 p.m. at Ginn Field.

All boys who have registered are asked to report at this time wearing gym shorts and sneakers. Any boy between the ages of 8-13 wishing to register for the upcoming season may also report and complete the registration form at this time.

There are still some members of last year's teams who have not turned in equipment from last season. These boys, if they do not intend to play this season, are requested to turn equipment in at Ginn Field during the tryout period.

There is still a demand for assistance from parents to help with all the necessary plans for the upcoming season. Without the support of interested parents, the organization feels it will be difficult to have a successful season.

Heat takes toll on exercisers

Give your body time to adapt to heat. Do not exercise too strenuously during the warm days of the season and do not wear rubber or plastic clothing to induce excessive sweating.

Being physically fit helps one to tolerate heat, but it is not a substitute for heat adaptation.

The only way to increase heat tolerance is to exercise regularly on warm days, and even then it is important to be cautious. When heat and humidity are high, either cut back on exercise or do more swimming than other types of activity or do not exercise at all.

For more information call Fred Fallon, physical director, at the North Suburban YMCA in Woburn.

After the fall...of the pinata, that is. The only way to look is down and the only thing to do is grab. The Ginn field playground had a fiesta to top them all last week.

In the past, if an appliance or other item purchased with a credit card proved defective and the merchant refused to make amends, the credit card company could still force you to pay. The Fair Credit Billing Act has changed all that. Now if you use a credit card to buy goods or services that cost over $50 and if the transaction takes place in your home state, the merchant must assume responsibility. If he refuses to replace or repair the defective item, you can stop payment, and the bank will go to the merchant for satisfaction.

Next was the Lifesaver find. Neil Harrington captured the group one title and Terry Laeniere was best in group two. The watermelon race was won by Mike Harrington and Kathy Mangano.

Final activity for the day was the bubble blowing contest. This contest was won by Mike and Maureen Harrington.

Other activities for the week at Leonard included making potholders and making pencil holders out of cans and yarn. Coming events will be playground paint and cleanup day and a trip by bike to play miniature golf.

Ginn

Monday, arts and crafts day at Ginn Field, the children made 25 vases out of old beer bottles, Mod pog and crepe paper.

Wednesday was a preparation day for the Mexican Festival to come and flowers were made out of tissue paper. The festival was held on Thursday with the children being divided into two groups and taking turns trying to break open Pinatas. Mick Feeley broke open the first one. Kris Munroe made the first hole in the second one and Bill Sarcia finished it off.

Upon breaking the Pinatas treasures locked inside fell to the ground ready to be enjoyed by the awaiting children. Afterwards the children enjoyed tacos and tonic. Many thanks go to instructors Pam Giarizzo and Rich Spellman who made the day such a success. Highlighting the list of coming events at Ginn will be the playground cookout Aug. 12.

Westside

At Westside field the week's activities were numerous. Paper mache artwork that utilized new poster paints was made. Material scraps were collected and sewn together by young seamstresses into pillows and a doll blankets.

Plans for the Westside beautification day were completed. The program was initiated by applying a fresh coat of "Coronation Blue" to the playground shed. Stoney Jacobs with aid of kidpower will add the the finishing touches to the shed this week.

Officer Guarente of the Winchester Police Department made a visit to the playground with the police dog Satan. Their display was educational as well as enjoyable for the children of the park. Instructors Tony Guarente and Lee Costello would like to thank Fells Hardware for the contribution of the paint for the park shed.

MacDonald

McDonald field had the annual field cookout last week with Chets Jerry Ferro and Chris O'Connor required to cook up a storm all afternoon as over 50 hungry kids attended.

Much help was needed and obtained for this event from parents of the youngsters of the playground. Jerry and Chris would like to thank all the parents who made this day such a success.

Dave Vozzella captured the McDonald Field Invitational Miniature Golf tournament at Hagos last week, shooting a hot 43. Guy Cateralla finished second and Frank Vozzella captured third. First place was worth a banana split, compliments of Jerry.

The winning total for the group was 55 points. Scoring for the contest was based upon ten points for a home run, seven points for a ball hit off the wall and five points for a ball hitting the wall on one bounce.

In capturing the title Cahill hit five homers at the Westside field. Trophies were awarded to the first place winners in each division.

Statehouse roll call

Volume II, Report No. 24
June 14-18, 1976

THE HOUSE: Ten roll calls were held in three sessions on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday's session, which began at 11 a.m., was highlighted by a filibuster lasting some 28 hours, the session ending at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday.

On a 172-50 vote, the House defeated a proposal to have the State Supreme Judicial Court rule on the constitutionality of the Legislature's proposal placing the mandatory prison sentence question on the November ballot. Rep. Saltmarsh voted against the proposal.

He then voted in favor of a bill placing the question of mandatory prison sentences for those convicted of committing crimes with a handgun on the November ballot.

Saltmarsh's attendance record for the week was 100 per cent; his cumulative for the current session of the House is 99 per cent.

THE SENATE: In a week of only three sessions (because of the Bunker Hill holiday), the Senate voted on eight roll calls.

On a unanimous 31-0 vote, the Senate gave final approval to a bill freezing the 25 cent toll rate on the Mystic-Tobin Bridge. Sen. Bullock favored the freeze.

By 30-5 the Senate approved an amendment which gives criminal justice agencies and military recruiters access to potential enlistee's arrest records. Sen. Bullock voted in favor of the amendment.

Another amendment to make public original copies of police blotters, court records of public judicial proceedings, records of public administrative, legislative and judicial meetings, and Registry of Motor Vehicles records maintained for the purpose of regulating the issuance or revocation of auto, pilot or other operator's licenses was accepted by the Senate 31-4. Sen. Bullock voted with the majority.

On a 20-15 vote, the Senate rejected an amendment to have judges write into the sentences of serious offenders whether or not the offender shall be eligible for furloughs and how much time he must serve before being eligible. Sen. Bullock voted in favor of the defeated amendment.

An amendment calling for a three-year gradual phase-in of the open competition system amongst auto insurance companies was rejected by a 24-9 vote. The open competition system was just passed by the Senate and is one of the key reforms substituted for the present system, under which the state's insurance commissioner fixes rates for the industry. The defeat of the gradual phase-in means the Senate favors an immediate phase-in of the new system.

Sen. Bullock voted to defeat the gradual phase-in.

On a 25-10 vote the Senate defeated an amendment to establish uniform rates for the entire state and end the present "territorial" system. Sen. Bullock voted against the amendment.

Bullock's attendance for the week was 100 per cent; his cumulative rate is 94 per cent or 81 of 86 roll calls.

McDonald holds strong lead in rec. baseball

With the regular season coming to a close this week and playoff action beginning next Monday, it looks like McDonald field is the team to beat in the town recreation baseball league.

The McDonald Twins captured their sixth victory of the season by defeating the Ginn A's 5-2. Paul Marshall went the route for the victors allowing only three hits and striking out seven. Offensive punch was provided by Guy Cafferalla and Dave Vozzella who drove in the winning runs.

The Leonard "A" team broke a five game losing streak with a decisive 10-3 victory over a surprising Westside team. The Reds clinched the game early, taking a commanding 8-0 lead after the second inning. Gary Tedesco lead the offensive show, followed closely by Ace Dokus. Lennie Bellino kept the West-siders in check until the last inning when the Red Sox scored all their runs.

In "B" action Leonard and Westside played to a 4-4 tie. Robby Mastretta was the big stick for the Reds but the Red Sox rallied in the last inning to gain the deadlock.

Wednesday's action was cancelled due to rain and was replayed July 27. Playoff action will begin Monday with 1 vs 4 and 2 vs 3 playing two-out-of-three series.

Standings

McDonald	6-1
Ginn	3-4
Westside	3-4
Leonards	2-5

Acting tradition carried from mother to daughter in two Winchester families

The acting tradition runs in families - ask the Barrymores and the Fondas - and two Winchester families are proving it all over again.

In the program for the Winchester Summer Community Theater's production of "Cyrano De Bergerac" at the High School July 29, 30 and 31, playgoers will spot the names of Wendy Klug and Kathy Dorsey.

Wendy who plays two roles in the current production is the daughter of Mary Klug who has pleased Winchester audiences with outstanding performances in such plays as "The Odd Couple," "Summer and Smoke," and the unforgettable "Gold In The Hills." To the great pleasure of all, Mary plays the leading female role in the current production, the lovely Roxane, to whom Cyrano gives his life-long devotion.

Kathy Dorsey's mother, Nancy, does not appear in "Cyrano De Bergerac" but she is well remembered for her starring roles in "Three Men On A Horse," "Separate Tables," and "Pygmalion," among many others.

In spite of their youth, Wendy and Kathy are by no means novices. Wendy has appeared in "The Prime Of Miss Jean Brodie," "Marigolds," and "The Crucible." And for Kathy, this last year has been a busy one in which she played leading parts in two productions at the Winchester High School and directed still another. They have big names to live up to but they bring formidable talents to the task.

Tickets for all performances of "Cyrano De Bergerac" are available by calling 729-5435 or at the door on the nights of the performances.

An Open Letter From Mrs. Torby Macdonald

MRS. TORBERT MACDONALD
63 Appleton Street
Malden, Massachusetts

Dear Friends,

I am pleased to share with you my enthusiastic support of Joe Croken's decision to run for the U. S. Congress from the Seventh District. The entire Macdonald Family is in full support of Joe's candidacy and strongly endorses his efforts to fill the seat left vacant by the death of my husband, Torbert.

Joe served as my late husband's Administrative Assistant for over twenty-one years and I know of no other person that Torby would rather see carry on his work than Joe Croken. Nowhere is there a more qualified, more experienced or a more dedicated public servant. Our affection for Joe and our conviction that Joe is the most capable person to carry on Torby's work is equally as sincere as Joe's affection and commitment to the people of the Seventh District. I hope you will let Joe continue to work for you.

Sincerely,
Phyllis Macdonald
